4,000,000 Jobs By Dec. 15, Plan Of U. S. Agency

400 Million to Finance Minor Projects in All Parts of Nation.

Will Not Interfere With Other Work

Harry S. Hopkins Heads New Recovery Program.

The greatest program ever undertaken for the employment of men was started yesterday by the Federal Government with the announcement that jobs will be provided for 4,000,000 men by December 15 on minor projects throughout the Nation.

To accomplish this, President Roosevelt announced the creation of a Civil Works Administration, with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, as director. Projects will be financed by $400,000,000 from the Public Works Administration and by funds advanced by local governments and the Emergency Relief Administration.

It was indicated that available funds would last until February, when Congress will be asked to provide additional money. How much will be required at that time will depend upon the ability of men to find work at other jobs.

Work to Begin at Once.

Hopkins said it is proposed to have 2,000,000 men now on part-time work and on relief rolls, at work on steady jobs by November 15. It is planned to provide work for an additional 2,000,000 by the middle of December.

By giving jobs to 4,000,000 men during the winter months, Hopkins estimated they would be able to support their families for the most part, or to the extent of taking nearly 10,000,000 off relief rolls.

It is proposed to allot $150,000,000 a month for the employment of these men, most of which will go for wages, until February. Of this amount, the Public Works Administration will provide $100,000,000 monthly. The monthly amounts needed, however, will depend upon the speed with which work is found. Material costs, it was estimated, will run from 20 to 30 per cent of the outlays.

Hopkins laid particular emphasis on the fact that in no case will contracts be let for any of the work on which the civil works funds are to be expended.

According to plans, city and county engineers will be asked to submit at once lists of projects which can be undertaken with a minimum of delay. These works are of such a character as will not interfere with those being financed by the Public Works Administration.

Will Cover Wide Range.

Projects planned cover a wide range and will be of such a nature that men can be employed in every county in the United States.

Work will be made possible on

Senator Borah Defends Ford

Says Auto Manufacturer Has Right to Stay Out of NRA.

Caldwell, Idaho, Nov. 8 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, said today: "I believe Henry Ford has a perfect right to stay out of the NRA."

The statement was made in response to a question from a student while the senator was addressing an audience at the College of Idaho.

Asked if he believed it possible for the Government to force the motor car manufacturer to sign the NRA code, Borah replied: "I don't think so."

"I believe Gen. Johnson made a serious mistake," Senator Borah declared, "when he suggested a few days ago that the NRA codes might become permanent. I believe the public will react against the statement and will not so whole-heartedly cooperate with him."

Mechanic Injured In Parachute Jump

Ordered Out by Officer Fearing Crash.

"Jump!" ordered Lieut. Francis Pope to his mechanic, Private Robert Gault, as the engine of their giant Army plane faltered over Maryland countryside near Cumberland yesterday.

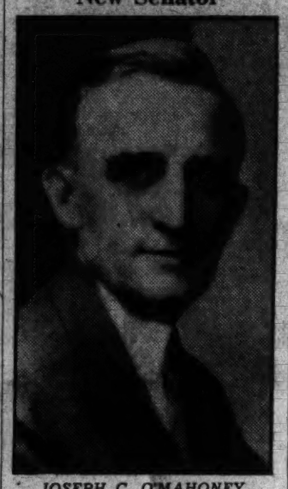

Gault parachuted into a tree, slightly injured, and was taken to the Cumberland Hospital.

Lieut. Pope, en route to Bolling Field from Langley Field, succeeded in bringing his plane under control after the near crack-up.

Snow Falls in Alabama.

Jasper, Ala., Nov. 8 (AP).—Snow fell for several minutes three miles south of Jasper today, Deputy Sheriff Salters reported.

JOSEPH C. O'MAHONEY, First Assistant Postmaster General, who was appointed United States Senator from Wyoming yesterday, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator Kendrick.

Ban on U. S. Job Seekers Over 40 Lifted

Age Limit for Typists Set at 53; Filing Time Extended.

Age limits for persons taking stenographic and typist examinations were increased from 40 to 53 yesterday by the Civil Service Commission.

The ban on persons over 40 was lifted after a storm of criticism which brought White House action. As an additional concession to opponents of the 40-year rule, the commission announced extension from November 7 to November 30 of the date for filing of applications for the stenographic and typist examinations.

Since most of the opposition centered on stenographic examinations, the commission failed to change the reduction from 50 to 35 years of the age limit for tabulating and calculating machine operators and under card punchers.

Officials pointed out the new 53-year limit for stenographers and typists is 3 years higher than the maximum existing prior to adoption of the 40-year rule.

Credit Goes to Cochran.

Observers praised Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, and Secretary Perkins for their part in defeating the 40-year regulation. Cochran was the first to protest after the rule was announced a fortnight ago. He complained to President Roosevelt. The Representative's letter was referred to Miss Perkins by the President.

The Labor Secretary immediately made known that she opposed the limit as "short-sighted" from an economic standpoint, especially because of the unusually large number of unemployed persons now on charity rolls. Miss Perkins is believed to have insisted on reversal of the commission action when she conferred with Harry B. Mitchell, Civil Service president.

At the time, Mitchell said the rule was adopted because personnel chiefs in the departments seldom appointed eligibles above 40 and due to the expense involved in examining persons between 40 and 50.

Pension Angle Argued.

Cochran fought the rule on the grounds that it would necessitate old-age pensions and add to the difficulties of the jobless. Like Miss Perkins, he insisted many persons of over 40 were valuable employes because of their experience, mature judgment and reasoning powers.

The Board of Trade, the American Federation of Government Employes and other organizations supported Cochran, as well as numerous lawmakers, including Senators Couzens (Republican), Michigan; Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Capper (Republican), Kansas.

Cochran last night intimated he would seek congressional action unless the commission also increased

Soviet Pact This Week Held Certain

Litvinoff Confers Twice With Hull and at White House.

Debt Topic Not Taken Up, But Further Talks Scheduled Today.

By Kendall Foss.

Despite silence on the part of all concerned in the Soviet-American discussions the impression gained ground yesterday that recognition of the U. S. S. R. would be a fact before the end of the week.

Maxim Litvinoff beamed and chuckled his way through a day of weighty conferences, two at the State Department and one in the form of an hour's unscheduled private talk with President Roosevelt following a White House luncheon in his honor.

The Russian's air of cheerfulness and the sandwiching in of the conversation with the President indicated that things were moving almost as rapidly as Litvinoff had hoped. He said in Berlin a half hour ought to suffice as far as he was concerned. The conversations will continue today.

Details Not Discussed.

In an otherwise completely noncommittal communique issued at the conclusion of a two-hour session at the Department in the forenoon there occurred the significant phrase "detailed proposals were not discussed." This was taken to mean debts, which after all is not surprising, considering that Litvinoff is a diplomat, not a financial expert, and that he entered the conference without a briefcase.

Observers were wondering what topics could be keeping the conferees busy four hours yesterday with the prospect of several more hours to come today.

Debts, claims and counterclaims seemed an unlikely candidate for honors. These are matters which require a staff of experts except for the initial agreement in principle which should not require very long. The question of propaganda also only needs an agreement in principle. Nor is Litvinoff in a position to talk trade possibilities in any detail.

This leaves the Far East—a subject on which the Soviet Union feels very strongly. In this connection the announcement that Alexander Troyanovsky, now in the foreign office in Moscow but formerly Soviet ambassador to Tokyo, probably would be the first ambassador to Washington is significant. It indicates what is paramount in Russian minds as the outstanding benefit of recognition. This does not mean that trade lacks interest

...portation Trails ...tvinoff Threat

P...ian Who Would 'Drink His Blood' Arrested.

...e York, Nov. 8 (AP).—A deportation order was entered today against a former Russian army lieutenant as the indirect result of threats made against Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Minister.

The prisoner is known as Paul Bautz. His deportation was ordered when he admitted to a board of inquiry on Ellis Island that he deserted the freighter Baela in the port in 1926. Papers in the case will be sent to Washington.

Japanese Killers Draw Light Terms

Yokosuka, Japan (Thursday), Nov. 9 (AP).—The most sensational court-martial in Japan's history was concluded today with the sentencing of 10 men, whose terroristic exploits on the night of May 15, 1932, ended in the assassination of Premier Suyoshi Inukai.

The six men participating in the slaying of Inukai must serve from 10 to 15 years in prison. Four others, not direct participants in the assassination, were given suspended sentences.

Death penalties had been asked for three on trial. They were Seishi Koga, alleged chief organizer of the terroristic conspiracy; Taku Mikami, commander of naval officers who entered the premier's home, and Isamu Kuroiwa, charged with having fired a gun at Inukai.

Winter Grips Washington, Colder Wave Due Tomorrow

Winter took a firm though temporary grip on Washington and the East last night as the Weather Bureau predicted a minimum temperature of 28 degrees by morning.

An intermission of cloudy weather, with slowly rising temperature, followed by rain, is scheduled today, but a second subfreezing cold wave is forecast for tomorrow night.

Snow fell as much as 2 inches in western Maryland yesterday and in flurries in parts of Virginia. Washington had snow early in the morning but it disappeared before most Washingtonians were awake.

It was the District's first fall of the season and the earliest since 1927, when snow was recorded on November 6.

The temperature began falling early last night after hovering around 40 degrees most of the day.

Trade Drop Seen as Price Level Rises

Federal Bank's Bulletin on Lagging NRA Given Support.

By Elliott Thurston.

Out of the citadel of the NRA came a survey yesterday picturing industrial, business and financial conditions in a far more unfavorable light than the recent Federal Reserve Board bulletin, which aroused the ire of Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

The Department of Commerce, which houses the NRA, issued its November "Survey of Current Business," reflecting October declines in industrial activity, retail sales and other business and emphasizing that at the same time the "cost of living has continued to mount," extending for the first time since 1930 to rents, and that production costs are still rising.

There was no mention of the industrial declines being marked in industry operating under codes—the Reserve bulletin observation that vexed Gen. Johnson as well as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace—but the picture presented by the Commerce Department survey is one of a sagging recovery program and the inference is that the NRA has gone too fast and that uncertainty, including doubt about the dollar, is holding up the parade.

Survey Significant.

The survey takes on particular significance in view of the rift over policy between Secretary of Commerce Roper and the general. The secretary is in command of publication of the department survey which supports Reserve Board and Treasury data.

Following are extracts from this latest review covering conditions through October 28:

"Output of mines and factories in September declined contrary to the normal movement . . .

"Decreases were general in all of the major industries, with the exception of food products. The widest declines were in the iron and steel industry, 18 per cent; in textiles, 13 per cent, and in lumber, 22 per cent.

Retail Sales Slump.

"The increase in department-store sales fell short of the usual seasonal increase . . . Sales were only 3 per cent higher than a year ago, although prices were up 17 per cent.

"The increase in freight-car loadings in September was less than the usual seasonal rise, and the same was true of the merchandise less-than-carlot group.

"Movements in the financial markets have been irregular. Both bonds and stocks tended lower during the period under review."

Shepard Wed Awaiting Trial

Army Surgeon, Convicted of Wife-Poisoning, Marries Again.

Denver, Nov. 8 (AP).—Maj. Charles A. Shepard, 62, Army surgeon granted a new trial this week in his conviction of poisoning his second wife, Zenana, disclosed today he secretly married Mrs. Alice J. Watt of Denver, July 4.

"We're floating on air," they told friends tonight.

Maj. Shepard, on duty under bond while appealing his sentence to life imprisonment, and Mrs. Watt, who aided him financially in his legal fight, eloped to Russell Springs, Kans., for the ceremony.

Mrs. Watt, socially prominent widow of Albert J. Watt, Denver manufacturing company executive, met Maj. Shepard after he was transferred to Fitzsimmons Hospital here.

"We kept our marriage a secret because one of my attorneys desired us to do so while he was preparing to argue my case before the Supreme Court," Maj. Shepard said.

German Air Boat Arrives in Brazil

Natal, Brazil, Nov. (AP).—A German flying boat piloted by Rudolph von Klausbruch landed here at 2:55 p. m. today after a one-stop flight across the South Atlantic Ocean. Its landing was accomplished 8 hours 50 minutes after it was catapulted from the German steamer Westphalen in mid-ocean.

The plane carried four other men in addition to the pilot.

They were testing the proposed regular mail service between Europe and South America. The S. S. Westphalen is maintaining a position about 950 miles east of Natal.

The plane reached the Westphalen yesterday after a six-hour flight from Bathurst, Africa, thus crossing the South Atlantic in less than 15 hours total flying time.

52 Killed, 183 Wounded in New Cuban Revolt Against Grau; Raging Island Under War Rule

Industry Rule By U. S. Held Fixed Policy

Richberg, Roper Defend NRA; Swope Enlarges Control Plan.

Defending the NRA, two important members of the Administration yesterday served notice, in addresses before the annual meeting of the Academy of Political Science in New York, that economic planning, with control of industrial output, has come to stay.

Donald Richberg, general counsel of the Recovery Administration, said:

"If a machinery for the self-government of industry can not be created and operated, then control by political government is inevitable. That is the final issue of the recovery program."

Speaking at a night session, presided over by Gerard Swope, Secretary of Commerce Roper said, "Acceptance of the idea of cooperative economic planning, as an instrument of national salvation," was necessary.

An elaboration of his plan for a national chamber of commerce and industry, involving establishment of a national economic council which would study economic changes and advise the President and Congress, was presented by Mr. Swope.

Members of the Business Advisory and Planning Council for the Department of Commerce recognize, Mr. Roper said, that the country's ability to fight its way through present problems depends upon "a soundly conceived and properly executed program of economic planning for industry generally."

Roper Sees Benefits.

The Secretary said no important unit of business desires that the Government relax all regulatory control and that "self-Government of business does not mean business will be permitted to do those things which business can not do as well or better for itself than Government can do for it. If a greater measure of Government regulation than this is necessary for the public safety and welfare, and to prevent another world economic calamity, such Government regulation will be sought by the representatives of good business."

Mr. Roper advocated as an experiment to assure price increases following, rather than preceding, purchasing power, the setting up in NRA of a study to furnish the public information on extra costs. With such facts, Mr. Roper said, the purchasing public would be in position to protest unwarranted increases and "unite against exorbitant prices."

"It is equally important," said the Secretary, "that we select carefully our terms in defining conceptions of long-range planning and leadership. Wisdom suggests we look forward with open minds, willing to adjust to changes in conditions, rather than with a crystallized determination to preserve at all hazards the status of the past. Our planning studies must comprehend the consumer's psychology more than the producer's psychology. Plant capacity must be adjusted, not to what we wish to produce, but to what customers require and desire under their own conditions and ideals of civilization."

Says Plan for Future.

Terming the President's recovery program "the most important and far-reaching attempt in history to distribute the burden of recovery among all classes and thus apply coordinated and cooperative economic

Plot for Revolt Revealed in Spain

Uprising Aimed to Halt General Elections.

Madrid, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—A widespread plan for a revolutionary plot scheduled to take place prior to the general elections November 19 was disclosed by a cabinet official tonight. The minister said the plot was designed to prevent holding the parliamentary elections.

The government ordered the commander of the military region at Madrid to supress with force any attempted uprisings.

The government's spokesman said the alleged revolt plot had been reported to the authorities by several sergeants and corporals in the loyal army. The plotters were understood to be using the name of Largo Caballero, Socialist leader, but the authorities were uncertain whether he was actually involved.

"The whole nation was plunged into mourning for the beloved king and unanimously declared allegiance to a new monarch, Mohamed Zahir Shah, son of the slain ruler.

"Afghanistan is quiet internally."

U. S. to Rule Rum Traffic In Rigid Code

Wallace Will Draft Terms Under Instructions of President.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Although the eighteenth amendment will be repealed December 5 and the liquor problem returned to that day to the States, the Federal Government intends, at least for sometime, to exercise a rigid measure of control over the alcohol traffic through the application of an A. A. A. code for breweries and distilleries, it became evident yesterday.

At the direction of President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, before repeal becomes effective, will draw up for the beer, wine and whisky business a code designed to regulate the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors and the elimination of unfair competition—such as the bootlegger—under the authority he has to prescribe regulations for all handlers or processors of foodstuffs. Mr. Wallace may license the entire liquor traffic, if he desires.

Conference Friday.

This became known yesterday after farm administrators announced they had established a "beverage section" of the A. A. A., with Harris E. Willingham, of Atlanta, at its head. The purpose of this section will be to take charge of the drafting and administration of a code or codes for the beer, wine and whisky industries.

Earlier in the day President Roosevelt announced that on Friday he would confer with representatives of the State, Treasury, Agricultural, Justice and Commerce departments to formulate the course which the Federal Government will follow after repeal becomes effective. The plan to put liquor control under the A. A. A. may be announced at that time.

With repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the belief prevailed that the only control which the Federal Government could exercise over the liquor traffic would be through taxation, except in Federal territories, such as the District of Columbia. But the powers of the Government under the Agricultural Adjustment and the National Recovery Acts were overlooked in this regard.

There is no doubt that the President and his aids intend to invoke this power. How far they will go, however, has not been disclosed. But if they wish they may fix prices; forbid breweries and distilleries to have a financial interest in retail outlets for their products; require retailers to observe closing hours; prohibit sales to minors and in general prescribe their method of doing business—all in the name of "fair competition."

In order to make such regulations

Query Shows Chase Loans To Al Smith

Syndicate Account Also Said to Involve Raskob, Davis.

Evidence of several hundred thousand dollars in Chase National Bank loans to Alfred E. Smith and several associates, yesterday was in possession of the Senate Banking Committee, which will resume stock market hearings at 10 o'clock this morning.

Harry F. Sinclair, oil operator, and Arthur Cutten, stock market trader, were to appear when the committee convenes. Lacking returns on their subpenas, Albert H. Wiggin, retired Chase board chairman, will take the stand.

A $336,000 loan to former Gov. Smith, and others, uncovered by investigators, was said yesterday to involve a syndicate securities account engaged in just after the 1929 market crash.

Raskob Also Named.

Participants in the account were said to include John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic National committee; Arthur Lehman, brother of the New York governor, and Norman H. Davis, the President's ambassador at large.

Chairman Fletcher expressed doubt last night that Smith or the others would be called before the committee. Details of the syndicate account have not yet been made part of the record. When submitted, it will mark the first time Smith's name has been mentioned in the Senate's stock market inquiry. Raskob and Davis had been named in connection with other transactions.

Quiz on Big Oil Pool.

Sinclair and Cutten are to be questioned about a 1929 pool in Sinclair Consolidated oil stock, which netted participants $12,000,000. The huge pool closed the day after Sinclair went to jail for contempt of the Senate in the Teapot Dome oil conspiracy case, May 7, 1929.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, who has returned from New York, where he unsuccessfully ran for district attorney of Manhattan, will take up the inquiry where he left off last Thursday, when hearings recessed.

Smith Explains Loans.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith declared in a statement tonight that a syndicate composed only of directors of the County Trust Co., of which he is chairman of the board, borrowed money in 1929 simply "to buy the stock of our own trust company."

He emphatically denied any implication that the money was borrowed "to gamble in the stock market," and said the loans had been repaid in full.

Until today, he said, neither he nor any other member of the syndicate had known that the Chase National Bank participated in the loans.

Hitler Celebrates in Cellar Where "Putsch" Started in '23

Munich, Germany, Nov. 8 (AP).—In the same historic beer cellar in which started a decade ago Adolph Hitler's ill-starred "beer putsch," the chancellor tonight greeted comrades who were made blood brothers by machine-guns which slew 16 of them on November 10, 1923.

Herman Wilhelm Goering, one of those wounded and others who were jailed with the leader, gazed silently into beer mugs as Hitler recounted his stony path from cellar to chancellery.

Munich tonight cheered those whom it once jeered, as leaders strode to the cellar.

A concert built around two simple movements, the shuffle of tramping feet and the rattle of machine-gun fire was a part of the ceremony.

As a prelude to the exercises, banners of nine free lance patriotic bands were handed to Capt. Ernest Roehm, commander of the Nazi storm troops.

The putsch, although abortive, now is celebrated as the starting point of a national revival under Nazi leadership.

3 Important Forts Seized by Rebels

Havana Expects More Fighting as Dissident Forces Gather.

Havana, Nov. 8 (AP).—A state of war existed throughout Cuba tonight, proclaimed by President Grau San Martin after a vicious army and civilian rebellion, 20 hours old, had killed an estimated 52 persons and wounded 183 others.

Tonight came reports from Matanzas, just east of Havana, that almost the whole of Mantanzas Province had joined the uprising and that the A B C Secret Society had captured the town of Bejucal.

Previous reports said the movement had spread to Santiago and that former army and navy officers from the Isle of Pines prison were prepared to march on the capital.

Rebels Repelled Twice.

A lull in the day-long fierce fighting brought ghostly silence to Havana as night fell, but further clashes were regarded as inevitable. Both sides claimed advantage in the sharp struggle that began at 2:35 a. m.

Twice the forces of Fulgencio Batista, army chief of staff, repelled the rebels, including soldiers and members of the A B C, who sought the return of former President Manuel de Cespedes.

Rebel troops took possession of three important fortresses, San Ambrosio, Dragones and Atares, placing in each nearly a thousand well-armed dissidents. A sharp battle with gunboats in Havana Harbor ensued.

Official reserve shrouded the condition of the gunboats Cuba and Patria after the engagement, but it was said in shipping circles the vessels were in bad shape. Gunners at Atares Fortress claimed they were both in near sinking condition. Harbor police said they were "badly damaged."

Grau also ordered court-martial of any "newspaper director who publishes news of an alarming nature."

Automobiles filled with armed A B C members and rebel soldiers rushed madly through the almost deserted streets and drew the fire of loyalists lying in the grass in public parks.

Clanging ambulances speeded through the streets as frightened Cubans peeped through heavily shuttered windows, anxiously seeking information regarding the battle's progress.

The greatest confusion reigned among policemen, who apparently did not know whom they were fighting, since it was difficult to distinguish friend from enemy.

An American, Ed Miller, official

Parents and Another Child Injured When Home Burns.

Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 8 (AP). Five children were burned to death and their parents and another child were injured when a house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Pete, in Trumbull County, burned today.

The dead: Victoria Pete, 6; Dan, 5; George, 3; Joe 1½, and an infant. Mr. and Mrs. Pete and their son, John, jr., were brought to a hospital here, suffering from burns.

Firemen said they thought an explosion had preceded the blaze.

Physicians said Mrs. Pete probably would not recover.

Forest, Miss., Nov. 8 (AP). — A boiler explosion, which wrecked the interior of the Forest Consolidated School here today, took the life of one child and injured eight others, one probably fatally.

The blast, attributed to an overheated water tank, occurred shortly after 9 a. m., with approximately 400 students in the building.

Revolt Spirit Shown in City Election Vote

"Ins" Overthrown in Most of Contests; Relief Bonds Carry.

While Democrat and Republican alike found little cause for rejoicing in the scores of minor victories and defeats in Tuesday's balloting, the "forgotten man" yesterday loomed as the principal gainer—by more than a hundred million in bond issues for public works.

Democrats, saddened by the loss of New York City, pointed to the unhorsing of Republicans in dozens of cities, but had little grounds for celebration. Republicans, hoping to rebuild a party on the New York victory, saw many strongholds slip to the enemy. Said William S. Vare, explaining his defeat in Philadelphia:

"I guess after all I helped to select the wrong man for President when I nominated Herbert Hoover."

Continuation of Revolt.

Others construed the minor elections to indicate a continuation of last year's revolt against those in power. Formerly powerful politicians found their machines smashed for the time being at least in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, New York, Boston, Rochester, Buffalo and Cleveland.

Tammany surrendered control of New York by more than 250,000 to the Fusion candidate, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, while Mayor John O'Brien ran third. It retained only the presidency of the Manhattan borough and the district attorneyship of New York County, where the Senate Banking Committee's counsel, Ferdinand Pecora, was third.

Associated Press reports also showed LaGuardia carried every borough, including the Bronx, home of Joseph V. McKee, recovery candidate; John H. McCooey, the Broklyn leader, failed to carry his own district; Fusionists elected 13 out of 16 members of the board of estimate; and Postmaster General Farley failed to swing the New York assembly to the Democrats.

The O'Connell organization of Albany proved an exception to the overthrows, reelecting Mayor John Boyd Thacher 2d, over a Fusionist. Rochester and Buffalo both went Democratic, the former for the first time in 30 years, the latter since 1914.

Mellon Candidate Loses.

While the Vare machine was taking its worst licking in Philadelphia, William McNair, young Democrat, whipped John S. Herron, Republican, backed by the Mellons, in Pittsburgh, and won a favorable council. These defeats in Pennsylvania may lead to Gov. Pinchot's candidacy for the Senate against David Reed, it was reported. The governor is the enemy of both organizations.

Pennsylvania also added a Democrat to its Congressional delegation in the election of Oliver W. Frey, Allentown attorney, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Henry W. Watson. The Republicans had gone on record defaulting the office "so that the National Administration's efforts would not be unhampered." His election raised to 12 the number of Democrats in Pennsylvania's delegation of 34.

Fred Mansfield, Democratic lawyer, won by 2,000 over Malcolm Nichols, Republican, in Boston, while William Foley, indorsed by the Curley organization, was 7,000 votes behind. Democrats also apparently were successful in Louisville, where Neville Miller had an early lead on the Republican candidate, Dan M. Carrell.

Detroit chose Frank Couzens, the 31-year-old son of Senator Couzens, to be the youngest mayor in its history, while Dearborn elected Clyde Ford, cousin of the auto manufacturer. Detroit also approved a $87,000,000 subway proposal to be backed by Federal funds.

Relief Measures Voted.

The unemployed also had some consolation in a $25,00,000 bond issue for relief voted in Pennsylvania and $50,000,000 for soldiers' bonus. Other bond issues included: San Francisco, $20,500,000 for five projects aided by Federal funds; Camden, N. J., $10,000,000 for municipal light plant, and Columbus, Ohio, $1,000,000 to expand its light plant.

The count was against municipal operation of power plants, it appeared. Cities vetoing bond issues were San Francisco, $6,308,000 for sale of electric power; Youngstown, $500,000 to buy distributing system; Washington Courthouse, Ohio, $300,000 for municipal water works; Salt Lake City, $18,000,000 for power plant. Others turning down plans for municipal operation of plants were Cincinnati and Akron, Ohio, and Tyrone, Pa.

Ohio not only voted for repeal, but also swept State prohibition from its statutes, and went overwhelmingly for an old-age pension system. Pennsylvania, authorizing 11 constitutional amendments, also repealed its 137-year-old blue laws, allowing Sunday sports.

Official Accused In Bootleg Graft

Defendant Says He Paid for Protection.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Charles Altshuler, who pleaded guilty in the Delaware County liquor conspiracy case, today identified Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, as one of those whom he paid "protection" while a bootlegger.

White's name appeared as indorser on certain checks among batches which the witness said represented payments for "protection, liquor and gambling."

Chet A. Keyes, special assistant attorney general, said the checks totaled $100,000.

Nemesis of "Hall" Crowd Shows Fatigue in Victory.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Samuel Seabury, Scottish inquisitor from a clan of evangelists and father of the successful fusion movement here, was tired but jubilant today. At his feet lay the Tammany Tiger he stalked from Manhattan to Albany and back.

On the mayoral pedestal stood Fiorello LaGuardia, whose campaign Judge Seabury espoused in daily speeches.

"All those interested in the cause of good municipal government are to be congratulated upon the magnificent results achieved yesterday at the polls." The inquisitor spoke softly—he was fatigued.

The road he's traveled as a political evangelist has been uphill all the way.

Family of Preachers.

Judge Seabury came from five generations of preaching Seaburys and gained his title of inquisitor by disciplining such men as William Travers Jerome and former Mayor James J. Walker.

He was born in 1873 in a parish house here. His family came from Scotland, and one of his ancestors was the first Episcopal bishop in America.

Judge Seabury entered politics when he was 28 and was elected justice of the city court. He once ordered Jerome from his court. In 1900, he was elevated to the Supreme Court.

Sixteen years later he sought the governorship under the Democratic standard. Tammany forsook him and he was defeated. He retired. But in 1930 he was made referee for the appellate division's inquiry into the city's minor courts.

Scourge of Tammany.

Judge Seabury—he is 6 feet tall and his white hair lays unruffled across his high forehead—became the scourage of Tammany in 1932 when he was made counsel for the Hofstadter legislative committee.

His work reached a climax with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's hearing of removal charges against Mayor Walker, and the latter's subsequent resignation.

Philippine University President Resigns

Manila, P. I., Nov. 8 (AP).—Rafael Palma, for 11 years president of the University of the Philippines, resigned, effective January 1.

Dr. Fernando Calderon, dean of the college of medicine and director of the Philippine General Hospital, was appointed acting head of the school.

U. S. Plans Liquor Traffic Control Under Rigid Code

as are prescribed effective Mr. Wallace may require every manufacturer and dealer in alcoholic liquor to obtain a license from him. Those failing to get a license, if this is made necessary, will be subject to a fine of $500 a day for every day they do business without a license. Violators of the regulations will be subject to fines and jail sentences.

Desiring to get the illicit manufacturer, bootlegger and speakeasy out of business as quickly as possible, it is expected that the brewers, distillers and retail liquor dealers will welcome the imposition of an AAA code on them. Such codes, however, also will undertake to protect dry States against liquor importations from wet States through voluntary agreements.

All doubt that the eighteenth amendment would become invalid on December 5 disappeared when the Kentucky ballot boxes were opened today. As the count progressed the wets piled up a steady lead. With the count almost completed in Utah, the repeal amendment had been ratified by a margin of slightly less than 40,000 votes.

37 Vote for Repeal.

These two States, with Ohio and Pennsylvania which on Tuesday gave overwhelming majorities for prohibition repeal, made a total of 37 States to ratify the twenty-first or repeal amendment. Only the two Carolinas gave dry majorities, both on Tuesday. It now appears that the ratification of Maine, which voted some weeks ago, but which will not hold its Constitutional Convention until December 6, will not be necessary for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

As it became certain that National prohibition would end on December 5—13 years 11 months and 11 days after it became effective—interest centered on steps that would be taken for future control of the liquor business and on its effect on the economic conditions of the country.

Although no definite figures were available, the belief prevailed that the return of legal liquor would create thousands of jobs for unemployed men and women, result in millions of dollars of new construction of distilleries, wineries, warehouses and places for sale and increase Federal and State revenues, with a lightening of taxes in other quarters, by several hundred millions of dollars annually.

In Administration quarters the hope prevailed that the commercial stimulus resulting from the legalization of the liquor industry would jolt the country out of its present economic coma and start prices and business activity moving upward again.

Control Laws Enacted

Liquor will become legal in at least 19 States on the day of prohibition repeal. In ten of these States new liquor control laws, effective when National prohibition becomes invalid, recently have been enacted. In the other nine States calls either have gone out for special sessions of the legislature, will go out in a day or two or commissions are at work to formulate control legislation.

In nearby Maryland the legislature will be called to convene during the week of November 19 to pass liquor control and tax levies.

There are 16 States where statutory prohibition now exists. Of this number the Iowa, Misouri and Massachusetts legislatures are now in session to repeal their laws and set up liquor control acts. Michigan and Minnesota legislatures will meet later this year for the same purpose. In Virginia the legislature in January will repeal its State prohibition law and enact a control measure in response to the mandate of the voters on October 3.

In 13 States there was prior to yesterday constitutional prohibition. The voters in Ohio and Utah on Tuesday repealed the prohibition section of their constitutions. The Ohio legislature will meet next month to make the action of the voters effective and to devise control legislation. The voters will be given an opportunity to vote on eliminating prohibition from their constitutions in a number of other States within the next year.

Tax to Be Considered.

Meanwhile the question of revising the Federal liquor taxes will be considered at the President's conference on Friday and by a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee now holding executive sessions on that question. The Federal tax on whisky after December 5 will be $1.10 a gallon and the plan is to revise that figure upward.

In taxing liquor the Federal Government's chief objective will be to raise as much revenue as possible, but at the same time there is no desire to make the tax so high that bootlegging will continue to thrive. A tax as high as $5 and $6 a gallon on whisky has been proposed, but have not won general support.

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, father of the eighteenth amendment, in describing the repeal of prohibition as "only a temporary setback," said the dry fight would be continued with efforts to make the taxes as high as possible.

In Congress last year it was contended that the Federal Government could obtain from $700,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 from legal beer, wine and distilled liquors. But Government statisticians are doubtful whether such revenue is possible. In 1919, the last year before prohibition, internal revenue receipts from beer and liquor taxes totaled $483,000,000. But due to wartime prohibition consumption that year was not at its peak.

Consumption Estimates.

Recent estimates of possible consumption of whisky—the chief revenue producer—have been as high as 100,000,000, with consumption of other distilled liquors bringing the total higher during the next year. Thus to raise $500,000,000 in revenue from whisky, the tax would have to be $5 a gallon.

President Roosevelt has on his desk a voluminous report prepared by a committee of Treasury experts on the subject of taxation. What rates are proposed have not been revealed. But it is known that the President fears taxes too high might result in less revenue due to bootlegging.

Another problem facing President Roosevelt resulted from a demand yesterday that he pardon all persons in Federal prisons serving terms for liquor law violations. The demand came from Representative McLeod (Dem. Mich.) who, in a letter to President Roosevelt, pointed out that George Washington, John Adams, James Madison, Abraham Lincoln and Benjamin Harrison, when they were in the White House, on occasions issued general pardon or amnesty proclamations for the benefit of persons convicted of various offenses.

He asked that Mr. Roosevelt take such action in respect to all liquor law violators, first, in response to the "striking demonstration of disapproval" registered by the country against prohibition, and secondly, as a measure of economy, since the Federal budget would be lightened by the release of thousands of persons now imprisoned.

Bureau Merger Likely.

Probably the first step that will be taken by the Federal Government will be to merge the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol with the Internal Revenue Bureau. This change has been provided for but has not been made effective. Dr. James M. Moran, former Prohibition Commissioner, will head the new liquor section in the Revenue Bureau.

Although the twenty-first amendment is chiefly regarded as repealing the eighteenth amendment, it will do more than that when ratified. It also will give the Federal Government constitutional power to prohibit "the transportation into any State, Territory or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof."

There remains on the Federal statute books the Webb-Kenyon act, passed in 1913 over the veto of former President Taft, which, in effect, carries out this constitutional power. It is expected the Justice Department will undertake to enforce this act after December 5. Any question of its validity in view of the adoption of the twenty-first amendment has now been dispelled.

New Pittsburgh Mayor Won On 'No Jobs' Plank

McNair "Man Who Beat Mellon," Does Own Office Work.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 8 (AP).—A rather lanky, middle-aged man sat in a cubbyhole of an office in a downtown business building today painstakingly pecking an aged typewriter.

Awed groups drifted past the door occasionally, peered in and then whispered among themselves:

"That's the man who beat Mellon."

William Nissley McNair, a Roosevelt Democrat, had just wrested the Pittsburgh mayoralty crown from John S. Herron, known as a Mellon Republican, in one of the most hotly contested city battles in a quarter of a century, but there he sat in his musty little law office at 9:30 a. m.

Has No Office Help.

The mayor-elect remained at his modest desk most of the day, manipulating the typewriter, answering the telephone and doing all the other tasks reserved for a barrister who has neither a secretary nor a stenographer. He paid little attention to passersby, but occasionally did leave his seat to shake hands with close friends and well-wishers.

McNair campaigned with the Roosevelt "new deal" motto and an "I promise no jobs if elected" by-words.

He also lambasted utilities, decried what he described as "a political alliance" between State Senator James J. Coyne and Andrew Mellon, the banker, and advocated a 5-cent street car fare.

A joking attempt to put this last section of his platform into effect on the trolley car he habitually rides downtown to work—he has no automobile—didn't work so well.

Full Fare Demanded.

"No, no, Mr. McNair," said the trainman, "you'll have to come across with a token (they are three for 25 cents). You're not in office yet."

The lawyer was born in Hummelstown, Pa., and was educated at Gettysburg College and the Michigan Law School. He is 53, married and the father of two daughters, one 9 and the other 12.

He never has held public office before.

He was defeated for mayor in 1921 and made an unsuccessful race against David A. Reed for the U. S. Senate in 1928.

Friends chide him occasionally because of the poor showing he made on these occasions and today one of them asked:

"Say, Mac, ever run for office before?"

The first Democratic mayor-elect Pittsburgh has had since 1906 smiled broadly and replied:

"Plenty of times—and you know it."

Offers Exceed Bonds 3 Times

Acheson Announces Huge Oversubscription to Long Term Paper.

Popular response to the recent long-term Government financing program resulted in the bond offer being oversubscribed nearly four times, Acting Secretary of Treasury Acheson reported last night.

Cash subscriptions for the bonds, maturing in 12 years, but callable in 10, totaled $1,989,024,000. The offer was only $500,421,650. Interest is 4¼ per cent for the first year and 3¼ per cent thereafter.

These subscriptions, it was explained, are separate from those made through exchange of fourth Liberty loan bonds for the new issue. Exchange privileges are still open and $867,500,000 in Libertys have been turned in for the long-term bonds.

Out of the total fourth Liberty issue of over six billions, the Treasury on October 15 called $1,870,000,000 as of next April 15, when interest will cease.

Police Arrest 4 In 2 Kidnapings

Pair Lost $130,000; One Was Abducted Twice.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Police announced tonight the arrest of four men in the kidnaping of James Hackett, of Blue Island, Ill., and John J. Lynch, the latter an official of the General News Bureau, a racing publication syndicate.

Hackett was kidnaped more than a year ago and was released after paying $75,000 ransom. He was abducted a second time recently, the extortionists obtaining $5,000. Police say Lynch was victimized for $50,000.

98 Democrats Win in Virginia Delegates Race

Later Returns Confirm Landslide for Party in State Vote.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—Democrats, swept into State offices with a general election landslide vote, today held to their wide margins of victory with scattered returns reported from remote precincts.

With a United States senator, governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general, the Democrats elected 98 of the 100 members of the House of Delegates in yesterday's voting.

Unofficial returns from 1,375 of the State's 1,690 precincts gave Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), 102,541 votes for United States Senate, and Maj. Henry A. Wise (Republican), 42,419; George C. Peery (Democrat), 106,525 for governor, and Fred W. McWane (Republican), 39,153; 1,326 precincts gave James H. Price (Democrat), 101,518 for lieutenant governor, and J. Powell Royall (Republican), 29,552; John R. Saunders (Democrat), 99,497 for attorney general, and Clarence R. Ahalt (Republican), 29,791.

Socialist Vote Light.

There was a scattered vote for several Socialist and independent candidates.

Senator Byrd was elected to complete the unexpired term of Claude A. Swanson, who resigned to become Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Peery will succeed Gov. John Garland Pollard, Democrat, who, under the constitution of Virginia, can not succeed himself. Lieut. Gov. Price and Attorney General Saunders are incumbents.

Joseph C. Hutcheson, Republican incumbent for the House of Delegates, was reelected from Shenandoah County, defeating H. B. Chapman, Democrat.

Fifty-eight of the Democrats were elected without opposition.

Inquiry Is Permanent In Prosecutor's Death

Peru, Ind., Nov. 8 (AP).—A verdict that would permit reopening of the investigation at any time was returned today in the death of Prosecutor Harvey W. Hartley, found with his skull crushed in an alley near the City Hall.

Coroner A. S. Newell held the prosecutor's death was "probably accidental," but left the case open to further inquiry because it was learned Hartley had employed a body guard.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Booth Tarkington, Indiana novelist, will receive the gold medal of the National Institute of Arts and Letters tomorrow for "excellence of his life work in fiction."

The medal, awarded annually, is given in the fiction field every eight years. The two previous fiction awards went to William Dean Howells in 1915 and Edith Wharton in 1924.

Pennsylvania G. O. P. Losses Laid to Hoover

Vare Blames Organization Wreck on Former President.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Pennsylvia's voters have handed regular Republicans a trouncing second only to the State's nearly 4-to-1 repudiation of prohibition.

The Vare stronghold in Philadelphia and the Mellon fortress in Pittsburgh crumpled beneath the onslaught of Democratic and Independent ballots cast in yesterday's election.

Wiliam S. Vare, Republican National committeeman, leader of the Philadelphia organization, today passed the blame to Herbert Hoover.

Boarding a train for his winter home at St. Lucie, Fla., Vare said:

"I guess, after all, I helped to select the wrong man for President of the United States when I nominated Herbert Hoover."

Landslide for Repeal.

Ballots a yard long—as many as five ballots in some communities—were no help to speedy counting of the returns, but in most cases there was no question how the electorate felt.

Returns from 6,349 of the State's 7,925 election districts gave 1,461,910 for and 458,135 against repeal.

In Philadelphia, Fusion candidates of the Democratic and Town Meeting parties defeated the organization Republican nominees by pluralities as high as 80,000. Will B. Hadley beat Bernard Samuel for city treasurer, and S. Davis Wilson outstripped Chester N. Farr for controller.

13 of 67 Counties Dry.

Philadelphia favored repeal 8 to 1, casting 421,321 votes for the 15 wet delegates to a State ratification convention December 5. The dry candidates received 53,004. Latest figures showed drys leading in only 13 of 67 counties, and in 1 of them by only 13 votes.

Riding an unexpected tide of Democratic votes, William N. McNair swept over the Republican breastworks in Pittsburgh and was elected the city's first Democratic mayor since 1905. He polled 102,658 votes as compared to 75,304 by John S. Herron, Republican incumbent backed by the Mellon organization. The Democratic council slate of five candidates was also elected.

Sunday sports was approved in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County by more than 10 to 1 while the district voted better than 5 to 1 in favor of repeal.

Eleven of the 12 constitutional amendments apparently were approved, including one to permit the Commonwealth to borrow $50,000,000 for a soldiers' bonus. It has been estimated this sum would provide an average payment of $140 to each of the State's World War veterans.

Approval was given proposals to borrow $25,000,000 for unemployment relief, pay pensions to the blind and create a "Greater Pittsburg."

Ban of Waste, Graft Pledged By LaGuardia

New York's Mayor-Elect Says Tammany Fight Will Continue.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Mayor-elect Fiorello H. LaGuardia, riding the crest of a political revolution, tonight declared he would continue to battle Tammany Hall's "patronage and plunder."

Thrust into the city hall by an aroused electorate amid rioting and disorder, LaGuardia, fusion's fighting champion, promised an administration for the next four years that he said would set a model for every city in the Nation.

"It will be my effort to give to New York City a civic administration so efficient and free from graft, sinecures and wastefulness as to set a model for every city in the Nation," he said.

Promises Orderly Elections.

Smiling and appearing fresh despite the ordeal of election day, LaGuardia asserted there would be no disorder when another election day comes around.

The board of aldermen must go, he said. A new city charter will reorganize the city's complicated government. Expenditures will be cut to the bone. All that he promised the electorate in a single breath.

Tammany Hall held control of the board of aldermen despite fusion inroads. Fusion elected 17 of the 65 members. Heretofore, there was only one anti-Tammany vote.

"It is gratifying to have a fusion board of estimate, and, although we are disappointed about the result for the Manhattan Borough presidency, we have a safe working majority," said LaGuardia.

Fusion captured 13 of the 16 votes in the powerful board of estimate, controlling the city's purse strings. It lost only the president of the Borough of Manhattan to Tammany and the Bronx president to the ticket headed by Joseph V. McKee, who ran second to LaGuardia.

Curry Assails Farley.

Abandoning a personal reserve that has characterized his dominance of Tammany, John F. Curry issued a statement in which he assailed Postmaster General James A. Farley who, with Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader, backed McKee.

"The election shows clearly that New York remains a Democratic city," he said. "It took the efforts of the chairman and the State committees of the Democratic party to disrupt democracy, not only by causing the loss of the city-wide ticket but by turning the control of the Assembly over to the Republicans.

"For that action he and those who acted in concert with him can not remain in office if the party is to look for victory in the State and congressional elections next fall."

Curry's political future hangs in the balance. So does that of Tammany's chief ally, John H. McCooey, who lost every important office in Brooklyn before the fusion sweep. Indications were a concerted drive would be undertaken by some Tammany district leaders, dissatisfied with his regime, to oust Curry.

Saved Prosecutor Post.

Out of the fusion sweep, Tammany saved the office of district attorney, always regarded by the Hall as one of the most important in any election. William C. Dodge defeated Ferdinand Pecora, the McKee candidate, and Jacob B. Schurman, fusion nominee. Tammany also reelected Samuel Levy, borough president of Manhattan, and the New York County ticket.

Justice Frederick Kernochan, close personal friend of President Roosevelt, who ran on the fusion ticket, was defeated for election to general sessions court by a Tammany man, Owen B. Bohen.

Meanwhile, reports spread that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and John J. Hoey, his floor manager in the 1924 and 1928 Democratic National conventions, would be asked to resign their memberships in Tammany.

Smith, backed by Tammany against President Roosevelt for the Democratic Presidential nomination in Chicago last year, refused to declare for Mayor O'Brien, and Hoey ran on the McKee ticket for president of the Borough of Manhattan.

Afghan King Slain; Son, 19, Is Crowned

Amanullah, who was forced to abdicate early in 1929 because of opposition among certain Afghan tribes to his attempts to westernize the nation.

After Amanullah's abdication Bachiasaqao, a usurer, assumed power, but was quickly overthrown by Nadir Shah.

Nadir Shah was 51 years old and won his throne in October 17, 1929, by election following the abdiction of the former king, Amanaullah, who was his nephew and whom he had served as foreign minister. Manaullah fled to Italy.

His reign was turbulent in its beginning. Two other men tried to usurp the throne between the time Abdullah quit and Nadir Shah assumed the crown.

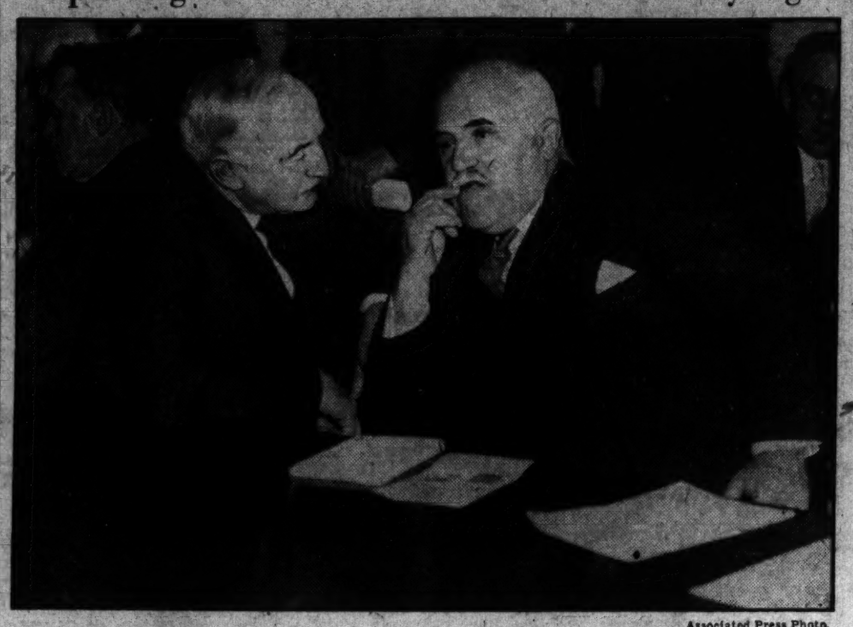

King Nadir Shah tried to improve agricultural and commercial methods in his kingdom. He initiated the construction of a trunk line railroad and built roads and bridges.

The British government was known to be interested in his work, for Afghanistan is the buffer state between Soviet Russia and British India.

Despite his royal position, King Nadir Shah had to rise to that rank from comparative obscurity. He was born Mohammed Yusuf Khan and was educated in a village school in the small hill station of Dehra Dun.

When Abdullah made himself king, he sent Nadir Shah, then an emir, to France as minister The two were regarded as close friends and when his nephew quit the throne Nadir Shah returned from France, raised an army and restored the government to the family.

Kentucky Vote Favors Repeal, Tax Removal

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8 (AP).—Repeal of the eighteenth amendment and approval of a State amendment authorizing the Legislature to remove the State real estate tax continued to lead as returns from yesterday's elections in Kentucky came in tonight.

As the tabulation proceeded, the State counted its election-day deaths from violence at 16. The count, started this morning, probably will not be completed before next week, as no tabulating can be done Saturday, Armistice Day, under a ruling from the State attorney general.

Reports from 784 of Kentucky's 4,204 precincts showed 64,121 votes for repeal and 47,055 against in Tuesday's election. In Jefferson County (Louisville), reports from 35 of the 636 precincts showed 5,348 for repeal and 373 against.

An amendment to the constitution to enable the Legislature to remove the State tax on real estate was leading 23,232 to 18,804, with 630 precincts counted.

The repeal lead would not, however, remove the State from dry ranks.

Medicinal Liquor Allowed

A State prohibition amendment can not be repealed before the November, 1935, election, although manufacture, transportation and sale of whisky for medicinal purposes would be permitted under State law as soon as Federal repeal is a fact.

Local elections and contests for 19 Senatorial and 100 House of Representative seats also were held Tuesday. Democrats are assured of controlling the Senate and took 40 House seats without contests, making them virtually certain of their usual majority in the Legislature.

Returns from 58 of Louisville's 563 precincts tabulated tonight gave Neville Miller, Democrat, a 6,080 to 4,895 lead over Col. Dan M. Carrell, Republican, in the race for mayor.

15 Deaths Scattered.

The 15 slayings that marked Kentucky's spirited balloting were scattered. Not all were attributed to the election.

The victims were:

Harlan County—Z. B. Blanton, 56; John Blanton, 24; Jesse Blanton, 26; H. H. Hensley, 57, and Zach Hensley, 25, fatally shot in an election row in the Layman district; and G. L. Smoot, 25, Negro, killed in an election argument at Black Mountain.

Knott County—Ballard and Orville Hall and a man named Mullins, shot fatally in dispute blamed on election.

Floyd County—Arthur Thompson killed and two other men wounded in fight not believed connected with election; Dennis Spears, 18, shot to death, and another man stabbed in nonelection quarrel; another man was wounded critically in a third disturbance.

Butler County—Hobart Burden, 28, shot to death at Oak Ridge precinct.

Carter County—Otto Ramey, 22, shot fatally at voting place in Carter City.

Bell County—Hannibal Sharp, 38, Negro, killed and another man wounded in election quarrel at Middlesboro.

of the Cuban Telephone Co., was taking pictures from the roof of the telephone building when he was threatened by soldiers, stationed on a nearby roof, who pointed a gun at him.

President Ramon Grau San Martin remained in his apartments in the presidential palace, which was attacked unsuccessfully earlier today as Col. Batista assumed personal command of the troops.

American property was not attacked, except for the sizure by a group of soldiers of an automobile belonging to a Spanish employe of an American and shots fired on the American Club by soldiers. Both incidents were reported to American Ambassador Sumner Welles.

Interior Is Isolated.

All telephone communications with the interior were broken off late today.

Reports from Cardenas said Lieut. Guillermo Martull, leader of the rebellion, whose flight from Camp Columbia before dawn signalized the beginning of the movement, had crashed, but that his fate was not known.

Another rebel plane, one of 10 claimed by Martull, fell into the sea 60 miles northwest of Key West, but was picked up by the steamer Western Sword. It carried Flight Lieut. Aristides Aguero and the mechanic, Ramon Hernandez, both rebels.

Dispatches from Santiago said military authorities had taken over the provincial government and that soldiers had remained loyal.

Homes of leading A B C members were searched and more than 100 were arrested.

Military censorship was established throughout the province of Oriente.

Ship Attack Halted.

As darkness approached, San Ambrosio was attacked from land and sea. The rebels continued sniping from roof tops and speeding automobiles at the loyal troops.

Eyewitness reports said the gunboats Cuba and Patria were forced to retire from the bombardment, apparently badly damaged by the heavy artillery fire from San Ambrosio and Atares.

American destroyers in Havana Bay moved out of the danger zone at full speed.

Rumors persisted that members of the A B C Society were ready to destroy American property if the revolution failed, in an effort to provoke American intervention.

The Ward liner Morro Castle sailed two hours before its scheduled departure this evening because its passengers were greatly alarmed at the turn of events.

Maj. Franco Granero, police chief, told the Associated Press that Santa Clara was quiet and that all troops there were loyal.

Governor Arrested.

Soldiers arrested Gov. Gabino Galvez of Santa Clara, Police Chief Domingo Cuchet and several A B C members, Franco said.

In other cities of Santa Clara Province, however, among them Caibarien, Camajuani and Vueltas, a strong revolutionary movement was reported. It was said an expeditionary force landed from the United States at Caibarien with arms and ammunition. It was reported these men were marching toward Santa Clara City.

It was reliably reported that Col. Batista had ordered the execution of several A B C members and rebel soldiers, as well as policemen.

Street Deserted.

A sudden lull in the fighting at Havana as night fell gave both sides a chance to check losses while preparing for further fighting.

Havana's streets were practically deserted. Commerce was at an absolute standstill.

The rebels were reported to be planning a reenactement of the air raids which broke the city's peace early this morning.

Col. Batista ordered all residents near San Ambrosio to evacuate, indicating that the government planned a violent attack on the rebel stronghold there.

At the same time the government forces were sweeping the Havana skies with searchlights ready to spot and do battle with rebel planes should they come over the city.

Lose Police Stations.

Although the rebels held the San Ambrosia, Atares and Dragones fortresses, they apparently had lost most or all of the police stations they previously captured.

The government was reported to have at least 700 leaders in prison and Batista was fighting with every indication that he hopes to wipe out the militant opposition once and for all.

Early tonight rebel leaders barricaded in San Ambrosia advised newspapermen they were prepared to resist any government attack. Apparently they were heartened by their success in repelling marine sallies from gunboats in the bay.

The San Ambrosia rebels are commanded by Rafael Iturraldei, former cabinet member under Machado, who later became a strong Machado foe, and Col. Rosendo Collazo.

planning," Mr. Roper said the program was not merely for the existing emergency, "but for the purpose of creating safe conditions for the future.

In his address Mr. Richberg ridiculed "ignorant and careless men" who "talk glibly about the 'regimentation' of industry and describe an essentially democratic and individualist endeaver as the product of the socialistic doctrines of Karl Marx."

The President, he said, has no "affectionate sympathy" for Marxism. Gen. Johnson he termed "highly individualistic and competitive" in his theories of political economy.

"I shudder to think of his rage if he were ever to discover himself promoting state Socialism!" Mr. Richberg said.

"The National Recovery Administration is not seeking to establish a dictator or a group of dictators of industry, but is, in fact, moving in precisely the opposite direction.

Raps Dictator Idea.

"The Recovery Administration is seeking to establish such self-governing organizations of business men, as may prevent the rise of any more irresponsible dictators of industry such as those who guided the American people along the road to ruin in the years before 1929, and continued to lead them downward into the valleys of despair as long as their self-preserving powers survived and they could exercise bad judgment unrestrained by any first-class economic or political intelligence.

"The American people do not yearn for any more such dictators—neither petty autocrats in control of the lives and fortunes of communities nor industrial Caesars ruling the destiny of the Nation. They do not want any dictators, whether privately or publicly selected."

Mr. Richberg said he believed there was a "half-way house—a house of democratic cooperation and self-discipline—which lies between the anarchy of irresponsible individualism and tyranny of state Socialism."

Swope Council of 34.

Under the new Swope plan, the national council would be made up of 34 members, representing commerce, industry, agriculture, labor, transportation, the government, the general public and finance. Swope would apportion these members as follows:

Four members to be appointed by the National Chamber of Commerce and Industry, with the Secretary of Commerce either serving as a member on appointing one member.

Four members to be appointed by workers in commerce and industry through their national organizations; with the Secretary of Labor or her appointee serving as a member.

Four members to be appointed by the national agricultural organizations; with the Secretary of Agriculture or his appointee serving as a member.

Four members to be appointed by transportation interests, and four by workers in the transportation field, with the Federal coordinator of transportation and the Interstate Commerce Commission appointing one member each.

Four members to be elected by the Federal Reserve Banks, with either the Secretary of the Treasury or the governor of the Federal Reserve Board serving as a member, or appointing one.

The President would appoint five members, representing the public at large.

State Dry Law Also Loses by 671,445 as Old Age Pension Landslides.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8 (AP).—The margin of Ohio's repealist victory reached a final total of 853,210 today as the Buckeye State concluded the story of her protest against prohibition.

The complete unofficial totals for the State's 8,585 precincts showed for repeal of the eighteenth amendment: 1,428,255, against 576,942. This majority for National repeal compared with a 671,445 repealist victory on State constitutional prohibition. The vote on this issue was: Yes, 1,245,186; no, 573,741.

Outdistancing both issues, however, was the proposal to establish an old age pension system in Ohio, under which natives of the United States who have lived in Ohio 15 years or more and at the age of 65 have a private income not to exceed $300 a year will receive a pension of $25 a month.

The pension proposal received a majority of 860,052 votes with the "yes" total 1,386,107 and the "no" 526,055.

The proposal to reduce the tax limit on real estate and tangible property from 15 to 10 mills, won 674,665 to 658,901.

A county home rule proposition that would permit counties to adopt any type of government they desired and take over affairs of villages and townships, received the smallest margin of: Yes, 647,000; no, 737,586.

Trade Slumps as Price Level Rises, Commerce Data Show

Under the heading, "Commodity Prices," the survey said:

"Retail prices apparently have tended to advance faster than wholesale prices, a reflection of the rising costs of distribution as well as of the increased prices in primary markets. Farm prices were unchanged between September 15 and October 15. The cost of living has continued to mount."

Then followed these statements:

"Wholesale prices advanced rapidly in the middle of September, but in the final week of the month and so far in October the movement has flattened."

"With the exception of dairy products and poultry and eggs, all groups contributed to the decline of 2.8 per cent in average farm prices in September."

"Most of the items entering the cost of living continued to move upward in September . . . The average rise for the month was 1.3 per cent, with rents advancing for the first time since 1930."

Below Seasonal Expectation.

The survey cited that domestic trade gains in September "were below seasonal expectations," and that the sales volume for that month "appears to be substantially lower than last year." It added:

"Considering the wide gains in purchasing power which have occurred in 12 months—wage payments to factory workers are estimated to have been 37 per cent higher this September than last—and, the efforts to stimulate consumer expenditures, the sales showing has been relatively unsatisfactory."

While the general tone of the survey is more cheerful than these excerpts suggest, since gains are cited in employment, wages and buying power, and in some lines, notably automobiles, the tenor of the review bears out the President's advisers, who have been telling him that uncertainty is the chief drawback of recovery now.

The survey notes the "irregular" nature of the stock and bond markets, exhibiting a "general tendency downward." It cites that "there was no close correlation between dollar exchange rates and security prices," which runs counter to the theory of the Presidential monetary advisers like Prof. George F. Warren, who inspired the current gold buying manipulations.

It cited also that excess reserves of member banks of the Federal Reserve System "had reached, roughly, $800,000,000," and it stressed the "continued inactivity of the capital markets * * *"

In this connection the survey notes that improvement in construction contracts awarded was mainly "the result of public works awards," the implication being that uncertainty still paralyzes private enterprise. Regarding transportation, the survey said: "Declining productive activity and lagging retail trade are reflected in the failure of carloadings to show the usual fall increase."

The only mention of NRA in the survey was relative to lumber production, in which connection it said: "Reflecting operations under the NRA code for the industry, employment and pay rolls increased in September, despite the slackening in production."

Slump Shown in Steel.

Finally, it noted that expected expansion in the iron and steel industries has "failed to materialize," that operations were "down to about 28 per cent of capacity" while "the pay roll was more than double the amount paid out six months ago." It said of textiles that employment and pay rolls "continued to expand in September notwithstanding a further drop in production," which had fallen to "one-fourth below the peak reached in June." It noted a decline in employment and pay rolls in the silk and rayon industries.

Secretary Roper is understood to be among those advisers who have cited these general factors to the President in urging him to turn from the present gold price experiments to a definite monetary policy that will end the uncertainty which, in their opinion, is reflected all through the financial and economic fabric. Many rumors are again current of impending further action, though the prophets are at sea over what to expect. They are merely agreed that the situation mirrored by the Department of Commerce is likely to result in adoption of a changed policy at the White House.

Senator's Son, 31, Is Youngest Detroit Mayor

Frank Couzens Elected by 65,000 Plurality Over Florist.

Detroit, Nov. 8 (AP).—The city's youngest mayor, 31-year-old Frank Couzens, known to Detroiters as "the chip off the old block," tonight followed in the footsteps of his millionaire father, United States Senator James Couzens, along Michigan's political highroads.

Elected mayor yesterday by a 65,000 plurality over Philip Breitmeyer, 69, florist, who was mayor when young Couzens entered grade school, the son of Michigan's independent senator has skipped only one of the positions held by his father, who was mayor 18 years ago.

He has been street railway commissioner, city plan commissioner, councilman. His father held these offices, but also was police commissioner.

Wealthy by inheritance, young Couzens scorned leisure, left college in his sophomore year, and took a job that required him to carry a lunch pail daily. He has been working daily ever since, rising to a partnership in a building business, then moving into politics where, he said, lay his life interest.

Shortly after he was elected president of the city council, Frank Murphy, then mayor, resigned to become Governor General of the Philippines. Couzens automatically became acting mayor, and resigned two months ago to campaign for election.

He is an Independent, like his father.

"I'm not stepping into my father's shoes," he said. "I'm mayor in my own right, and I'll run the office the way I want to."

Guilt in Bribe Case Is Denied By Countess

Accused Couple in Hush Money Trial on Stand as End Nears.

A District Supreme Court jury today probably will decide whether Countess Grace de Benque and George Gormley obtained $5,000 from Miss Louise Maret, coproprietor of a girl's finishing school, by false pretense.

The trial neared an end yesterday when the countess and Gormley took the witness stand to deny they had received any money from Miss Maret, or had threatened her with exposure after a man, posing as a policeman, questioned Miss Maret and Gormley as they sat in a parked car on the Brookeville road.

Gormley's explanation of the $5,000 note, which Miss Maret held, was that he had signed it as an accomodation to make the school books balance.

Countess Denies Bribe.

Cross-examination of Gormley will be started today.

Countess de Benque not only denied any knowledge of an actual or proposed bribe, but said she had never seen Miss Maret give Gormley money.

She recalled the two had come running into her house the night of October 8 with Miss Maret crying, "Something terrible has happened."

"After telling me the story of the incident, Miss Maret went over to Gormley, put her arms around him and said he would have to marry her," the countess testified.

"Romance a Bore," She Says.

She later explained she finally objected to meetings of Miss Maret and Gormley in her home, as she found "this romance to be a great bore."

Miss Maret previously testified the countess had agreed to advance $10,000 of a bribe to be paid the alleged policeman.

Under cross-examination the countess said she had been married three times. Her present husband, she added, is John Felix Detar de Banque, New York.

She also testified she introduced Gormley to Miss Maret and that she once had gone into bankruptcy.

The Federal Diary

REPEAL of pay cuts is not all that should be done by Congress for the Government worker, is the opinion of Representative Henry Ellenbogen (Democrat), Pennsylvania, as expressed to Luther S. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes.

BAKER.

"It is my opinion that the 15 per cent reduction will be cancelled in the coming session. But that is not all that is needed. A fair minimum salary, regardless of functions to be performed, must be secured for Federal employes," the member of Congress declared at a dinner, attended by more than 600 persons, in honor of Mr. Steward in Pittsburgh.

Government workers," Mr. Ellenbogen continued, "must be assured of a steady advancement within the service. I stress the need for support of the merit system. I also urge all Federal employes to join the National Federation of Federal Employes."

Representative Matthew A. Dunn (Democrat), Pennsylvania, also was a principal speaker. He pointed out that he was one of the members of Congress who spoke against the 15 per cent reduction on the floor of the House. He emphasized the necessity for 100 per cent organization.

"Anything I can do to get salaries increased, the N. F. F. E. may call on me to do," Mr. Dunn pledged.

Letters attesting sympathy with the N. F. F. E. program were read from Senator Davis, Representative Kelly and Representative Muldowney.

Drive Yielding Results.

This meeting and the pledges obtained there are samples of results being secured from the N. F. F. E. campaign throughout the country for the improvement of the status of the Federal employes during adjournment of Congress, Mr. Steward said yesterday.

The drive is based on the premise that friends can be won for the Federal employe through activities in home districts, the N. F. F. E. chief explained yesterday. For the past four months the N. F. F. E. unions in all States have been bringing facts and figures to the attention of members of Congress to show detrimental effects of the lower salaries and appropriations. It is part of the general course known as the educational drive, which gathered momentum after the Kansas City convention.

BECAUSE of the present unemployment situation, the Civil Service Commission announces it has extended from November 7 to November 30 the closing date for the receipt of applications for the stenographer and typist examination. However, the date affects only those who will have reached their fortieth, but not their fifty-third, birthday on November 30.

The Civil Service Commission will urge departments and independent establishments not to refuse to appoint certified eligibles merely on the ground of age.

Because many Government employes frequently participate in dramatic productions, a course in playwrighting and dramatic technique just announced by Derek Fox, Art League of Washington, will prove of interest.

The curricula includes seminars in theater-going and playwrighting. The former will provide lectures and discussions designed to make theater attendance more enjoyable. A survey will be made of the origin and development of farce, melodrama, comedy and tragedy. Modern methods of scenic design and construction, lighting, costuming, theater management and organization will be explained.

The seminar for writers will include weekly meetings devoted to lectures in dramtic technique, discussions and criticism of manuscripts, individual conferences to be held at the convenience of members, and a play-marketing service through one of the country's leading brokers.

Two More Favorable.

One senator and one representative have added their indorsement of repeal of the 15 per cent salary reduction, it was announced yesterday at American Federation of Government Employes headquarters by E. Claude Babcock, president.

Senator E. D. Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, wrote:

Representative Eugene B. Crowe (Democrat), Indiana, wrote:

"I will favor immediate elimination of the first pay cut just as soon as it is shown the finances of our Government is in such condition as to warrant same."

The score in Mr. Babcock's poll of Congress now stands:

Favorable, 137.
Evasive, 24.
Unfavorable, 2.

E. C. Babcock Renews Duel With Blanton

Tells Texan U. S. Should Not Be Forced to Pay Campaign Expense.

A letter of "friendly advice," dealing with salaries paid members of Congress, was sent to Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, yesterday by E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes.

"You permit one," Babcock contended, "by nature of your expressions and even by your exact statements, to draw the conclusion that you believe that a Congressman needs to have a higher salary because of his campaign expenses, which occur every two years.

"Now, I am sure you would not seriously advance the thought that the United States Government and the taxpayers in the United States owe you a subvention to retain you in office. Your pay must not be based on your campaign expenses, otherwise it would be necessary for the Government to pay the campaign expenses of your opponents, to be fair."

Babcock wrote the salaries of Representatives were based on actual work performed. He added he did not think their present pay excessive.

Blanton and Babcock have been debating for weeks by telegraph and letter whether the 15 per cent Federal pay cut should be restored. The Texan opposes restoration, while Babcock frequently has predicted such action would be voted at the coming session of Congress.

$35,631 Damages Against Sheriff Denied.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 8 (AP).—A Federal court jury today refused to award Mrs. Doris Day, of Indianapolis, Ind., damages for a wound she allegedly received November 13, 1930, when officers in search of bank robbers shot into her motor car through error. Mrs. Day sought $35,631.15 from Sheriff Will Loessin of Fayette County.

Liquor Control.

Thirty-six States having voted for repeal, the eighteenth amendment will become a dead letter on December 5, when the formality of ratification of the twenty-first amendment will have been observed by the requisite number of States.

The twenty-first amendment repeals the eighteenth amendment and prohibits the transportation of intoxicating liquor into dry States.

Prohibition will remain in effect in 29 States after repeal, unless they modify their laws. In 14 of these States the constitutions must be amended before the sale of intoxicating liquors can be legalized.

Since January 1, 1932, five States have eliminated prohibition from their constitutions, and five others have repealed their prohibition laws. Eleven States have enacted liquor control legislation which will become effective upon repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Eight additional States are now engaged in modifying their constitutions or laws on this subject. The urgent need of revenue is expected to result in legalizing the sale of liquor in some States which now prohibit it.

The greatest consumption of liquor in the United States was in 1913, when 2,232,000,000 gallons were consumed. The tax at that time was $1.10 per gallon on whisky, about 8 cents per gallon on wine, and $1 per barrel on beer. The largest amount collected in duties on imported liquors was $19,025,585, in 1914.

The problem of imposing a suitable internal revenue tax upon liquor is engaging the attention of committees of Congress. It is desired to raise all the revenue that can be collected without encouraging bootlegging. In 1919, just before prohibition, the revenue tax on distilled spirits and wines was $2.20 per gallon and on beer $6 per barrel, which yielded a total of $483,000,000. Various estimates have been made as to the amount of tax that should be levied, ranging from $6.40 per gallon on whisky down to the old rate of $1.10 per gallon.

The congressional committees hope to adjust the tax so that at least $700,000,000 will be collected in internal revenue. At present the tax is $1.10 per gallon on whisky and $5 per barrel on beer. The customs duty on 3.2 beer is $30 per barrel, which practically prevents large importations. The duty on distilled spirits is $5 per gallon. All duties are in addition to internal revenue taxes.

The Volstead act remains in effect in the District of Columbia, since Congress is empowered to exercise exclusive legislative control over the District. It is assumed, however, that Congress will change the law, not only to legalize the sale of liquor, but to promote temperance and raise revenue. The corporation counsel is at work preparing various plans, based upon the Bratt system in Sweden, the Canadian system, and the systems provided for Rhode Island and Delaware, together with modifications adaptable to District conditions.

Doubtless the drafts of the proposed District legislation will be made public before Congress meets, in order to test out public sentiment. The plans afford a variety of methods for controlling liquor traffic. In Sweden, liquor is dispensed by a private corporation licensed by the government, with a limitation of 7 per cent profit, all profits above that amount to go to the government. In Canada liquor is dispensed directly to the consumer by the government, which retains all profits. Methods of control now under consideration in various States will be studied by the District authorities with a view to their possible application to the District.

While the repeal vote was overwhelming, public sentiment is not in favor of a return of the conditions which existed before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment. Many of those who voted for repeal did so because they wished to eliminate the abuses that arose under Federal prohibition and to serve what they regarded as the cause of true temperance. The States and the Congress are now face to face with the difficult problem of devising reasonable control and taxation measures that will avoid, so far as possible, the evils of both the pre-prohibition and the prohibition eras.

As Others See Us.

Stanley Baldwin and Sir John Simon believe that democracy has broken down in the United States. Mr. Baldwin asserted recently that this country was "practically under a dictatorship," while Sir John, less emphatic, said that "Americans are putting their faith in a man, and not in institutions."

Allowance has to be made for the fact that both men are members of the national government and were addressing a political gathering at which they warned their hearers against efforts to set up a dictatorship in Great Britain. However, it is always interesting to learn what foreigners think of current developments in this country, because they are able to judge our affairs with a detachment which the average American can not feel in appraising the significance of events that touch him intimately.

Recent developments in the United States indicate that the people are becoming increasingly aware of their rights and duties as citizens of a democratic government to criticize and help shape the administrative policies which have been pursued during the present emergency. So long as this sense of responsibility exists and the determination prevails to limit the extraordinary powers granted to the executive to the period of emergency, the American people need not fear dictatorship.

Tariff Truce Abandoned.

The British government has given notice of its impending withdrawal from the tariff truce which was concluded last May with a view to preventing the nations participating in the London Conference from increasing import duties while negotiations were in progress. Already Holland, Sweden, Switzerland and the Irish Free State have denounced the agreement and toward the end of October, President Roosevelt issued an executive order, outlining the method of procedure to be followed in investigating complaints that imports were endangering the success of the recovery program. Under section 3 (e) of the recovery act, the President after investigation, may order special duties to be levied, fix import quotas, or forbid importations of certain articles, if such action becomes necessary to protect codified industries, facing increases in production costs under the recovery act.

When announcing adherence to the tariff truce, the United States reserved the right to levy compensatory duties made necessary because of the burden of processing taxes and other increases in domestic production costs entailed by the agricultural adjustment act and the recovery act. Consequently, Secretary Hull is formally correct in maintaining that the United States will not be violating the truce if tariff increases are limited to "compensatory" duties which the relief program makes obligatory.

The British, too, agreed to the tariff truce with reservations which enabled them subsequently to complete trade agreements with a number of countries calling for changes in tariff schedules, fixing import quotas and providing for mutually advantageous trade concessions. Other countries likewise have been disposed to interpret the truce in a liberal fashion.

Indeed, the existing instability in monetary and exchange systems has precluded rigid adherence to the pact from the beginning. Furthermore, the break-up of the London Conference, following President Roosevelt's denunciation of proposals to reach an agreement to stabilize exchanges, deprived the truce of its chief reason for being—namely, its value as a deterrent to strategic increases in tariff rates designed to give a bargaining advantage to nations engaged in negotiating trade agreements.

After the collapse of the London Conference, it was a foregone conclusion that the tariff truce, concluded in expectation of international agreements that did not materialize, would itself soon be abandoned, frequent adjustments of tariff rates are more or less inevitable in a world of fluctuating currencies and rapidly changing prices which result in raising or lowering the effective protection accorded by fixed tariff schedules. Hence, one need not look far afield to find a satisfactory explanation of the British decision to withdraw from a truce which was concluded last May when the pound sterling was quoted at an average rate of $3.93 in terms of the dollar, as contrasted with a present rate in excess of $4.90.

Like the United States, which seeks freedom to raise import duties to compensate for increased production costs under the recovery program, Great Britain wishes to be in a position to curb imports coming from countries whose currencies have been depreciating more rapidly of late than the pound sterling, since the effect of such depreciation is to raise British internal production costs in terms of these other currencies. For example, as the dollar depreciates in terms of sterling, British costs expressed in dollars rise, and Americans become more effective competitors in British markets.

It is misleading to describe tariff policies designed to offset the effect of monetary disturbances as retaliatory moves. They are inevitable consequences of the conditions which prevail today throughout the world. As long as currencies remain unstabilized, tariff rates are likely to be adjusted at frequent intervals to accommodate them to the changing competitive status of trading nations.

The Relief Problem.

All responsibility for the administration of unemployment relief in Kentucky has been taken over by the Federal Government. State relief machinery appears to have broken down, and the destitute people of Kentucky have been left virtually without aid for two weeks. The Federal Relief Administration stepped in to prevent widespread suffering and distress.

Six States are now drawing all of their relief funds from the Federal Treasury. A number of others are contributing very little for the alleviation of want among families of the unemployed. A large part of the burden of caring for the destitute has been shifted to Uncle Sam in spite of urgent appeals from Relief Administrator Hopkins for cooperation by the States.

Kentucky needs about $1,000,000 per month to care for its destitute people. The State persistently has failed to make reasonable provision for such aid. Last spring the Legislature adjourned without appropriating relief funds. In August the Federal Relief Administration withdrew its allotment to that State, in an effort to force some action by the Legislature. A special session of that body then levied liquor taxes in anticipation of repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and Gov. Laffoon sold $250,000 worth of State warrants. Recently he notified the Administration in Washington that he could not find a market for more warrants and renewed his appeal for Federal aid.

As the list of so-called "pauper States" continues to grow, the demands upon the F. R. A. become heavier, and still other States are encouraged to "unload" their relief burdens on Uncle Sam. The seriousness of this trend is indicated by Mr. Hopkins' recent statement that "we are going to start the winter with a million more families than were on relief a year ago at this time" and that about $1,000,000,000 per year must be provided to relieve the unemployed. Apparently the needs for relief have not been greatly reduced by increased employment. The first to go back to work, says Mr. Hopkins, are self-sustaining unemployed workingmen who never have been on the relief rolls.

The Federal Government can not take over the entire responsibility of feeding, clothing and sheltering destitute families without adding an enormous sum to the extraordinary budget. The tendency of States to evade their responsibilities in this field presents an acute problem to Congress.

Russia's Government.

When President Roosevelt addressed the head of the Soviet government, inviting him to designate a representative to discuss matters affecting the two countries, the attention of Americans was drawn to the unique character of the governmental system which is centralized at Moscow. Few persons had heard of Michael I. Kalinin, but it was commonly assumed that he was "President" of the Soviet republic. His office is, in fact, that of chairman of the central executive committee, which wields final authority when the All-Union Congress, the supreme organ of authority, is not in session.

The All-Union Congress is composed of about 2,000 members representing town and township soviets and provincial councils. The Congress meets at least once every two years. During recess its powers are exercised by the central executive committee, composed of two chambers, the Council of the Union (450 members) and the Council of Nationalities (139 members). The committee works through a presidium of 27 members, which exercises full authority when the committee is in recess. The central executive committee elects the members of the People's Council of Commissars, which serves as the executive body of the Soviet Union, answerable to the central committee and its presidium.

The only legalized political organization in the Soviet Union is the Communist party. Its principal body is a central committee, which in turn elects a political bureau. The secretary of this bureau is Joseph Stalin. Naturally, the Communist party enjoys extraordinary powers, which are concentrated in the "Politburo" dominated by its secretary.

The constituent republics of the Soviet Union are the Russian, White Russian, Ukrainian, Transcaucasian, Turkoman, Uzbek and Tajikistan. There are twelve additional autonomous republics, and thirteen autonomous areas. The population of the entire Soviet Union is about 168,000,000, with 182 different nationalities speaking 149 languages. The Soviet Union covers an area of 8,144,228 square miles, as compared with the area of the United States, 3,738,395 square miles.

"This is only a temporary setback," says Senator Sheppard, author of the eighteenth amendment. Sure! The country has centuries ahead of it in which to change its mind.

Secretary Hull again is elected chairman of the Pan American Union, but he will find the ratio of Latin nations at the Montevideo conference is still 20 to 1.

The Graf's example was exhilarating; already an American project proposes a regular dirigible service around the world.

A three-day east wind that blew Niagara Falls down its own throat offers a supersimile.

The Population Riddle.

From the Houston Post.

Mussolini's dream of repopulating Italy, which he is now pursuing by giving bonuses and other valuable considerations to marrying couples, strikes an anomalous note in the cacophony of civilization's problems.

Il Duce wants to build up the Italian population to the proportions necessary for a leading nation. Where he proposes to put the people he has not yet revealed, but has left inferences of intentions of colonizing conquests. Italy has long been crowded, as the large overflow emigration to the United States attests.

Big families of good people, such as the Italian dictator has long advocated, are fine assets to a country. But from the American viewpoint of economic conditions, his campaign is rather difficult to understand. Large families of even good people nowadays usually supply recruits to the army of unemployed. Large families of bad or inferior people create still other problems.

From the biologist's viewpoint, the present trend is toward too much population of inferior quality, and too little of good stock, threatening a decline of civilization generally. He would favor bonuses for increases among the good stock, and restrictions upon the size of families of poor stock, if such a thing were possible.

The economic philosopher might sum up the population problem thus: With modern labor saving methods, man produces more than he consumes, and, therefore, the more the population is increased, the greater will be the overproduction of things for human use and consumption and consequently unemployment. Mass production calls for more and more consumers, but the increased population produces even more, and consumes not enough, thus adding to the woes of society and creating the economic stalemate in which civilization now finds itself.

The answer to the riddle is to balance consumption with production, but how to do that has not yet been successfully demonstrated. If Mussolini purposes to work it out by increasing population he is certainly using reverse English—or Italian.

Orphans of the Storm.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

A COUPLE OF CUSTOMERS DISCUSS A NATIONAL ISSUE.

What do you think of Henry Ford's attitude toward the NRA, anyhow?"

"Do you figure he's against the Blue Eagle?"

"Shucks, no! He's too busy to go in for bird study, but he ain't exactly against it. As I see it, he just figures it ain't standard equipment."

• • • •

"It seems to me he could sign up and sort of take his chances on getting out of the rut like everybody else."

"Well, Ford's had so much more experience than anybody else in this country's ruts that he don't figure he needs advice."

• • • •

"It's too bad there's been so much noise over Henry's position."

"After all these years, Henry don't mind a little thing like noise. It anybody's used to it, he is."

"Of course, you can't get away from the fact Hank was paying high wages before the Government ever began worrying about any Forgotten Men."

"He didn't mind high wages. What he objected to is back-seat driving by people who never rode in his cars enough to understand 'em anyhow.

• • • •

"I guess maybe he resents Gen. Johnson in the rumble seat, eh?"

"Don't forget that Hank got his start back in the days when a code was sumpin' you read about only in an Emily Post book on etiquette and long before anybody ever suggested meeting a pay roll with the cooperation of some nice college boys and an Army officer."

"It naturally comes hard to him now, I suppose."

• • • •

"Did you ever see a college professor trying to change a tire?"

"I don't think so."

"Well, if you did, you'd understand why Hank is so distrustful of 'em. And next to a professor trying to change a tire, there's nothing so unconvincing as a politician trying to adjust the carburetor."

• • • •

"You're right, but I still think Henry is making too much fuss over the National program. With millions of little fellers all coming in and doing their bit, it don't make a pretty picture to see one of the richest men in the world fighting it."

"Yes, but don't forget Henry is a car builder, not a picture painter."

"What's bothering Washington is that it can't tell when Hank is in and when he is out. He no sooner came in the other day than he issued that statement about being compelled to lay off 9,000 men a week to comply with the code. It sounds to me as if his engine was skipping."

"Well, anyhow, there's one thing you can bet on. There'll be no Ford boycott in this country."

"Why nt?"

"The people of this country have got too accustomed to driving with one headlight to give up the idea."

ENCOURAGING.

The debt parley between the British delegation and the American officials at Washington has ended without a settlement. Well, the British at least show enough interest to come to the meeting.

The United States is going to kill its extradition treaty with Greece as a result of the Insull decision. Any hope of our getting a chance to retaliate is made remote by the fact that Greece never seems to want us to give back any Greeks.

The fiftieth annual horse show is to be held in New York. It is expected that the main difficulty will be getting the horses into Madison Square Garden without frightening the autoists.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Five Nice Girls.

George Saintsbury, who died a short time ago nearly 90 years of age, and who had read in all probability more books than any man now alive (he went on record in saying that he had personally read the whole of French literature, which was not his specialty), said that there were five girls in nineteenth century fiction he would have been glad to marry.

Perhaps there is no better test for any one to apply to an imaginary character; would you be glad to live all your life with that person? How about Ann Vickers?

Well, Mr. Saintsbury's five girls were Elizabeth Bennet in Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice;" Diana Vernon, of Walter Scott's "Rob Roy;" Argemone Lavington, of Charles Kingsley's "Yeast." Beatrix Esmond (God save the mark) of Thackeray's "Henry Esmond, and Barbara Grant, of Stevenson's "David Balfour."

As to Argemone, I can not say; I have never read "Yeast," and I think I never shall, even for the pleasure of meeting her. It is rather interesting that out of all Scott's girls, Mr. Saintsbury chose Di Vernon, the great athlete and wild rider, surely an exception to the general run of heroines of her time. Barbara Grant was altogether lovely and had a pretty wit. Elizabeth Bennet would probably be the best of them all, as age could never wither her or custom stale her infinite variety. As for Beatrix, she would be more than a handful. In that old play, "A Trip to Chinatown," the young woman asked Mr. Well and Strong, "You like me, don't you?" "Yes." "You like to be with me?" "I think you are wonderful." "And you would like to marry me, wouldn't you?" "Not for gold or precious stones."

Tomorrow—George Santayana.

You Can't Prevent Waste of Energy if You Make Forty Bites of a Cherry.

By Robert Quillen.

Whether any government is a Nero or a Santa Claus depends largely on the words used to describe its activities.

Suppose a number of farmers, unable to prosper as independent growers, form a cooperative association and employ a manager to handle their affairs.

This manager visits brokerage houses in advance of the planting season, drives the best bargain he can, and then says to the farmers: "I have made contracts to deliver certain quantities of various products at a specified price. On the basis of previous production records, it will be necessary for each of you to plant 20 acres in spinach, 40 in potatoes and 30 in sweet corn."

As you see, this manager tells the farmers what to plant. Is he, therefore, a tyrant, destroying their liberty, or is he a capable hired servant doing the will of his employers?

People forget that their government, whether it does well or ill, is their servant. It faithfully endeavors to do their will. If it fails, as it frequently does, it is only because it doesn't know what the people want.

A nation of free people is a vast cooperative organization and the government is a hired manager. Why, then, should the people hesitate to make use of it?

Our "rugged individualism" has resulted in making all of us poor. The smartest men failed because they exercised their right to do things that weren't necessary. They used their own and their neighbor's capital to build 40 stables for one horse.

The only way to prevent duplication of effort and unnecessary production is by centralized management. And the logical manager is the Government.

Do you think the country isn't ready for that?

What would you say if your town had no electricity and 40 men, acting independently and within their lawful rights, organized power corporations, sold stock to the public, and built 40 steam plants, each of them capable of generating enough power for the city?

It might be legal and honest, but what of the people who invested their money in the 40 enterprises? Is it not enough to say they should have known better?

Waste and loss will be inevitable until all production is directed by one manager. A dozen men will shoot the same quail if they hunt together and each one thinks the bird belongs to the man who knocks it down.

Colorado's Invalid Tax.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Those who shake their heads at Federal action in the traditional province of the States will find an especially good example of the reason in Colorado's present plight.

Like most State Legislatures, that in Colorado waited until the last minute to enact relief legislation. Then the legislators garbled their bills, trying to hasten them at the same time they were watching for adverse voter reaction. One of their provisions was that a special relief tax of $10 be levied against every automobile in the State, each county's receipts being kept for its relief fund. Now the State's Supreme Court has decided that tax is unconstitutional, and has even gone so far as to say that relief is the job of counties and that the State has no constitutional right to collect funds and distribute them to the counties. This leaves Colorado with 56,000 families in need of help and the only available money in sight is the Federal allotment of $407,000 for November and December. Of this, $125,000 has already been spent.

Russia and America.

Houston Post.

Between Russian communism and American democracy is a gulf wider than that which separates between Dives and Lazarus.

Communism standardizes mankind—at least, as far as possible. Reduced to blunt terms, if some one shows taller than all the rest, cut off his feet; get him down to the common level.

Democracy exalts the individual; if he develops into a giant, all well and good; the rest of us will also try to be giants.

The one pulls down; the other raises up, and between these two principles is everlasting warfare.

But there's no good reason why communistic Russia and democratic America should stand at a line and make faces at each other; an exchange of goods will be to the advantage of both.

Poor Stuff.

Boston Transcript.

Most of us who used to have to go to a hall to hear a political speech had a lot more fun than we get listening to the stuff that percolates through the radio.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

OF ALL those to come out of the New York mayoralty race with sore heads and sick hearts the worst must be Mr. Joseph McKee — effectively dubbed Holy Joe during the campaign—and who once taught Greek. He once made the remark that he was not a politician. His campaign should remove all doubts on that score.

BARGERON.

Not only should all doubts regarding his own political ability be removed but the question seriously arises as to whether new appraisals should not be given to the very smart boys who managed him. It probably was just about as bad a management as a man ever had.

The man entered the campaign apologizing and he ended it pretty much the same way. He had to explain—and never very satisfactorily—why if he was a courageous leader he had not accepted the Fusion nomination many months before. From the beginning he was on the defensive, denying this and explaining away that, while LaGuardia was hitting away at him all the time.

The consensus of political observers is that never did a man have a better opportunity to become mayor of New York. He frittered it away with a timidity that made him look very small throughout the campaign. A man of admitted ability, too.

• • • •

BUT the fun will now begin. Tammany is a wreck and the recriminations will fly thick and fast. Three gentlemen whose heroic statues are not likely soon to be placed in the hall are Messrs. Al Smith, Jim Farley and Ed Flynn of the Bronx, who would have been the working boss of all New York had the Administration's plans not gone amiss.

The Administration loses in prestige, of course. It attempted something which it could not carry out. Flushed with its success at prohibition repeal and having the country eat out of its hands generally, it tried once too much, and overreached itself. It will go before the country in 1936 and even in the congressional elections next year with the largest city in the country, ordinarily Democratic, in the hands of the Republicans.

• • • •

THE bitterness in Tammany circles will be all the more pronounced against it because Tammany can argue now on the face of the returns that with McKee out Tammany would have won. This did not seem to be the situation when McKee went in. The dope then was that in a fight between Tammany and LaGuardia the latter would win hands down. And the vote that McKee got would not all have gone to Tammany, either, but that argument can be made.

With the situation as it is, it will be interesting to watch the struggle for leadership of the new Tammany. Al Smith is generally expected to make the bid, but the thousands of job-holders and other recipients of Tammany favor, around whom the organization is built and who now lose out, are not likely to feel much kindlier toward him than they will toward Messrs. Farley and Ed Flynn. It would not seem reasonable for those who went down with the Tammany ship to turn toward those who wrecked them. Smith did nothing, but that is exactly what will be held against him.

• • • •

THE move already made to oust him from membership in the hall, along with his good friend, Jim Hoey, who ran with McKee, is but a taste of what is to come.

Ah, there's a tragedy for you—Jim Hoey! Jim managed the Tammany candidate's campaign last year; put him over on the unsuspecting voters. But being the public-spirited man that Jim is, he wanted to atone this time, so he made the sacrifice to run on the McKee ticket as borough president of Manhattan. No finer gesture ever was made. The voters, though, thought that Jim was just too sensitive, that there was no need of his atoning for anything.

• • • •

NOTWITHSTANDING the resentment against Al's inaction in the campaign, he stands more of a chance of emerging on top from the merry-go-round than Farley or Flynn. Wouldn't that be a problem for the administration!

It would have to make peace with Al, and it is doubtful if Al is in a mood to be made peace with.

How to Be Cheerful.

How to be cheerful, do you say,
When the wind is cold and the skies are gray?
How to be cheerful? Just one way:
Forget yourself for awhile today.

Never mind self and your irksome cares.
Somebody else greater burden bears.
Stretch out a helping hand and play
The friend to all who may chance your way.

You'll never be cheerful sitting there
Sorrowing over the hurts you bear,
For never a joyous hour is known
By the man who thinks of himself alone.

How to be cheerful? Scatter cheer;
Share your life with your neighbors here;
Encourage the weary and comfort the sad

Reichstag Fire Cue for Revolt, Nazis Charge

Berlin, Nov. 8 (AP).—The accusation that Communists "needed a sensational act like the Reichstag fire to give the signal for a general uprising," was made today by Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda.

He testified at the hearing of five Communists charged with firing the Parliament building February 27, and engaged in a battle of wits with two defendants that ended only when Presiding Judge Buenger peremptorily cut off further questioning by the irrepressible Georgi Dimitroff, a Bulgarian defendant.

Goebbels Loses Temper.

Dr. Goebbels recognized the importance of the intellectual duel, for at the conclusion of an hour's testimony and cross-examination lasting another he declared:

"I have tried with meticulous care to reply to allegations of the Brown Book and of foreign countries."

Dimitroff's questions—he acts as his own counsel—were aimed at showing that Nazis, too, employed violence, and that they are operating even now with illegal names and passports in Austria.

At these allegations the propaganda minister lost his temper and claimed his party had never committed murder or stored arms except to defend themselves.

Torgler Questions Minister.

Ernst Torgler, Communist leader, asked Dr. Goebbels:

"How can you claim the Communists were the only ones to benefit from the Reichstag fire, when on the contrary we knew you controlled the whole state machinery, besides the Storm Troopers and Steel Helmeters? Would it not have been sheer madness for the Communists to fire the Reichstag?"

Angrily, the minister retorted, "the question is not who actually benefited, but rather who would have if the mad plan for an uprising had succeeded.

"You knew you would be forbidden and extinguished after the election, hence, you considered the Reichstag fire your last chance."

Byrd Presses Park Road Link

Will Discuss Interstate Project Tomorrow With Ickes.

(Associated Press.)

The proposed scenic highway which would extend from Washington through the Shenandoah and Great Smoky Mountains will be discussed by Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, tomorrow with Secretary Ickes, public works administrator.

The Virginia senator, together with Tennessee and North Carolina officials, is backing the proposal that the Public Works Administration allot $20,000,000 for constructing the highway, which would be approximately 600 miles long. Senator Byrd urged last month that the highway be undertaken as a 100 per cent Federal project.

Secretary Ickes was reported to feel that since some of the projected highway would traverse areas in three States not in the Federal park system, they should contribute toward the cost.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. today announced it will purchase 100,000 tons of new steel rails, in conformity with Roosevelt plans to stimulate the steel industry.

U.S. Airline Denied Filipino Franchise

Hongkong - Manila Plan Dies in Legislature.

Manila, P. I., Nov. 8 (AP).—A request of the Pan-American Airways for a 25-year franchise in connection with its prospective Hongkong-Manila airline was reported today to have died in committee of the Philippine legislature.

Legislators said the service could operate without a franchise with Manila as the sole terminal. H. M. Bixby, representative of Pan-American, had also asked for terminals at Iloilo and Zamboanga. Opposition developed at a legislative hearing from a Filipino company operating to those points.

Smith "Delighted" At Dry Downfall

"But Not Surprised," Adds Democratic Leader.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Alfred E. Smith expressed pleasure tonight that sufficient States had voted to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

"Of course I am delighted with, but not surprised at, the final repeal of the eighteenth amendment," he said.

"I felt all along that when this question was properly submitted to the rank and file of the people they would readily see that amendment has no place in our Constitution."

A Sour Note at the Party

Some Doubts as to the Future After Prohibition's Repeal

By William Harlan Hale.

"After Repeal, Great Problems," was the title recently carried by one of those typically inspirational articles in the New York Times Magazine. The "great problems," far from being questions of selecting, storing or serving rare liquors, were the less liquid ones of taxation, tariff, licensing and distillery control; questions, that is to say, of the fiscal morality of drink.

Today, amid the jubilations at the emergency of Utah from its arid and salty past to become the Grand Redeeming Thirty-sixth Wet State, let us ignore the legal soul searchings of the New York Times and search into matters of more vivid interest.

What are we about to receive on and after December 5, the day of the great restoration? The enthusiasts say that we are going to have a revival of good manners and decency, a change from mere eating to real dining, and, finally, a return of that greatest of the arts of the table—conversation. They like to believe that, just because a dusty bottle of old Burgundy is available at the corner store, the Nation is suddenly going to take on the velvet and richly cultured aroma of that wine itself.

But I wonder about all this. Yes, sometimes I too see beatific visions, revivals of the scenery that Constance Collier described so beautifully in "Dinner at Eight"—of dining under soft lamps in the plush window seat at Delmonico's, sipping dry champagne as the snow falls outside upon the coaches in Fifth avenue. I, too, see visions of great gastronomic ceremonies at which sherry is served with the oysters, Niersteiner Burgweg with the filet of sole, Chateauneuf-du-Pape with the duckling and wild rice, Moet and Chandon with the silver platters of cold meats, and historic brandies with the mocha and vast cigars.

I see visions of those things, but somehow they do not seem to be complete without the coaches, the ruffles, the decorations, the old formalities. And I wonder whether our time, which is so far removed from formality, will be able to bring back those leisurely splendors of the table. I wonder whether the ruddy, sedentary colors of the age of Taft will fit into the restless, hard-bitten time of the second Roosevelt. I begin to doubt that a youthful population that has been bred on crisis and fundamental change, will even think of bringing back the character of an era that is so lost to them.

True, there is a definite movement going on to recover some of the glamour of the age that began with the end of Victorianism, and was itself snapped short by the outbreak of the war. Abroad, I believe, it is currently fashionable to go Edwardian; here Mae West has given the hoarse-voiced impetus to a revival of the curves and colors of the turn of the century.

But it all has a rather hollow ring; the faces seem strained, and the manners affected. If we are recovering anything of the older time, it is the gilt, not the gold. (I refrain advisedly from punning on the present monetary policy.)

Yes, they are also bringing back beer gardens and brass bands. But the beer-garden equipment—complete with rustic furniture, checkered table-cloths, and one artificial tree (!)—can be bought from a mail order house at a standard price. And even the brass band—that probably will not be the real thing either. Those great German trombonists, with their cheeks bulging like tomatoes, have long since gone to rest.

So, rather than join right off in the jubilations at the altar of Bacchus Redivivus, I remain just a bit wistful about the whole thing. I am not going around expecting even the beginning of a millennium.

I suspect that for another generation and maybe two, the verb "to drink" will continue to mean to go out and swizzle so much of a mixture of alcohol, water, and juniper drops that one rolls paralyzed off the sidewalk. I also suspect that the great masses of American people, who are supposed by the enthusiasts to be on the verge of rushing into cafes, beer halls, and "pubs," will take little notice of their new liberties, and consume even more double strawberry, butterscotch, marshmallow sundaes than before.

In case I have the good fortune to be invited to a substantial dinner party, I probably shall find that my well-to-do host, rather than offering me some classic Rhine wine, will ply me with fruit cocktails and give me highballs with my venison. And I shall not be one of those who life up their noses in a new culture snobbery. For I shall realize that perhaps after all my host is right: the Rhine wine is the property of an ancient world of grace and plenty; ours is a land in which the drinks should be as hard and as upsetting as its political situation.

Surly Temper Costs Bobcat Life of Ease in College Home

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 8 (AP).—Rosie, a California bobcat, born in a trap and educated at the University of California, has become too mean to merit further higher education and has been sent to the woods.

Rosie has been nurtured for five months in the home of Eustace L. Sumner, biologist at the university.

But Rosie tired of long naps on Mrs. Sumner's lap, tired of deep dishes of cream and even grew bored with the society of the feline menage that inhabits the Sumner home.

She grew surly and disdained trips in the Sumner car.

The last straw was when it became necessary for Sumner to wear thick gloves whenever he wanted to play with Rosie.

So this week Sumner donned his gloves and armor for the last time, dumped Rosie into a basket after a struggle and drove her to a wild section of the San Francisco Peninsula, where he turned her loose.

7 Gunmen, Accused By Factor, Indicted

Face Death as Kidnapers; 4 on Trial Today.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Seven gangsters were indicted by the Cook County grand jury today in the kidnaping of John Factor. The crime is punishable by death.

The indictments were returned an hour after Factor himself appeared before the jurors and named his abductors.

Those accused were Roger Touhy, gang leader; Edward McFadden, Gus Schafer and Willie Sharkey, all awaiting trial tomorrow at St. Paul for the kidnaping of William Hamm, jr., millionaire brewer; Albert J. Kator, Charles Connors and Basil Banghart.

27 French Planes Start Africa Tour

One Ship Wrecked in First Landing in Spain.

Cartegena, Spain, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—A mishap in the landing of 27 French planes here today marred the first stages of a mass aerial cruise over 16,000 miles of French North Africa. A plane was wrecked in landing. Members of the crew were not badly injured.

55 Are Arrested, 14 Hurt as Coast Cities Hail Repeal

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (AP).—Cities of the bay district watched out the death of prohibition without getting exuberant, although liquor was served openly in many places in San Francisco and Oakland as Pennsylvania, Ohio and Utah were reporting returns that meant the passing of the eighteenth amendment.

Fifty-four persons were charged with intoxication in San Francisco. Police said that was about five more than the average overnight run. Fourteen were bruised and cut in celebrations.

Prison Thespians, Band State Tour, Plan of Warden

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 8. (Spl.).—Plans to send the "Pen Revue" and the State prison band out from the West Virginia Penitentiary on theatrical tours of the State are announced by Dr. Clifton F. McClintic, penitentiary warden. The purpose, he says, is to raise funds needed by the State.

Convicts experienced in theatrical work comprise the "Pen Revue," and the band also is composed of convicts.

Dr. McClintic says the plan has been taken up with Gov. H. G. Kump and the State pardon attorney with an urgent plea for its approval from the warden.

Single Bullet Kills Fox and Squirrel

Both Shot Through Head by Marylander.

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 8 (Spl.).—Dead Eye Dick couldn't beat this one—a fox and a squirrel drilled cleanly through the head with one shot.

That is the record Louis Tennison hung up at Great Mills. Hearing a fox bark in a nearby grave yard, he left his work at the Little Flower School and grabbed his trusty rifle. He took aim as the fox appeared. As he pulled the trigger a squirrel jumped in front of the gun. The bullet went through the heads of the squirrel and the fox.

Tennison had the dead fox and the squirrel for evidence. He ate the squirrel.

Pistol Shots Fired In Court Quarrel

Oklahoma Lawyer Wields Gun, But Aim Is Wild.

Antlers, Okla., Nov. 8 (AP).—Pistol shots fired by County Attorney T. H. P. Smith, jr., allegedly at Harvey J. Pennington, lumberman and former abstractor, interrupted a hearing in district court here this afternoon. No one was wounded.

The shots, officials said, climaxed a bitter controversy over a contract for restoration of the official records of Pushmataha County, which were destroyed in the courthouse fire last July. The hearing involved the contract.

Persons in the courtroom said Smith was only 30 feet from Pennington when he fired.

Business Heads Of Italy Plan Revised State

Duce Hears Proposal to Abolish Deputies Win Loud Applause.

Rome, Nov. 8 (AP).—Fundamental reshaping of the Fascist state was undertaken at a national council of corporations meeting today, over which Premier Mussolini presided.

A proposal by which the council would absorb the Chamber of Deputies, thus acquiring legislative powers, and by which the government would have a greater guild and less of a parliamentary aspect will be one of the subjects under discussion. The sessions are expected to last until Saturday.

Other subjects taken up today included the creation of category guilds in the various branches of industry.

Absorption of the chamber of deputies was enthusiastically applauded. Il Duce made no comment.

Leading Italian business men advocated that legislative powers in economic matters be given to the corporations council or spoke against the proposed changes.

Their views were presented so heatedly that Mussolini often had to ring his bell for order. It was the first time in months that a division of opinion had been openly expressed.

The corporations of category would be corporations for each branch of industry, transportation, commerce and agriculture.

Great public interest attended the session because of reports that Premier Mussolini would disclose plans for sweeping political alterations.

Boston's Ballots Have Triple Guard

Both Candidates Assist Police Pending Recount.

Boston, Nov. 8 (AP).—Pending a recount of ballots cast for Frederick W. Mansfield (Democrat), and Malcolm N. Nichols (Republican), in yesterday's mayoralty election, the city hall vault containing them will be under unusual guard.

In addition to two specially assigned police sergeants, Mansfield posted two of his own guards and Nichols countered with a pair of his choosing. The vault is not only sealed, but it has a lock with a double combination, one known only to the Democratic members of the election commission, the other known only by the Republican members.

In what was officially a nonpartisan election, Mansfield and Nichols led a field of six with 70,039 and 67,642 votes, respectively.

Air Warning Sent Japan by Soviet Flight Over Territory Is Topic of Moscow Note.

Moscow, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Soviet authorities have formally warned the Japanese acting consul general at Vladivostok that any further unauthorized flights of Japanese airplanes over Soviet territory will have "disagreeable consequences."

The Soviet warning to Japan was made in connection with the flight of nine Japanese military planes across the Soviet frontier on November 3.

Colombia Floods Kill 7, Damage Property

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Seven persons were reported dead in nation-wide floods today. The deaths occurred at Cucuta, where the Pamplonita River overflowed after torrential rains. Much property damage was reported from other sections.

Paris Hears U. S. Plans To Offer Wine Rate

Paris, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—It was evident in semiofficial circles today the United States plans to offer favorable tariffs on French wines in return for a settlement of the defaulted French war debt.

It was emphasized, however, that the advantages to be obtained by such a favorable tariff would be disproportionate, compared with even a partial payment.

C. P. Ives, Missing 3 Days, Is Found Dead

Officials Keep in Touch With Welles; Policy Not Changed.

Although advices to Washington indicated "anarchy before the night is over" in Cuba due to the latest revolt in the island, the United States Government's policy of non-intervention remained unchanged last night.

The State Department was in telephonic communication with Sumner Welles, American Ambassador at Havana, during the entire day yesterday, and it was understood that Welles made no recommendations for American intervention in the revolutionary situation.

At a late hour last night there were 11 American ships in Cuban waters, but officials pointed out that American armed forces would be landed only in case danger threatened American citizens.

Situation Serious.

Welles, in his last conversation with Jefferson Caffery, Assistant Secretary of State, repeated his earlier advice that so far he knew of no injuries to Americans or of any Americans who were in serious danger.

The seriousness with which the Government views the present situation is indicated by the decision of President Roosevelt to order Caffery, State Department Cuban expert, to remain at his desk and not join the American delegation to the Pan-American Conference in Montevideo.

Reports to the State Department were that the Grau San Martin forces had routed all the rebels from the aviation camp, Columbia, where the revolutionary movement started.

Reports Pessimistic.

However, all communication is reported cut off between the interior of the island and the city of Havana, and reports reaching Washington were decidedly pessimistic regarding possible revolutionary activity in the inland villages and barracks.

State Department officials said that no further ship movements had been ordered as result of the new attack on the present Cuban government and that the ships patrolling the waters about the island were operating under orders given earlier in the week.

The Administration, although adhering firmly to its nonintervention policy, is watching all developments in Cuba and will keep in close touch with American Embassy there.

Woman Leader In Church Dies

Seventh Day Adventists Hold Rites Today for Mrs. Thompson.

Mrs. Rachel S. Thompson, 83, former Michigan teacher and prominent in Seventh Day Adventists Church circles, died yesterday at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Prof. and Mrs. Harvey A. Morrison, 425 Flower avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Until recently when she became ill, Mrs. Thompson taught a large Sabbath school class at the Takoma Park Seventh Day Adventist Church. She was active in all church activities. She had attended an annual reunion of the pupils she taught in Michigan every year until she became ill.

Prof. Morrison is a former president of the Washington Missionary College at Takoma Park and Mrs. Morrison is now head of the mathematics department at the school.

Funeral services will be held today at 1:30 p. m. at the Morrison residence. Mrs. Morrison will accompany the body to Quincy, Mich., where Mrs. Thompson will be buried beside her husband, Cassius M. Thompson, who died in 1903.

Board Will Air Sue Carol's Income Tax Appeal Today

Claims of Sue Carol, movie actress, that the Government erred in ruling her deficient in her income taxes for 1929 and 1930 will be heard today by the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

The vivacious Sue, wife of Nick Stuart, was held by the Bureau of Internal Revenue to be short $1,306 in her 1929 returns and $1,510 in 1930. She appealed the findings.

The star's tax difficulties center around property left by her father, Samuel Lederer, Chicago, who died in 1925. Lederer divided his estate, much of it in apartment and hotel properties, between his wife and his daughter, whose name was given in her petition as Evelyn Lederer Keefer.

In filing her returns, Miss Carol claimed allowance for depreciation on the properties left by her father. The items were disallowed, resulting in a determination of deficiency in both the 1929 and 1930 taxes.

Roberts Says New Office Will Not Make Him Forget Old Job.

By Leon F. Roberts,
Reporter and Mayor-Elect of Jamestown.

Jamestown, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP).—I have been asked to tell how it feels for the "city hall reporter" to be elected mayor and I find it difficult to fill the assignment. My feelings, I imagine, are about like those of a cub reporter suddenly elevated to the managing editorship.

My 14 years as "city hall reporter" has given me a sense of the responsibilities the office brings with it and my elevation is tempered by that. I shall try to be a good "editor" when I take my place at the executive's desk at city hall.

Because I know how difficult a job the office of mayor is, there is no sense of thrill. Instead, the victory is the most solemn moment of my life. My thrill came a good many years ago when Office Boy Roberts, fresh from a farm neighborhood, was told he was now Reporter Roberts. There were not so many obligations involved in that title as there are in the word mayor.

For the reporters who will come to me as mayor I will always have a real welcome. The training and education I have received in newspaper work have been my greatest asset and the mayor will never forget he was a reporter on the city hall beat.

My victory, I believe, demonstrates again that men of humble beginnings need not be without hope of achieving some measure of success. It proves also that shares in the coming era of progress will not be distributed on a birthright basis.

Theater Ticket Agent Suffers Code Penalty

Suspended One Week for Alleged Scalping in Sale to Official.

The first substantial disciplinary penalty for alleged violation of fair practice provisions of a code was imposed yesterday on a New York theater ticket broker, charged with selling a $10.45 pair of tickets for $30.

All theaters which subscribe to the code for legitimate theaters and all licensed brokers were instructed to withhold tickets from the offender, the Broadway Theater Ticket Co., from November 13 to 20, thereby suspending the ticket broker for a week.

The action was taken on recommendation of the code authority after S. D. Hanson, a Department of Justice agent, had reported purchasing the tickets at almost triple their box office value.

Another ticket broker, the City Ticket Agency, was ordered blacklisted until it obtains a license.

The National legitimate theater committee recommended that a $500 fine be imposed on Courtney Burr, producer of the Lyceum Theater, New York, on charges that the theater was not holding 40 per cent of its tickets, that it was receiving commissions from agencies, and that it failed to exhibit code authority regulations.

Deputy Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt, in charge of entertainment enterprises, held that the committee failed to make a case against the theater.

Army Lawyer Joins Murrel Trial Defense

General Johnson Hagood Assigns Captain as Counsel.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 8 (AP). The Army today came to the assistance of Lieut. John H. Murrel, former West Point football star charged with criminal assault on Blanche Ralls, with the appointment of Capt. J. F. Reynolds Scott to the array of defense attorneys.

An order appointing Capt. Scott as counsel was issued by Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commanding the Eighth Corps Area. The order stated:

"In order that this officer may have the benefit of military counsel and that the interests of the Army may be safeguarded, you are hereby designated to assist in such defense for the purposes above outlined, but at the forthcoming trial your activities in court will not include examination of witnesses. That matter will be left to the civilian counsel."

At his preliminary hearing yesterday, Lieut. Murrel was remanded to jail for action of the Federal grand jury. Miss Ralls testified the alleged attack occurred on the Fort Sam Houston military reservation early October 22 while Lieut. Murrel was driving her home from a night club dancing party which included cocktails.

S. B. Smith, of defense counsel, said Murrel's release on bond would be asked at a habeas corpus hearing before Federal Judge R. J. McMillan as soon as the transcript of yesterday's proceedings was available.

Mortgage Loan Data Are Goal In Bank Quiz

Senate Group Told Firms Formed to Screen R. F. C. Grants.

Investigating charges that some mortgage companies served as a screen for banks in receiving R. F. C. loans, the Senate Banking Committee last night called on Chairman Jesse H. Jones for a list of Reconstruction Finance Corporation advances to mortgage corporations.

At the same time, the committee asked for data on the $90,000,000 R. F. C. loan to Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, and a $9,500,000 slum clearance loan to New York City.

The requests were made following a two-hour conference with Chairman Jones, under the Senate resolution authorizing an R. F. C. loan investigation.

Charges Probed.

"If there has been any deception or abuse of privilege by banks in obtaining loans through mortgage companies, we want to find it out," Chairman Fletcher said.

Communications alleging mortgage companies were set up by banks for the sole purpose of obtaining loans, so as to shield banks involved from publicity, have been received by the committee, he said.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was asked to separate the loans into two groups—one detailing advances to companies organized before mortgage company aid was authorized, and the other giving loans to mortgage companies formed since the act.

Jones agreed to supply all information asked.

"We don't wish to hamper the R. F. C., or cast any reflection on it, but we feel we should make some inquiry," said Senator Fletcher.

"This mortgage company business may have been taken advantage of by people who couldn't get loans any other way."

He said he wished to find out how many loans to mortgage companies eventually found their way to to banks.

Dawes Loan Reduced

Jones told the committee the $90,000,000 loan to the Central Republic Bank & Trust Co., headed by former Vice President Dawes, had been reduced by about $24,000,000. Originally it was secured by about $120,000,000 in collateral, Fletcher said.

As far as he knows, Jones told the committee, all R. F. C. loans were well-secured.

The $9,500,000 loan to New York City for the "East Side Village" slum clearance project, on which the committee seeks light, was the only slum clearance loan made by the R. F. C. It involves replacement of shacks and old buildings with modern apartment structures. The work is being done by the F. F. French Co.

Police Guard Litvinoff From Air and Ground Attacks

Underwood & Underwood.

One of the largest police guards ever to protect a foreign visitor has been thrown around the Soviet Mission on fashionable Massachusetts avenue northwest. Upper—A portion of the police cordon surrounding the building from front to back. Lower—A policeman patrols the roof against possible air attacks.

Even State Officials Had to Show Credentials to Approach Envoy.

Even being Assistant Secretary of State would not get you by the police cordons in the halls of the State Department yesterday unless you were prepared to prove it with documents or something.

Jefferson Caffery had to argue briskly with a skeptical officer before being allowed to enter his own office. Hugh Cummings, jr., personal secretary to Hull was also halted and questioned closely before he was permitted to return to his desk.

Police, both Federal and District, had instructions to take care of visiting Soviet Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, and they set out to do the job right.

Police surrounded the home of Boris Skvirsky, unofficial Soviet representative in Washington these 12 years, where Litvinoff is making his headquarters. No loitering was allowed near the house and it was safer not to keep hands in pockets.

"You never know," was the police motto. One officer even spent the night on the roof next door. He rated a blanket.

Every time the Russian sallied forth in the White House car placed at his disposal he was preceded and flanked by a motorcade with sirens wailing. A grim-looking gentleman with watchful eyes always sat beside the chauffeur.

Long before the victim of all this vigilance was due at the State Department a wide area was marked off inside the building as well as out.

Age Limit Listed For U.S. Job Seeker

the age limits for several other examinations.

All Age Limits Opposed.

"The action bearing on stenographers is fine, as far as it goes," he declared, "but why stop there? We don't want to take care of only a special class of people. Why limit nurses to 30 or 35? Why limit fingerprint experts to 25? Why limit teachers of home economics to 30?"

The Missouri Representative added he was unable to "understand why they paid no attention to other groups. If it's good logic to increase the age limit for stenographers and typists it's equally sound logic to increase the limit for other classes. I think the average woman of 45 knows as much about cooking as a young lady of 25.'"

4 Persons Missing; Police Hunt Asked

Young Mother and Child Among Cases Reported.

Police were asked last night to look for four missing persons.

Mrs. Virginia Garmon, 20, was reported missing from her home, 1226 Thirteenth street northwest, by her husband, Orin Garmon. He said his wife had taken with her their 4-year-old daughter, Frances.

Mrs. Eleanor Robey asked police to search for her husband, Joseph E. Robey, 25, who has been missing since October 30. The Robeys live at 130 C street northeast.

A police lookout was sent for John Lassiter, 16, who disappeared from his home, 2314 Eighteenth street northwest, yesterday.

Snowbirds, Winter Harbingers, Swarm Into Parks of Capital

Blooming of Witch-Hazel Also Another Sign of Blasts to Come.

Nature has given Washington the bird so winter can not be far behind, it was announced officially yesterday by park officials.

Coinciding with the arrival of sharp, cold weather swarms of snowbirds reached the Capital on their perennial visit. They are somewhat smaller than sparrows and thrive on seeds and low temperatures. Through the winter the snowbirds, or slate-colored juncos, will remain. Then about the time the first robin puts in his appearance, they will wing their way North to cooler climes.

They are easily identified by white feathers—no reflection on their courage—on either side of the tail, which are visible in flight.

Another harbinger of the approach of winter is the witch hazel, last of the season's flowering shrubs, which is blooming in the parks. Its flower is pale yellow and, although not noted for its beauty, attracts considerable attention because of the lateness of its blooming.

Observing its second birthday in Washington parks, holly osmanthus will be in bloom until over this week-end. This shrub has a shiny dark green leaf resembling holly and bears a small white flower with a black berry. It is related to the jasmine family and has a fragrant odor.

A year ago it bloomed in the Capital for the first time.

Chrysanthemums, dahlias, roses and hardy asters, the last of the blooming flowers in this locality, are carrying on with witch hazel and holly osmanthus to bring the floral season to a colorful close.

10,000 Plane Buyers Sought At $700 Each

Commerce Official Moves to Put Aviation on Quantity Basis.

A drive to sell 10,000 low-priced small airplanes in this country during the next year was started yesterday by Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics of the Department of Commerce.

Vidal believes private flying business can not grow until a low-priced and easily operated plane is available on a mass production basis.

The Aeronautics Division, Vidal said, had begun a survey of the 34,000 licensed pilots, student pilots and mechanics, asking them if they would purchase a plane if the cost was as low as $700 or $800.

Low Price Necessary.

"I am convinced that there are men and women who are airplane pilots but do not own airplanes who would want to purchase aircraft if the initial prices and cost of operation were within their means.

But if an aircraft manufacturer knew he would have a large market for a certain type, he would eagerly undertake production in volume which would enable him to sell around $700 or even lower.

Plans 2-Passenger Monoplane.

"All that is really needed is to bring producer and consumer together, with definite assurance that the market exists. We are now taking that step. If a favorable reaction is received, a first volume of 10,000 planes will be planned by the industry.

"It is a comparatively easy task to design and turn out on a volume basis the plane we have in mind.

"It would be a low-wing monoplane, would carry two passengers and would have a landing speed of about 25 miles per hour."

Doctor Found Guilty of Killing Client.

Kansas City, Nov. 8 (AP).—Dr. Edgar L. Davis, 64, was convicted of second-degree murder by a jury today and sentenced to 10 years for the fatal shooting of Paul Proctor, a minister's son.

Dr. Davis told the jury the youth held him up in his office and was wounded by a shotgun charge fired by the doctor as he fled with $21.

Before he died two days later, young Proctor declared the money was his and that Dr. Davis became enraged in an argument as to whether he should pay $3 or $5 for an examination.

The youth said he departed without paying anything.

Dollar Slumps, Gold Advances To New Mark

(Associated Press.)

Responding to an increase of 54 cents an ounce in the world market, the price of R. F. C. purchases of newly mined domestic gold yesterday was hiked to a new high mark of $33.05 an ounce.

The new figure was 29 cents over Monday's price, and 69 cents over the world price.

Bar gold advanced 1 shilling, 10½ pence on the world market, the available supply of 400,000 pounds sterling being taken at 131 shillings 10 pence for a United States equivalent of $32.36 an ounce, calculated on the basis of sterling opening at $4.91 to the pound.

Later foreign exchange transactions saw the dollar slipping further to $4.94 to the pound on the London market, the lowest level reached by it since 1914.

London financial circles ascribed the new weakness to the uncertainty of the American monetary program, and to reports that this country was engaged busily in buying world gold.

The high premium offered for yesterday's available gold abroad led London observers to believe it was being purchased for American account.

Policeman Moves, Charges Dropped

Middlethom Proves Home Now in Washington.

Charges of disobeying a formal order of the Police Trial Board, filed against Private A. C. Middlethom, of the Fourth Precinct, in 1931, were dropped yesterday when he proved establishment of a District residence following a ruling by the Commissioners.

In 1930, the Commissioners ruled policemen could not move from Washington. This, however, exempted those already living in nearby counties. Middlethom, it was charged, moved from Maryland to Virginia. He was cited as defying the order and requested to establish a Washington residence.

Although it was alleged he again failed to comply, Middlethom yesterday proved that within 90 days after the order he moved to 1321 Four-and-a-Half street southwest.

for Moscow, but trade is a slower matter. It is not a question of weeks.

Premier Molotoff's speech on the eve of the sixteenth anniversary of the revolution last Monday was the most vigorous warning the Soviet Union has given Japan so far.

White House Car Calls.

Litvinoff was called for yesterday morning in a White House car. Five red flags fluttered bravely to greet him as he stepped out of the Soviet Information Bureau house where he is staying. The flags were accompanied, however, by a "Men at Work" sign and belonged to some electricians fixing a traffic light.

With James Clement Dunn, chief of protocal, beside him and the same impressive fleet of motorcycle police around him that cleared his every path the day before, Litvinoff sped to the State Department. He was met in the diplomatic ante-room by Undersecretary Phillips and taken straight in to Secretary Hull's office. There followed two hours of silence.

A few minutes before 1 o'clock Hull brought his visitor back to the ante-room to meet newspapermen. Litvinoff, beaming, said:

"I can only say that I am very glad to be in Washington and have found the real friendly atmosphere and quiet which is necessary for the object of my visit."

Then the two set off for the White House where the President gave a luncheon, attended by all cabinet members interested in Russian trade possibilities, the State Department men who are conducting the conversations under Hull, and most of the Russians with Litvinoff.

Visits Turkish Embassy.

Between his after-lunch talk with the President and the second State Department conference, Litvinoff took time to visit the Turkish Embassy to thank his personal friend, Ahmet Muhtar, the ambassador, for coming to the station to greet him.

Surrounded by his Russian friends from Moscow, New York, and Washington, the Commissar spent a quiet evening going over the results of the day's discussions.

At the White House luncheon were Mr. Litvinoff, Mr. Skvirsky, Mr. Bogdanov, Mr. Divilkovski and Mr. Umanski, of the Russians, and Secretary Hull, Secretary Ickes, Secretary Wallace, Secretary Roper, Senator Pittman, Lewis Douglas, Louis McH. Howe, William Phillips, Dean Acheson, R. Walton Moore, Jesse Jones, Henry Morgenthau, jr., William C. Bullitt, James C. Dunn, Robert F. Kelly, Capt. Walter Vernou and Col. Edwin Watson.

Non-Inflation Policy Is Urged By Educators

Return to Gold Standard Also Asked in Letter to Roosevelt.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Prof. Neil Carothers, of Lehigh University, tonight made public a letter which he said was sent by a group of prominent educators to President Roosevelt, urging a policy of non-inflation of the Nation's currency and a return to the gold standard. The letter was mailed before the announcement of the Administration's gold purchase plan, he said.

The message said the signers had long been engaged in the study of money and currency problems.

"We know," it said, "that in this time of crisis and conflicting views even the most able leaders of our Government may be misled in regard to the attitude of the group of which we are a part.

Views Set Forth.

"We do not presume to urge upon you a course of action. We do not suggest that you accept our views in preference to those of others. We do wish you to know that we believe the following statements to be true:

"1. Inflation of the currency will injure the Nation.

"2. The degree of public confidence essential for economic recovery will be attained most quickly by a return to the gold standard."

The letter was signed by James W. Angell, Benjamin Haggott Beckhart, John M. Chapman, Wesley C. Mitchell, H. Parler Willis, all of Columbia University; James D. Magee, Marcus Nadler and WalterE. Spahr, New York University; Frederick A. Bradford and Neil Carothers, Lehigh University; T. N. Carver and J. F. Congress Blamed For Cuban Distress

Unrest Laid to Pressure for Sugar Production.

Davenport, Iowa, Nov. 8 (AP).—A selfish, short-sighted Congress of the United States, and not Wall street or any other business or political faction in America, was responsible for the almost unbelievable distress in Cuba today, the Right. Rev. Iram R. Hulse, D. D., Episcopal missionary Bishop of Cuba, in Davenport for the meeting of the House of Bishops, told newspapermen today.

By its action in encouraging the production of sugar during and shortly after the World War, Congress laid the foundation for the Island Republic's present political and economic ills, Bishop Hulse explained.

Solution of the difficulty, he believed, lay in abandoning some of the economic self-sufficiency. Let Cuba trade sugar for some of our surplus agricultural products, he urged.

Fearon Now Leads New York G.O.P.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP).—Senator George R. Fearon, who led the Republicans to an 84-to-66 victory in the race for assembly control yesterday, emerged tonight as an outstanding possibility for the Republican gubernatorial candidacy next fall.

Fearon's strength increased on two scores as a result of the election. Besides the fact that he directed the Assembly campaign, the Tammany breakdown put him in a commanding position in the Senate.

Final returns showed that although the Republicans lost five seats up-State, they finished with a gain of seven seats, nine more than the Democrats.

Pieces of Eight — The Pirate and His Prize — By Charles B. Driscoll

Capt. Ed Teach rejoices as he drives his pirate ship, Queen Anne's Revenge, gaining upon his prey. He is in battle trim, six pistols, a cutlass and several knives in order. He and Hands examine their quarry through spyglasses.

Blackbeard's ship rapidly overhauls the stranger. Almost abeam of her, Teach roars in his lion-like voice, "What ship?" The answer: "The Protestant Caesar, of Boston!" sends the freebooter into frenzy for seven pirates have been hanged in Boston lately.

"From Boston, are ye?" shouts Teach. "Then it's no quarter, and fight to the finish!" To Mate Richards he called, "Give 'em a broadside, and lay 'em aboard!" Ten pirate's guns spat an iron hail upon the Boston craft.

In her cabin below, Prudence, timid child-bride of Blackbeard, is frightened by the cannonading, and calls loudly to be let out of her prison. Nobody hears as she tears at the lock, while the gunpowder smoke fills the air.

G. O. P. Loses Chance to Win Kendrick Seat

Gov. Miller Will Name Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Delay Election.

Republican leaders were disappointed yesterday by the announcement of Gov. Leslie A. Miller of Wyoming that he would not call a special election to fill the Senate seat of the late John B. Kendrick until next November. In the meanwhile he is to appoint Joseph C. O'Mahoney, First Assistant Postmaster General, to fill the vacancy.

Anxious at this time for a test of strength in the disgruntled West, Republicans were confident they could elect a senator from Wyoming. They had hoped that the psychological effect of taking away from the Democrats one of their Senate seats would be of great aid to them in next year's congressional elections.

But Gov. Miller, a Democrat, with the advice of the Roosevelt Administration, apparently outwitted the Republicans. Under Wyoming law, when a vacancy in the Senate from that State occurs more than a year from the regular election date, the governor is required to call a special election, except when Congress is in session. In the latter event he may fill the vacancy until a special election can be held.

Governor Fixes Election Date.

The law, however, leaves to the Governor's discretion the time for the holding of the special election. Gov. Miller said he would call a special election for November 6, next year, which coincides with the regular election. He explained he was taking this step in the interest of economy.

Meanwhile Gov. Miller will ignore the vacancy created by Senator Kendrick's death until Congress convenes in January, when he will appoint Mr. O'Mahoney. Until that time Mr. O'Mahoney will continue as First Assistant Postmaster General.

No indication given as to Mr. O'Mahoney's successor in the Postoffice Department. Postmaster General Farley was in New York.

Supported Bull Moose.

Forty-nine years old last Sunday, Mr. O'Mahoney was born in Chelsea, Mass., and started his career as a reporter on the Cambridge (Mass.) Democrat, while he was a student at the Cambridge Latin School. In 1908 he was graduated from Columbia. The same year he went to Boulder, Colo., where he became city editor of the Boulder Herald. In 1912 he supported the Theodore Roosevelt Bull Moose movement, although four years later he supported Woodrow Wilson.

In 1918 Mr. O'Mahoney went to Cheyenne, Wyo., where he has since lived, as city editor of the Cheyenne State leader. Later that year, when Senator Kendrick was elected, he named Mr. O'Mahoney his secretary. While serving Senator Kendrick here, Mr. O'Mahoney attended the Georgetown Law School, receiving his degree in 1920. Shortly afterward he returned to Cheyenne to practice law.

Active in Wyoming Campaigns.

He took an active part in the management of succeeding Democratic campaigns in that State, having directed the affairs of the State committee in 1924, when Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross was elected governor. In 1928 he was elected Democratic national committeeman for Wyoming and in 1932 was appointed vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

While secretary to Senator Kendrick, Mr. O'Mahoney assisted in drafting legislation for control of the meat packing industry. More recently he was instrumental in securing for Wyoming the $23,000,000 Casper-Alcova Dam project.

Mrs. O'Mahoney is the former Agnes V. O'Leary, of Winchester, Mass.

Rum Rule Fight Faces Bay State

'Modified Saloon' Plan Up to Legislature.

Boston, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—The Massachusetts Legislature in special session today began to get ready for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, with prospect of a bitter fight by women's clubs to prevent establishment of what Gov. Joseph B. Ely described as "modified saloons."

The "modified saloon," or tavern, was declared by Ely to be the only alternative to the speakeasy.

"Confronted with this choice," he told the Legislature, "I prefer the saloon."

Waves and Ripples of Radio

IT may be possible one of these days to bring Elder Lightfoot Michaux into your home on a phonograph record.

The elder, his unofficial business counsel, WJSV's Harry Butcher, and the Victor people have held a midnight conference, the result of which may be the wiring of the Church of God on Georgia avenue to a recording machine in Camden, N. J., during one of the Devil-chaser's network broadcasts.

Victor thought of the idea, came to the elder with it. The elder went to Butcher for advice. It seems there still are enough places in the world where the radio has not displaced the phonograph to make the project profitable to Victor in a very considerable way.

Furthermore, the "Happy Am I" man and his flock have one of the widest appeals in radio. Victor might have put the elder in one of its recording studios. But they were afraid that would make him self-conscious. They want him the way he is—flock and all—natural.

In view of the probability of the elder recording his WJSV signature song, Columbia regards the proposal favorably. Amount and disposition of the elder's payment remain to be settled.

Capt. Taylor Branson will interrupt Marine Band broadcasting long enough tomorrow afternoon to give the folks a bit of Marine Corps history, inasmuch as the Marines will be celebrating the 158th anniversary of their founding.

The history of the Branson organization is nearly as old. In 1789 John Adams signed a Marine Corps bill which authorized a drum major, a fife major and 32 "drums and fifes." Drums and fifes were the military band instruments in those days.

The broadcast will be second in the band's Friday series and at 3 o'clock.

Columbia is sending a flock of radio show people to the Capital to entertain the Association of National Advertisers Convention at the Wardman Wednesday. George Jessel and Fray and Bragiotti will be in the group.

Sun Dialist Robert Trout gave a Capital taxi driver his big radio chance yesterday morning.

Trout reached the Alexandria transmitter within a minute of his air time. The driver followed him into the studio to get his fare. Trout introduced him, made him come up to the microphone.

Thinking of his fare and what Trout said about canceling it for the favor of a radio opportunity, the cabby could only mumble.

That excellent gentleman and scholar, Alexander Woollcott, has received a new C. B. S. schedule, which will bring him to the microphone at 9:15 p. m. every Monday and Wednesday.

N. B. C. has timed "Russia as Viewed by a Noted Chemist," an address by Dr. Aloan Hirsch, consulting chemical engineer, Saturday with the visit of Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff. Dr. Hirsch, chief chemical consultant to the Soviet, is to summarize what he sees as accomplishments of Russia, political significance of the diplomatic peace Commissar Litvinoff and President Roosevelt are to negotiate, the proper yardstick to use in measuring values in the U. S. S. R. and possibilities for the Soviet Union in the future.

Irra Petina, former Russian and Philadelphia Grand Opera Company soprano; Victor Gottleib, Philadelphia concert cellist, and James Bloom, Quaker City violinist, share the Curtis Institute of Music program on Columbia, 3:45 p. m. today.

Out in Hollywood tonight they will give that excellent lady—whom you've recognized, above, as Marie Dressler—a birthday party. Norma Shearer, Lionel Barrymore, May Robson, Charlie Chaplin, Will Rogers, Joan Crawford and many more movie folk are to be there. Their voices will be heard on WMAL from 11:30 to 12:30. William Edmondson (left), master of ceremonies, soloist and comedian on the Mobile Show, N. B. C. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 7 p. m., used to limit his radio tricks to singing bass in the Southernaires Quartet.

4 Million Jobs By Dec. 15 Plan Of U. S. Agency

Will Spend $400,000,000 to Inaugurate Minor Projects.

pest control, improvement of parks and playgrounds, sanitation, highways and streets, water supply, general public improvements, extension and repair of public utilities and public buildings of a minor type, flood control river and harbor work. Hundreds of other types of work will be found by local organizations. Many projects can be developed in Washington, according to Hopkins.

These may include the care of monuments, grading of public grounds, painting of street markers, work on traffic signs and signals. A branch of the Civil Work Administration to be known as a "Civil Works Division" will be set up here and in each State.

To expedite employment the same machinery will be used by Hopkins as has been heretofore functioning in relief distribution. The National body will deal with the District Commissioners through the Civil Works Division. Hopkins indicated that even though the District of Columbia must depend upon Congress for funds with which to put up a share of employment funds, work will be provided here in some manner.

"The big factor in this undertaking is to find projects that will put people to work at once," Hopkins said.

"At one shot we will take 2,000,000 people on relief, earning relief wages in amounts that make them live in a demoralizing state, and we will take them off relief rolls and give them jobs. They can then earn enough money to be self-supporting and self-reliant American citizens."

Hopkins Calls Conference.

Hopkins has called a conference here next Tuesday, to be attended by city, county and State officials, who have sufficient leadership to add speed to the entire program.

The group will meet during the morning, and in the afternoon it will divide into smaller groups, Hopkins said.

Hopkins said it is not expected the same difficulty will be encountered in obtaining funds locally for public works as has been the case in raising money for direct relief.

Up to the present time some 2,000,000 have been given part time work with relief funds while remaining on relief rolls. Their average earnings have been only $20 a month. It is the expectation of the administration that the wages of these men will be increased so that they may become self-supporting by paying them on the basis of local wage scales and a 30-hour week.

In rushing plans to provide jobs the administration estimates that at least two-thirds of the families now receiving relief will be removed from the rolls.

There has been a reduction of 1,500,000 families on relief rolls since last April, 250,000 being taken off in September.

Distribution to Continue.

These provisions for work and jobs will not interfere with immediate distribution of food and clothing for the destitute by the National relief organization, it was stated.

Hopkins announced the allotment of 5,500,000 bushels of wheat for live-stock feed in the drought areas of the Plains States from Texas to Wisconsin. Other huge supplies of wheat are being ground into flour for distribution, and purchase of canned beef also is being expedited.

President Roosevelt and his advisers decided upon what is probably the biggest employment program ever undertaken after it had become apparent that projects financed through the Public Works Administration had not accomplished the expected purpose.

New Jersey Votes Down 'Blue Laws'

Democrats Gain in State; Horse Racing Wins.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP).—Slight Democratic gains in the State Assembly, a general assault by voters on Sunday blue laws, and approval of horse racing in a majority of the counties, were the features in New Jersey's off year election.

With both houses of the Legislature controlled by Republicans, Democrats found consolation in gains of five Assembly seats. The Assembly now has 33 Republicans and 27 Democrats. In the Senate there are 14 Republicans, 6 Democrats and 1 vacancy.

First Check

Injured Park Policeman on Permanent List.

Private James B. Lawler, jr., has received the first pay check made out to a permanently appointed member of the United States Park Police force.

Injured in line of duty a few days before all employes of the Office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations went on temporary status October 1, he faced the gloomy prospect of going without pay during the two months or more he will be absent. About 10 days ago President Roosevelt and Interior Secretary Ickes intervened to make him a permanent appointee so he could draw sick leave.

The order did not specify, however, from what date his back pay would start, but Capt. P. J. Carroll, his superior, and Leo J. Bittner, personnel officer, visited Private Lawler at his home, 2100 N street northwest, to administer the oath and present him a check for his back pay to October 1.

Lauds Opera Plan

Underwood & Underwood.

VIRGINIA DUDLEY, noted soprano of Washington, formerly with the Prague Opera Company, praises The Washington Post for bringing grand opera to the Capital at cut rates.

Post's Opera Offer Rivals European Plan

Virginia Dudley Praises D. C. Performance at Popular Prices.

In presenting grand opera at rates within the reach of all income classes, the International Opera Company, in conjunction with The Washington Post, is following an example set years ago by leading opera houses of Europe, according to Virginia Dudley, of Washington, until recently a featured soprano of the Prague Opera Company.

"This is a near approach to the European system that has brought a more general appreciation of good music than is evidenced in America," said the singer.

"In many European cities, particularly in Italy, there are several opera houses which offer popular admission rates. It is the practice for opera companies to rotate their performances from theater to theater so that all may hear the finest voices and music at a cost that is well within the means of each income group.

"In America there have not been comparable facilities for the presentation of operas, and so the cost has been prohibitive for the great majority of people."

For a week some of the finest voices of the American operatic stage—Carmela Ponselle, Giuseppe Martino-Rossi, Emilia Vergeri—will sing in performances of the better known operas—"Pagliacci," "La Gionconda," "Aida," "La Traviata," "Faust"—at less-tax rates ranging from 25 to 90 cents. And The Post has arranged with the International Opera Company, which is presenting the opera series beginning the week of Sunday, November 19, to cut these rates in half for its readers. The Post has reserved for sale at the cut rates 3,000 seats for each of eight evening performances to be given during that week.

With copies of The Post to identify them as readers, hundreds more came to the Stieff piano store, 1340 G street northwest, yesterday for their half-price tickets. Seats have been selling there at the rate of 800 a day, bringing the total sold to nearly 15,000. Officials of the opera company urged those who plan to attend to obtain tickets before the desirable seats are sold.

"Managed Press" Denied by Borah

Idaho Senator Declares Freedom Assurred.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 8 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, declared tonight he was certain the Administraton had not sought to secure a "managed press."

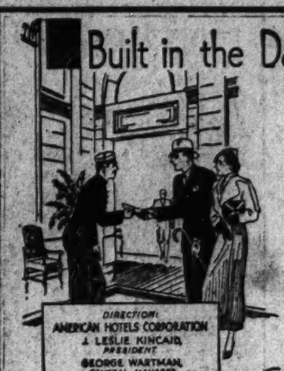

Speaking at a "press appreciation" banquet tendered by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Boise, Senator Borah said: "Freedom of the press is one of the most precious gifts" surviving from the formation of the republic.

"If the newspapers carry the news and carry it honestly," he said, "no public man has a right to complain of the opinions of him the newspaper carries on its editorial page. The newspaper has the same right to express its own opinion on its editorial page that I have on the floor of the Senate."

"Midshipman Jack" Opens at Keith's—Next Week's Screen and Stage Programs

Naval Academy Background of Radio Release

"MIDSHIPMAN JACK." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Frank Wead and F. McGrew Willis, featuring Bruce Cabot, Betty Furness, Frank Albertson and Arthur Lake, with Purnell Pratt, Margaret Seddon, John Darrow and Florence Lake. Directed by Christy Cabanne. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon.

As one contemplates this latest of the cinema's periodic tributes to the armed services of the United States he wonders what may have been the precise reasons for its production.

If it was intended merely to lay pictorial emphasis upon the manifold beauties of the U. S. Naval Academy, at Annapolis, Md., stress the honorable traditions that hover over its hallowed halls or provide a close-up of the probable experiences of the average plebe, it serves its purpose admirably.

It does all of these things, somewhat to the detriment of the romantic tale it also evidently is supposed to unfold. A picture that devotes extravagant footage to the solemn business of a solitary bugler blowing taps and pauses every whipstitch to stress the importance of a salute, or the technique of squads right, can not be said to concern itself primarily with the pulsating passions of a burning love story.

Story Is Weak.

Even if it did, the Academy career of Midshipman Jack Austin, a rebellious spirit whose major efforts are devoted to breaking the regulations and keeping his name constantly on the officers' reports and demerit lists, is not made of sufficient consequence to serve as the basis of a feature picture.

Neither is there adequate thrill in the film's climacteric sequences to make it good melodrama.

From the standpoint of closely knit, dramatic narrative, then, "Midshipman Jack," filmed at Annapolis last summer and originally known as "The Glory Command," is neither fish, flesh nor fowl. It presents a diffused and rambling story that begins nowhere in particular and ends at about the same place.

And this is no fault of the players. Bruce Cabot, Betty Furness, John Darrow, Purnell Pratt, Frank Albertson, Arthur Lake and the garrulous and flibberty-gibbetty little Florence Lake (of the Edgar Kennedy comedies), do intelligently and well all that is assigned them. They lend the film bright touches of comedy, occasional flashes of gentle romance and now and then a bit of authentic drama. But that is not enough. The basic story is one of those ill-contrived fables that simply won't jell, well acted or not. Stripped of its fictional qualities, however, "Midshipman Jack" would make a splendid two or three reel tourist excursion through the Naval Academy—which, one is constrained to believe, is all it was intended to be in the first place.

Auxiliary Features.

The auxiliary features of the bill that was accorded a midweek opening yesterday include a nature reel, "Itchy Scratchy," the story of a Rocky Mountain bear hunt; a Terrytoon comedy, "Beanstalk Jack," and a new issue of the Pathe News.

"Midshipman Jack" was attended last night by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, to whom the film is formally dedicated, and party, together with approximately 100 high ranking officers of the U. S. Navy and their wives and families.

It is probable that this discerning audience distinguished merits in "Midshipman Jack" that somehow escaped your reviewer.

Leslie Howard, Heather Angel in "Berkeley Square" —Loew's Fox.

Ann Dvorak in "College Coach" —Earle.

Guy Lombardo And Football

With radio's most popular musical entertainers, Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, heading the stage show, and Dick Powell in "College Coach," Warner Bros. smashing picture of the Nation's greatest sport, Warner Bros. Earle Theater, for the week starting tomorrow, presents a double value that has seldom been equaled.

Thrilling gridiron action competes with splendid comedy and the truth about the way certain colleges and professional football coaches operate in "College Coach," the screen feature.

Football fans who wish to see a conference match will have their wish, for this picture shows real football scrimmages with California's greatest gridiron heroes in the lineup. But the spectator will see more than football, for the picture goes back of the scenes to tell how winning football teams are sometimes made when a college decides to commercialize the game. Heading the cast are Dick Powell, Lyle Talbot, Ann Dvorak and Pat O'Brien.

For the first time, Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, which are heard weekly on the air by millions of fans, will play in a Washington theatre. They offer a half-hour of new tunes interspersed with the old favorites. Other acts are Annie, Judy and Zeke, three hill-billies from the foothills, in vaudeville's unique musical offering; Harry Lang, the Broadway gossiper; James Evans, and the man with the educated feet, and Aubrey Sieber, new mistress of ceremonies.

The program will be completed by the Universal Newsreel and the Earle Orchestral prelude.

A Wily Sleuth Back in Films

Charlie Chan, that bland Chinese detective, will walk the screen again when "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case" is unraveled at Loew's Columbia Theater starting tomorrow.

It is Earl Derr Biggers' latest story and presents this astute sleuth in his most gripping of this series of screen fantasies.

This latest film, in which Warner Oland stars, is especially noteworthy in that it combines the triumvirate of the most successful Charlie Chan screen series. Oland as the actor, and Biggers, as the author, are joined by Hamilton MacFadden, the director.

The leading feminine role is portrayed by Heather Angel. Roger Imhoff, John Warburton, Francis Ford, Virginia Cherrill and a host of others are in support.

Short subjects, a comedy, and news events augment the adventurous feature attraction.

Leslie Howard In Noted Play

With Leslie Howard offering a performance more engaging than he did in the stage play that aroused London and New York, "Berkeley Square" will bring a new and unusual note in screen entertainment when it is unfolded tomorrow at Loew's Fox Theater.

Barney Rapp and his New Englanders, an orchestral unit of exceptional merit that has nightly regaled radio listeners; Harry Jans and Harold Whalen, stars of musical comedy in a farcial offering, and John Fogarty, celebrated as "The Montana Tenor," all claim headline honors on the stage portion of the new program. The Five Elgins, novelty jugglers, complete the vaudeville.

"Berkeley Square" presents a romance that is stranger that "Smilin' Through" and one that is more absorbing. It offers a romance that goes through the years, spanning centuries, bridging distances, and bringing two hearts together in a love such as the world has never seen. Time and space are swept away before its passion and its tenderness.

Leslie Howard's finished performance alone is enough to make this Fox production an exciting experience. Critics have said that no actor could have risen to the heights attained by Howard as the Peter Standish of this John L. Balderston play. Heather Angel is the lovely feminine lead opposite Howard.

Phil Lampkin offers a patriotic overture commemorating Armistice Day, and a comedy, news and shorts are added.

Rialto Offers Sterling Film

One of the most distinctive film productions of the year comes to the Rialto Theater for the new week, beginning tomorrow night. It is "Only Yesterday," with a cast of 93 notables headed by Margaret Sullavan, John Boles, Edna May Oliver, Billie Burke, Benita Hume, Walter Catlett, Reginald Denny and Betty Blyth.

Suggested by Frederick Lewis Allen's best-seller of the same title, "Only Yesterday" was written for the screen by Arthur Richman, author of "Little Old New York" and George O'Neill. John Stahl directed it. He is the man who made "Back Street."

The film is an absorbing drama of emotional intensity that encompasses in its story the 12 turbulent years that followed the war, and serves to introduce what John Stahl calls a "ready-made star" in the person of Margaret Sullavan, from the original Broadway cast of "Dinner at Eight."

This production's coming is of such moment the Rialto is arranging a special preopening single performance showing of the film on Friday night, at popular prices. Advance tickets are now on sale. Following this public preview, the production opens its regular Washington engagement at regular Rialto prices on Saturday.

Selected short subjects and Universal News, with McNamee as the Talking Reporter, complete this distinctive program.

Ring Stars in Epic of Mitts

Myrna Loy, Max Baer, Primo Carnera, Jack Dempsey, Walter Huston and Otto Kruger comprise the distinguished group of actors and sporting personalities gathered together for Mero-Goldwyn-Meyer's "The Prize Fighter and the Lady," a gripping story of the prize ring which Loew's Palace has booked for the week starting at midnight tonight.

Carnera, World's heavyweight pugilistic ruler, and Max Baer his handsome challenger, both make their bow before the Kliegs. The giant's battle with his challenger, before an actual battle has been arranged, is without precedent and has aroused the interest of the entire sports world. Baer's appearances are said to bode a new vogue in screen leading men, such a striking performance does he offer.

The plot of this emotionally stirring, highly romantic film, depicts the career of a hard-boiled night club bouncer who rises from his humble position to that of a fighter of championship caliber.

Scores of internationally known former champions and their contemporaries add realism to the "sizzling" prize fight sequences. And action of a new kind is injected in the "Battle of the Century" in which Carnera and Baer exchange blows.

Giant Musical Continues Run

With everyone in Washington talking about "Footlight Parade" and its spectacular dance ensembles, gorgeous girls, famous stars and catchy tunes, the management announces that its engagement will be continued.

Four gigantic musical numbers, which he states surpass anything yet done, are staged by Busby Berkeley, who created and staged the ensembles for "42nd Street" and "Gold Diggers." They include a most unique cat number, in which scores of girls dressed in feline costumes, frolic in the moonlight and make love on the backyard fence. The scene by the waterfall is a glorious spectacle in which more than a hundred swimming girls take part. The "Honeymoon Hotel" and "Shanghai Lil" numbers are said to be equally effective and unique.

APPLYING THE LAW OF SYMMETRY.

No mathematical point in all card playing is quite so difficult to settle as the question of whether or not to finesse for an outstanding Queen when holding nine cards of a certain suit headed by the A-K-J. Too few players have learned to use the Law of Symmetry for their guidance, although their choice of plays often determines the success or failure of their contract.

The principle of the Law of Symmetry is very simple. It was original with me, and I have long recommended it highly to all Bridge players because I know how valuable it has been to me, and thus can be to them. The player must simply remember that whatever the pattern of any hand of 13 cards dealt, there will probably be a suit pattern which conforms to it. Thus, if a player's hand is divided 5-4-3-1, the distribution of some suit in the four hands will probably be 5-4-3-1 also. This varies, of course, but usually only to the extent of one card. That is, the equivalent suit may be divided 5-4-2-2.

The hand which I discuss below is a very fine example of the application of the Law of Symmetry in actual play. Each of the four hands has a definite pattern, of course, and each of the four suits is of the exact pattern of one of those hands. By realizing that this was probable, a clever player made a Small Slam, vulnerable, and gained 1,730 points for his team.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 7 4 2 ♡ 3 ◇ A K 6 ♣ A K J 9 7 4
♠ 6 ♡ A K 10 9 6 ◇ Q 10 8 3 ♣ 8 5 3	N W E S	♠ Q 9 8 ♡ J 8 4 2 ◇ 9 7 5 2 ♣ 10 6
	♠ A K J 10 5 3 ♡ Q 7 5 ◇ J 4 ♣ Q 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♣	Pass
4♠	Pass	4NT	Pass
6♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West won the first trick with the King of hearts, and then led a small club, which South took in his own hand with the Queen. After playing the Ace of spades, South stopped to determine his proper play in the next round of spades. This play was all-important because he could not afford to lose another trick. In this situation the Lack of Symmetry came to his aid.

The Dummy hand was distributed 6-3-3-1. That meant that very likely one of the suits was distributed in the same way. It seemed unlikely to South that it could be the heart suit, since West, with a six-card heart suit headed by the A-K, probably would have overcalled the Opening one-spade bid. Of course, the Law of Symmetry is not 100 per cent accurate, and the club suit might represent the variation, but the spade suit was unaccounted for, and South considered his best chance to lie in the possibility that the spades conformed in pattern to the Dummy hand.

South therefore led a diamond to Dummy's King, led a small spade from Dummy, and finessed the 10. This enabled him to draw trumps without the loss of a trick, and discard his other losers on Dummy's set up club suit, making six.

Tomorrow's Hand.

How should South plan the play of the hand below at a contract of six spades, against which West has opened a singleton diamond?

South, Dealer.

Marquise Visits Mrs. Harriman For Short Stay

Former Miss Nina Crosby in America After 15 Years.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman will have as her guest for several days the Marquise de Polignac, who will arrive today from New York.

The Marquise is visiting in this country for the first time in 15 years. She was formerly Miss Nina Crosby, and has been with her mother, Mrs. L. C. Crosby, at her home on Madison avenue in New York for several weeks. The Marquise has also spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney.

The Marquise was formerly married to James Biddle Eustis, of New Orleans, who died in 1915. In 1917 she married the Marquis Melchior de Polignac, who was then in America with the French high commission under Tardieu. Shortly after they returned to France and the Marquis resumed his services at the front. Their only son is Dalmas, now 13 years old, named after an abbe of the year 900, a forbear.

The Marquis is the head of the great champagne house of Pommery, which produces the famous Pommery brand. It was founded in 1836, so that in three years it celebrates its centenary. The genius of its early history was Mme. Pommery (grandmother of the present Marquis), widow of the founder, who in 1858 commenced the manufacture of sparkling white champagne, as distinguished from the still red champagne previously made, and which is too delicate for shipment.

Mme. Pommery, in those early years, purchased the wasteland below which lay a maze of chalk pits and quarries first developed by the Romans 1,600 years before. From them the firm of Pommery developed the greatest cellar in the world, the famous Pommery "caves" whose galleries extend for 16 miles, at an average depth below the ground of 90 feet, where today more than 10,000,000 bottles of France's finest champagne is stored under perfect conditions, which includes an unvarying temperature of about 50 degrees.

Former Representative and Mrs. James T. Begg, of Cleveland, Ohio, have arrived in Washington and will spend several days at the Shoreham. They are accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Ward Harreld, whose marriage to the son of former Senator John W. Harreld, of Oklahoma, took place in Washington a few years ago. Mrs. Harreld has been visiting her parents in Cleveland.

Beauty Advisers Reveal How Every Woman May Attain Perfection in Her Type

Underwood & Underwood.

The radiant Spanish beauty of Mrs. Hugo Rennert (above) is said by national beauty experts to belong to the siren type; that of Ymelda Chavez (right) debutante daughter of Representative and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico, to the gamine; and that of Betty Leach (center, above), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Leach, to the piquante.

New Perfumes Boast Fancy Names, Odors

By Ruth Ann Davis.

Scheherazade's spirit must have returned to earth long enough for her to christen three new perfumes. Their names savor of those famous bedtime stories with which she regaled old Sultan What's-his-name. Listen to them: Three Passions, Thousand Joys, and Coeur de femme.

Putting perfumes into words is about as satisfactory as attending the theater with dark glasses glued to the eyes. But we sniffed and we sniffed at the gorgeous looking bottles, determined to translate odors to the English language.

When we picked up the Three Passions in a tiny black marble-like urn we fully expected to reel with intoxication from a heavy exotic scent. But Three Passions doesn't smell as it sounds. Not that it was a disappointment; rather it was a sweet surprise. It has delicacy with depth. It has naivete with sophistication. In fact, mesdames et mademoiselles, it has everything.

One little joy may have had a bit of lightness in the beginning, but by the time it is combined with nine hundred and ninety-nine others to make a Thousand Joys, it is distinctly heavy and amber in quality. Please don't use more than a tiny drop of it. A mere touch of this perfume on furs or velvet is the personification of allure.

Coeur de femme is spicy and piquante.

All three perfumes are bottled in one-dram gold metal containers. The price of this purse size is $1.50. The urn-like bottles contain 2 ounces and are priced at $16.50. The urns come in attractive, black leatherette cases.

Amusing sentiments are scribbled on parchment notes for Christmas and New Year's. Debs and subdebs will adore the snappy drawings, vivid colors and smart sayings. There is ample room inside the folded parchment for a personal note.

The paper measures 3½ by 5½ inches. Envelopes are creamy parchment. A box of 12 notes, no 2 alike, cost 50 cents.

Extra shoes are a nuisance when one is traveling unless the wanderer has a shoe case among luggage equipment. Since few people do, the next best thing is a collection of knit shoe bags. When one has these handy things it's easy to slip a shoe in each one and then pack it almost anywhere. It saves the shoe from being scuffed and saves other things from being soiled by the shoes.

These little bags are elastic enough to fit any shoe. That means it's no trouble at all to buy them for Christmas gifts, since it is unnecessary to know the shoe size.

Trim leather bows add a frivolous touch to otherwise severely plain pumps. An F street shop has attractive black and brown ones in fine, soft leather, for 25 cents a pair. That price includes the fastening of the bows to slippers.

In addition to the leather ones, this shop has bone and marcasite bows. Chromium cross bands ornament the ends of tailored brown ones. Marcasite outlines a black bone bow knot. A vertical row of topaz marks each end of a deep brown bow.

Squat candlesticks are $3.50 a pair. A bud vase is $2.75 and a cigarette box is $2.50.

Imported "clumsy" all-over lace pieces are being sold at one-half their original price at a downtown department store. The heavy, deep-cream colored lace makes lovely dresser scarfs, doilies, chair backs and arm rests.

The scarfs are 16 inches wide and from 36 to 72 inches long. The prices range from $1.75 to $3. Ten by fourteen inch doilies are 50 cents. Chair backs are the same price, while arm rests are 38 cents.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Indian Club Found.

Bristol, Va.—While gathering corn in a field on the Creech farm, 1 mile east of Big Laurel, Va., Leonard E. Carter kicked up an Indian war club.

The find was made on a spot pointed out by old residents as the Indian camp ground, and from among many fragments of flint, although the club seems to be of lime stone.

It is about 18 inches long, has a well-finished handle, and the end used to club with is chipped much as Indians chipped their tomahawks.

Many Women of Capital Society Are Selected as Ideal Beauties.

Through identifying herself with the master type of beauty to which she belongs, any woman may develop her essential charm, beauty authorities declare. Study of dress make-up and coiffure are essential to personality development, they insist.

This is the fourth of a series of articles giving 12 master types of beauty, and telling how each may be attained and perfected.

By Elizabeth Young.

The instinctive reaching out for beauty exists in every woman. Literature, the theater, her day-by-day contacts in this modern world have given her a realization of the importance of making and keeping herself attractive.

Today no woman is condemned for beautifying herself. Rather, she feels an obligation to do so, since society demands that she strive for perfection in appearance, and cultivate every possibility of personality.

Famous experts on beauty interviewed in Washington during the course of a research into the nature and kinds of feminine loveliness, agreed there are twelve great master beauty types. Since the dawn of history, they say, every woman has belonged to one of these types. By consciously identifying herself with one of the natural divisions of beauty, any woman may be compellingly lovely and fascinating, these authorities insist.

They have chosen striking examples of these twelve types from among beautiful debutantes and society matrons in Washington in order to familiarize all women with their distinguishing features.

Beauty authorities believe that coiffure, wardrobe and cosmetics play a tremendous part in liberating the potential physical loveliness and personality force inherent in every woman. In naming the second six groups of Washington beauties who belong to master beauty types, they give their opinion as to the effect each group should strive to achieve.

The Siren

The radiant Spanish beauty of Mrs. Hugo Rennert, with her satiny black hair, perfect features, intense dark eyes and dazzling unexpected smile, led beauty experts to classify her as the siren beauty, and complete woman. Others placed in this category are Mrs. F. W. Bunker, who has long narrow blue eyes, a camelia-white skin with pink underglow, short black hair oddly worn, and magnetic personality; and Mrs. Frances Pearson Rust, very tall and striking, with a smile of bewitching brilliance, and strange dark eyes.

Emile, dean of Washington's hair dressers, feels that a woman may belong to the siren type and yet be completely modern in her coiffure.

"I see no reason why she need have straggly, insane looking hair, so often portrayed in our modern moving pictures," he commented. 'She is the svelte type, who needs little or no wave in her hair, just a suggestion of undulating smoothness. She should bring her hair down over the forehead just a trifle, parting it in the side if she likes and arrange it softly forward on the cheeks. If it is cut short, it should be swirled smartly across the back of her head."

The quiet assurance and monk-like charm of this type is subtly enhanced by many of Vionnet's models, with their dramatic Mephistophelian sweep, says Miss Mary Whiteman, stylist at Jelleff's.

Walya, Russian stylist and dress designer, would gown her in black or white velvet, white satin, or gray lame or dextrous cut and daring line, and wrap her in ermine for evening. This is the type to wear plain sports or tailored garments, lavish furs, expensive jewels, and elusive perfume for daytime.

Mme. L. de Sokoloff, cosmetician of international experience, would give this woman long, heavy lashes to make the eyes as large and deep as possible; she allows her a liberal use of eye crayon, mascara and eyeshadow to give sheen and mystery to her glance, and insists that her coloring, though it be attained by lavish make-up, be kept extremely soft and rich.

"Her throat must be lovely; this woman must be perfectly groomed, and must be deliberate and graceful in movement," said Mme. de Sokoloff. "Always she has an alluring mouth, and the tones of her voice must be soft and unhurried."

The Exotic.

The soft, dark beauty of Alicia Rogers, daughter of Mrs. Philip Owen Coffin, with her beautiful mouth, cloudy black hair and mysterious eyes, belongs to the exotic type, suggesting a fragility which requires a luxurious background. Others of this type are Nella Veverka, debutante daughter of the Minister of Czechoslovakia, who has a cool, amused loveliness; Dorothea Lane, daughter of Mr. Richard Lane, with her magnolia complexion, exquisitely modeled head and abundant dark hair; and the Russian, Mme. Echegaray, the former Larissa Rabinowitch, with her almond eyes, slow speech and rich dark beauty.

Heavy gold jewelry, massive bracelets of diamonds or other precious stones and bizarre earrings, if she wears her hair close to her head, enhance the charm of the exotic woman, who for daytime wears rich, severe tailored clothes and magnificent furs. In her cosmetic make-up, the exotic beauty may achieve the illusion of transparent skin through the use of liquid powder, and she should keep her brows delicately curved. Her nails should be long and tapering, and brilliantly tinted.

This type of woman may draw her hair directly back from her forehead, or, for variety, allow small soft ringlets to caress her brow. Her hair should be so arranged as to give the effect of a soft, glinting mesh, and may be fluffed out into a shining aureole, or kept smartly close to the head.

The Piquante.

The impish charm of the piquante is arrestingly portrayed in the person of Betty Leach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Leach, of Illinois, who is spending the winter in Washington. Other Washington beauties of this type are Natalie Keeney, grandniece of Mrs. Sidney Kloman, who has pixie eyes, a slanting mouth and fly-away brown hair; and Elizabeth Gill, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore N. Gill. Miss Gill is a slender, roguish-eyed, brown-haired beauty.

Dainty, provocative clothing best suits the piquante girl, who may wear jeweled clips on ribbed satin frocks, made with swathy girdles, exaggerated shoulders and unusual necklines. Severe dark blue and tailored gray are her best choice for daytime wear, and for evening, Walya insists that she wear a figured gold lame when she wishes to be her best.

"A sense of superiority unconsciously motivates the piquante type, because of her keen, incisive humor," said Walya. "There is something about gold lame that completely accents this quality. With such a gown, she should wear long, heavy gold earrings, inlaid with black mosaic."

In her cosmetic make-up, she

Road to Success Rockiest For Women, Says First Lady

And She Tells College Girls a Sheepskin Is Not a Sure Help.

Chestertown, Md., Nov. 8.—"A successful woman has twice as hard a time in the business and professional world as a successful man," Mrs. Frinklin D. Roosevelt said in an interview here during her visit to the Eastern Shore, where she saw her husband receive the degree of doctor of laws from Washington College.

The First Lady of the Land was interviewed by Miss Dorothy Clarke, of 106 Woodland road, Roland Park, Baltimore, a sophomore in the college and a graduate of St. Mary's Seminary, St. Marys, Md.

On the eve of the publication of her book, "It's Up to the Women," Mrs. Roosevelt sat at luncheon on the greensward of Godlington Manor, country estate on the Chester River of Col. Hiram S. Brown, president of the board of governors of the college and New York financier.

"Coeducational as practiced at Washington College and other similar small and even larger colleges," she said, "is beneficial to certain types of young women, but not to other types. Each individual must settle for herself whether or not her personality and aims are suited to a coeducational institution or to a purely women's college. However, I believe the small college, whether or not coeducational, has a distinct advantage over the larger institution in at least one point. It permits greater freedom of intercourse among students and teachers, the former thus receiving the benefits of direct and frequent contact with more mature and experienced minds."

Since many women are highly successful in the business world without the advantages of a college education the First Lady would not say a college education is absolutely essential to progress for all women.

"I feel that young women will benefit materially by attending college, but I know many progressive, intelligent and successful women who have never been to college."

In answer to the question as to whether or not the college woman graduate has today an equal chance with the man graduate, Mrs. Roosevelt smilingly remarked that "the road to success is harder for a woman than for a man, all things being equal."

"The girl who seeks thrills and adventure," she said, "will find them all in the business world."

Grace Moore Here To Sing for Crusade

Will Give "Butterfly" Aria on Program Today.

Fresh and apparently unwearied by a dash across the continent, made to enable her to sing at the Women's Crusade mass meeting at Constitution Hall today at 4:30 o'clock, Miss Grace Moore, noted opera singer and motion picture star, last night expressed her pleasure at being able to do something for this movement, of which Mrs. Roosevelt is National chairman.

Grace Moore.

"I have the greatest admiration for Mrs. Roosevelt," the singer said, "and when my friend, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, offered me the opportunity to appear on the same program with her, I immediately wired 'Yes,' arranged with my producers for the necessary holiday, and started for Washington. I am proud to have a part in this great movement for suffering humanity, and I am always glad to have an opportunity to do something for Washington, the Capital of the Nation, to which I think every American owes service."

Mrs. Roosevelt will be the speaker on today's program, to which the public is invited. Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Washington chairman of the Women's Crusade, will preside. Miss Moore will sing the aria from "Madame Butterfly" and the old favorite, "Annie Laurie." There will be no admission charge. Both men and women are welcome.

College Sob Sister Lands A "Big One"

Reporter for "Diamondback" Gets First Lady's Story.

College Park, Md., Nov. 8.—The story of Kitty Wells' first interview after she became a reporter for the Diamondback, University of Maryland weekly publication here, is a bit of news behind the news that has just come to light. She chose as her subject the President of the United States.

Miss Katherine Wells is a Washington girl and a student at the local institution. She is pretty, a brunette and a sophomore. Her assignment was to "interview somebody big."

Learning the President would be in Chestertown, Md., to receive a degree from Washington College at the time of the inauguration of President Gilbert W. Mead, a few days ago, she set out in high spirits. Having secured a press pass to the press box she subsequently managed an invitation to luncheon at the estate of Col. Hiram S. Brown, president of the board of governors of the college, after the campus ceremony.

Discovering the President was not to dine with the reporters she mustered all the courage she had and wandered into the Presidential room where the official luncheon was being held. Presently she was shaking hands with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and asking for an interview.

The President was too busy but the First Lady offered to "substitute." The offer was accepted and Miss Wells succeeded in interviewing "somebody big."

"She was grand," was Miss Wells' comment on the interview, "and I was so thrilled."

Grand Old Lady Scolded Debutante

The next morning early her mother was surprised by a visit from Mrs. Henderson.

"Where's Sissy?" the caller asked.

"She is not up yet," answered the mother, wondering.

"Get her up."

After some dimculty this was done. When she appeared before the venerable lady her august eye was fixed on her. "That dress you wore at my ball last night," declared Mrs. Henderson, "was too low and too tight-fitting. I have known you since you were in baby clothes. Don't you wear that dress again to my house or any one else's. Get back to bed."

And the debutante obeyed both dictums.

How to Keep Well

Bunions in Art.

In A Century of Progress exhibition of paintings at the Chicago Art Institute there is at least one picture in which the subject is portrayed as having bunions and assorted deformities of the toes, including what may be hammer toe. It is true that the early painters drew the human foot very inadequately. Their knowledge of anatomy did not extend to that of the feet or, at least, that would be a fair inference as to some of the painters.

But that is not the explanation of the peculiar shape of the feet in two of the pictures found there. In one the feet are very broad across the ball. In front of the ball of the foot the toes make a triangle.

Since the foot is so much broader at the ball than it is at the heel there is another triangle effect, the second one having its base at the ball and its apex somewhere back of the heel.

The people in the period when this picture was painted did not wear shoes as we know them today. When there was a foot covering it was a sandal, consisting of a sole and just enough top to hold the sole in place. Obviously, wearing short and narrow shoes could not have been a cause of bunions in either of these periods.

This fact lends support to the theory that bunions develop principally because of the conditions within the foot, and that the effects of improper shoes are contributing causes only. This theory holds that bunions develop in feet in which there are sesamoid bones or bony spurs on the foot bones, and that these get between the long and naturally parallel foot bones, causing them to spread. Of these, displaced sesamoids are the more frequent cause.

The thickening of the bones of the ball and the development of large corns and calluses around these joints are secondary effects, the spreading ranking as a primary effect. Hammer toe ranks as a tertiary or third class effect.

When this theory applies the proper curative treatments consist in removing the sesamoid or bony spur which causes the spreading. When this has been done the foot bones again lie parallel and, in course of time, the thickening of the bones lessens, the calluses and corns disappear, and the toes straighten to a degree.

So far as the evidence of painting goes some people had bunions prior to the invention of the modern shoe. However, it may have been that some 400 years ago painters did not try to be accurate in painting the feet, merely adding something down there by way of scenery.

Gall Bladder and Saw.

O. H. H. writes: You may remember me as the gallstone patient of several years ago. We carried on quite a little correspondence as to possible gall bladder infection. Well, the upshot of the matter is that since I've been taking active exercise (cutting wood) I have not been troubled with gall bladder infection or any other thing. I have been normally healthy, eat plenty, of anything that is put on the table and am able to handle one end of a crosscut saw five to six hours at a stretch without giving out.

Hives Remedy.

Mrs. E. F. C. writes: I have the best remedy for hives. I commenced having this troubles last February. When I itch and am tempted to scratch, I resist the urge by will power. It is terrible, but it lasts only five minutes. The welts spread as soon as you scratch. If I get mad, angry, or nervous the itching starts. If I scratch it gets worse. If I do not scratch, the itching stops. It takes patience, but it works.

Reply.

There is much truth in what you write. Scratching is an expensive luxury.

U. S. Woman Designer Does Evening Modes

Muriel King Shows Quaint Gowns of Upholstery Satin.

Muriel King, one of the few American designers offering serious competition to the French couturiers, has turned from daytime clothes to the evening mode. She has placed emphasis thus far on fashions that are pre-Victorian in material as well as color.

Heavy "upholstery" satin and extremely stiff failles are used in unusual combinations, such as rosy brown with vivid purple. A satin striped chiffon makes a black dress that is different.

One of Designer King's most stunning creations is a heavy black faille ensemble with swashbuckling collar and revers on three-quarter length coat. The accompanying cocktail frock is cut on rather prim lines with semiencrusted white fichu and infinitesimal sleeves.

Enormous frogs decorate this designer's daytime collection. A two-piece taupe model, with frogs on the blouse, has an accompanying taupe suede cloth double-breasted coat with black seal skin collar, cuffs and revers.

What Today Means

"SCORPIO."

If November 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:15 to 8:30 a. m., from 10:45 to 11:55 a. m. and from 5 to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 12:20 to 1:30 p. m., from 3 to 4:30 p. m. and from 8:20 to 9 p. m.

It is possible that you have been forced to follow a course of action for a period of time that you have rebelled against. If this be the case, you will probably become reconciled to the situation on this date, and see it in the right light. Something that has been troubling you is almost certain to clear up.

The child born on this November 9 will have little to say, but when it speaks, it should be given proper hearing. A proud little one, who will think well of himself and family. A child who will strive hard for victory, will hate to have to hoist down its colors, but will be graceful in defeat; a thorough sport.

If November 9 is the date of your birth, you are probably a person who will give a hearing to anyone who seems to have anything to say, who will listen courteously, and then go off and do just as he pleases. You enjoy talking to people and frequently seeds are sown in your consciousness that take root and blossom forth beautifully later on. You do not have a very high opinion of the average man, but you give every man an even break and you are slow to condemn. People do not easily get on your nerves. When they do, however, you get very irritable and do not hesitate to show your feelings. At times you give way to a fiery temper that is slow to cool down; on such occasions, those who know you wisely give you plenty of clearance.

Born on November 9, you will more than likely make a success of your life. Success to you means more than merely the acquisition of wealth and power. It means the proper blending and balancing of things spiritual and material. You like to see, in determining how successful a person is, what that individual has in a material way and what his thought processes are. You are more careful than most people in the choice of your friends; as a result, you probably have fewer friends, but those you have are more substantial and enduring. You like to be in a position to do for your friends, but you do not like to have them do for you. You must learn to accept in a grateful and gracious manner; giving implies having someone to give to, and you must learn to play either part in the highest and most perfect way.

Countess Wove Tapestries.

On the walls of the German Embassy on Massachusetts avenue hang several small tapestries made by the hands of Countess von Bernstorff, the American wife of the German Ambassador who served in Washington in the days before the World War.

Countess von Bernstorff was known as the diplomatic Penelope of the loom. While she talked to callers, and even after dinner parties, her long, lovely hands, sparkling with jewels, were always busy with the loom. The curtains in the Bernstorff town house in Berlin were woven by Countess von Bernstorff.

"Women will long to be hideous. That inevitably will be their next craze." So predicts J. B. Morton in "Hag's Harvest," a lively satire just published by Doubleday Doran. His heroine, so inconceivably ugly that she even rivals the sculptures of Epstein, sets London society wild with admiration. So a cultivated hideousness, Mr. Morton says, must come as the sole resource for novelty. But his prophecy seems to ignore the wealth of unintentioned talent we already have with us.

Because Cora Jarrett doesn't tell until the end of "Night Over Fitch's Pond" that the motivating character is dead, and because Miss Jarrett has written detective stories, impulsive reviewers have set up a howl that she played fast and loose with the rules of writing mystery stories. They are perfectly right—if "Night Over Fitch's Pond" were a detective yarn. "But," says Miss Jarrett, "this isn't a mystery tale. It is a serious study of the way that a mind at the very end of its tether will work." If read with the author's intention in mind, the book becomes a moving psychological narrative of married life which rises to a remarkable climax. Houghton-Mifflin are the publishers.

Hendrik Willem Van Loon has returned to New York from abroad to go under the care of his favorite doctor, since, as he says, "a flu germ seems to want to make its permanent home with me." Mention of his name recalls that Mr. Van Loon was once a cub reporter in Washington for 24 hours. Years ago when Mr. Fred Emery was night editor of the old A. P. Bureau, Mr. Van Loon strolled in one afternoon for a job, was told to go out and get what news he could. Late that night he reappeared, in top silk hat, full evening regalia, and bearing a gold-headed cane. "Meester Emer-r-r-y, I have an eetem here forrr you," he said, and laid down a paragraph an inch and a half long. The next day he went back to New York and sailed at once for Russia as an A. P. correspondent. Admittedly, the sequence of these moves needs further explanation. Things don't happen like that nowadays.

From the Modern Cracker-Box.

"Men are queer creatures, my dear. It is unfortunate that women have nothing else to marry. But you can be happy with one if you make allowance for his vanities instead of killing his joy to show how 'independent' you are."

With just that combination of irrepressible and twinkling humor, homely common sense and transparent belief in the supremacy of the male have the readers of The Post become thoroughly acquainted. Mr. Quillen appears every day on the editorial page. This little paper-bound volume holds the best of his letters to his daughter for the past year.

For they are quite real, father and daughter. They live in Fountain Inn, S. C., a town of 1,500 people and 60 miles south of Asheville. There Mr. Quillen sits down every day before lunch and turns out 21 paragraphs for syndication, such as, "Another good reducing exercise consists in placing both hands against the table edge and pushing back." There he writes two syndicated features, "Aunt Het" and "Willie Willis," and the daily editorial which The Post prints.

And there he publishes one of the most notable little newspapers in the world, the Fountain Inn Tribune. As he said in its columns one day: "The Tribune, as the masthead explains, is printed for my own amusement and the entertainment of all my friends. But it is also printed for kindred spirits, far and near, who like it well enough to pay $1.50 a year. Other people, being enraged at something printed in its columns, may find comfort in the reflection that it is none of their business. If you listen at a keyhole, it is your own fault if you aren't pleased with what you hear."

But quotation is too attractive. Read the Tribune, or look into Cosmopolitan's issue for September and find Mr. Alexander Woollcott's discoveries about Fountain Inn and Mr. Quillen. They make grand reading.

For Mr. Quillen is the cracker-box philosopher par excellence, the example in our day of a type which once ranged from Hosea Bigelow in Cambridge, Mass., to Josh Billings, in Hartford, Conn., to Mark Twain in Hannibal, Mo. The pungency, the directness and practicality, Yankee or Scotch or French according to your point of view, is that known in its entirety as peculiarly American. Yet the age has changed him, as it decimated the others. His eye has a wideness their's lacked. When he says: "Don't condemn anything by comparing it with the standard of perfection; everything that exists, including people, is precisely as it should be and must be at its present state of development," he speaks for people who have digested our vaunted psychologies. Holding yet to the accent of Vermont, he strikes home in Piney Branch road and Macomb street. He is with us now, and because his voice sounds like our grandfather's we listen to him the more eagerly. There is no daughter, red-headed or not, whom Mr. Quillen's wisdom cannot in some degree improve.

New Dinner-at-Eight Habits Revive Men's Formal Dress

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where clothes of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

New York, Nov. 9.—Led by men like Charles Lindberg, Laborman William Green, War Secretary George H. Dern and Silly Symphonist Walt Disney, the American male is adding to his formal plumage, and acquiring the dress-up habits of the Continentals. He's now adding a full dress suit to his wardrobe.

Because of the day of the versatility of the tuxedo is over. Where men once thought they could wear their tuxes for anything more formal than a business conference, they now concede the tuxedo has its appointed and limited place in the scheme of things . . . and the full dress also has its place. And an increasingly important one, at that.

Men More Dress-Conscious.

This more dress-conscious man is becoming more alert to the fine points of what occasion calls for what suit. He used to feel that putting on full dress was the equivalent of draping himself in a musketeer's uniform for a masquerade ball. Now he's again forgetting to be self-conscious about stepping out in public in his whites.

Actually, there's nothing at all complicated about the formal dress problem—except the needless mental tangle of the man who's venturing it all for the first time. The truth of the matter is simple enough. It goes like this:

When—And When Not.

If his crowd is the ultra smart kind, if he's an important somebody in an important city, if he dines publicly often, and if he gets around to smart theater parties and dinners-at-eight and swanky receptions—he must, by all means, own and regularly wear a full dress suit.

But if he's not involved in the social whirl in a really big way, or if the crowd he belongs to is a homey, comfort-loving unstarched kind, and if his mail is free of formal invitations, then he's safe and sound in sticking to his dinner suit, or his colloquial tux, or (if he's a collegian) his blacks.

To repeat: The full dress is climbing into prominence again, with the return to formality and with the increasingly wide desire of most American men to be more appropriately dressed—and hence better dressed—for the particular occasion.

Details Are Important.

There are, of course, certain simple rules to follow on the hat, shirt, tie, vest and so on that should be worn with a full dress. We've worked these out for you—and incidentally we've pointed out the items that are interchangeable with tux or tails—in a simple, easy list which is yours for the asking. It's a mighty good thing to have if you're in the market for a full dress. Or if you are reviving the dress suit you already have.

Perfect Beauty Attainable, Say Expert Advisers

may be comparatively sophisticated, yet must not lose the suggestion of daintiness. Her arched, surprised brows must be emphasized, as well as the roguish merriment of eyes and mouth. This is attained by conservative use of mascara and soft, bright rouge.

The Innocent.

The cameo-like, angelic blond loveliness of Mrs. John Bain, the former Jocelyn Hibberd, perfectly illustrates the innocent type of beauty, in which classification is also Mrs. Andrew Parker, the former Louise Tompkins, beautiful slender brunette of medium height, with hazel eyes.

The wide-apart eyes and small sweet mouth of the innocent beauty preclude the use of studied make-up, allowing only a suggestion of eye shadow, a touch of rouge, and a hint of rose colored lipstick. Her hair is simply dressed, drawn back in a smooth wave from the forehead and cheeks, and gathered in a soft cluster of curls or small roll at the base of her head. Molyneux creates a wardrobe of classic simplicity for this type of beauty, using shadowy chiffons for evening, with wraps of velvet and short-nap fur. Organza is also an excellent evening fabric, or satins in simple white or violet blue. Her jewels are pearls. For daytime she should wear plain clothes in blue, green and brown, of modest cut, with nothing bright or shiny in fabric or accessory.

The Gamine.

The fiery spontaneity of the Gamine beauty is exemplified in Ymelda Chavez, debutante daughter of Representative and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico, with her flashing black eyes and olive skin; as well as in the auburn-haired, brown-eyed Anna Kilshaw Smith, daughter of Mrs. Lucien Green, and Rion Fortesque, gay, hazel-eyed daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Granville Fortesque.

The personification of insouciance, this girl is most effectively clad for daytime in the jolly Tyrolean-inspired sports costumes of the season, with their checked and plaid suits, velveteen blouses, suede waistcoats, brilliant scarves and cockaded hats. For evening Walya says she must wear black with silver, or unadorned flaming red as symbolizing the flame of life which burns in her. For daytime, she may have a wide range of colors—red, brown, green gray and black—with brilliant accessories.

Mme. de Sokoloff says this girl must have delicately arched brows, suggesting the lightness of her spirit, that her cheek make-up may be vivid, and her mouth definitely rouged. Emile says the wind-blown coiffure was created for this beauty type, whose hair should be short, and swept forward in wavelets about her face, falling in ringlet bangs across her brow.

The Wholesome.

The unspoiled freshness of the wholesome beauty is completely expressed in the countenances of Mildred and Peggy English, twin debutante daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Merton English; in Alice Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Fleming, and in Margaret Cotter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cotter. Mildred English has crisply, curling black hair, and is the glowing, outdoor girl; her sister is blue-eyed and blonde, curved and vivacious. Miss Fleming's sapphire blue eyes animate a fascinatingly bronzed skin, for which her tawny hair makes an attractive frame; and Mis Cotter is small, golden-haired and athletic.

This type must keep her natural eyebrow line, in making up her face, experts agree, for it gives sympathy to her expression, which is her chief beauty. Her hair, too, must be subordinated to the changing expression of her face, and should be drawn softly back to expose the natural hairline. It may be parted on the side, with a cluster of ringlets at the parting, and combed toward the nape of the neck. It may be sheared at the neckline, or dressed in a simple roll, if worn long.

Simple outdoor sports clothes of the swagger type are ideal daytime garments for this girl, who should wear short-nap furs, off-the-face hats, heavy serviceable gloves and smart sports shoes. For evening, simply cut gowns in black or white, with modest jewels, suit her best. Her daytime colors are blue, brown, black and soft green.

Read in tomorrow's Post the first of a series of interviews with Washington women who have been identified with the 12 great beauty types.

The Family Marketer

There Are Grapes and Grapes, the Marketer Learns by Tasting.

"Are you acquainted with the muscato grape?" asked the market man.

"Not very well," the Marketer admitted. "Does it have a history?"

"Try this one." The market man offered her a fat one, delicate green in color. "It is called the sweetest grape in the world. The best ones grow in the mountains of Italy."

" It is sweet," said the Marketer, biting into it.

"Now try this one. It's brown and looks spoiled, but just taste it."

The Marketer hesitated. After all the market man must know what he was talking about. She put it in her mouth.

"Oh, how delicious! It's sweeter than the other one."

"These grapes, they make the most wonderful wine. I make wine myself every year. Pure grape wine." His eyes sparkled.

The Marketer always thought an avacado was just an alligator pear. But no, the market man tells her that there are over a hundred different kinds, different in size, shape and flavor. It's rather confusing, when you think of all the variations on the original theme, but the only one the housewife has to bother about is the fat, shiny-green kind that sells on the market stall for 15, 20 and 25 cents each. One big one is almost a meal.

Puckerless Persimmons

Persimmons! The Marketer remembers the awful ones she used to pick from the tree in the school yard. Her mouth puckers at the thought. But here on the stall she finds a golden orange one, sleek and fat, sweet and melting, for 10 cents, or 3 for 25 cents. They're big as a big orange.

Bananas are 15 and 20 cents a dozen. They are larger than the usual ones, and just ripe enough. Grapefruit are 5 and 10 cents each.

Tomatoes are 10 cents a pound, cabbage, three pounds for 10 cents; celery hearts sell for 10 and 15 cents a bunch.

If you haven't made your crab-apple jelly yet now is the time to buy the apples. They are 5 cents a pound at a certain stall, and the Marketer has learned that they are cheaper and better than they have been for several weeks.

You can get bacon for seasoning and frying for 12½ cents a pound. This bacon is fatter than some, and is excellent for seasoning green vegetables. It is leaner than salt pork so can be used for frying as well. Bottom round steak for today's menu sells for 20 cents a pound. Top round is 25 cents. Leg o' lamb is 20 cents a pound at a certain stall, lamb shoulder 12½ cents a pound.

Swiss Steak.

1½ lbs. round steak
½ cup flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons fat
1 small onion, chopped
1½ cup stewed tomatoes, tomato juice, or hot water

Have the steak cut 1½ inches thick. Mix the flour, salt, and pepper; spread half the mixture on a molding board, place the steak on the board; sprinkle with part of the remaining flour. Pound the steak with a hammer, wooden mallet, or the edge of a heavy plate until all of the flour has been taken up by the meat. Turn occasionally so that both sides are evenly floured.

Heat the fat in a frying pan; saute the pounded steak on both sides, in the hot fat; add the onion and tomatoes; cover tightly and simmer until tender or bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1 to 1½ hours. The flour which was pounded into the steak should thicken the liquid, making a sauce which can be poured over the meat on the serving platter.

Stella Aiken Wears Black Crepe Gown

(Associated Press.)

The coppery-haired Stella Aiken, new member of the Department of Justice staff, wears a dance frock of black sheer crepe made with long sleeves that cover half the back of her hand. The neckline is high, slit in back to the waist with dozens of tiny, sparkling buttons holding it in place.

Worth Wedding Gown Of Dark Red Velvet

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Miss Anderson Interested in Work for Young Girls.

MISS HETTIE P. ANDERSON.

Welfare work is all in the day's work for Miss Hettie P. Anderson, general secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association. Her every minute from early morning until late at night is filled with work for girls and women in connection with her official duties. And yet she finds time to serve as a member of the board of the Council of Social Agencies and as a trustee of the Community Chest, while serving as an ex-officio member of all committees of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Anderson also takes an active part in the activities of the executive council of the Community Chest, an organization composed of the executives of the various agencies affiliated with the Chest, which meets monthly to discuss welfare questions intimately related to the agencies of the Chest. While taking a broad interest in all forms of welfare work, Miss Anderson's first love is the Y. W. C. A. Of it she says:

"I became interested in the Y. W. C. A. while I was abroad. The universality of it appealed to me. For it is an organization that truly displays the real meaning of sisterhood, for it draws no line at race, color or creed.

"I feel keenly the difference that the Community Chest has made in Washington in the uniting of forces for charitable work. It has broadened the individual groups so that now they are not interested in one agency but many. That is the reason I believe that the Community Chest appeals to so many."

Miss Spencer's Wedding.

"A pioneer suffragist, who fainted at her own wedding," is a true but infrequent manner of speaking of Dr. Ellen Spencer Mussey. Dr. Mussey, who early recognized that women must strike out and get their rights, was, however, according to her contemporaries who attended the wedding of Ellen Spencer to Prof. Mussey more than 50 years ago, a petite, pretty bride in white satin and lace. Dr. Mussey says that she does not know just why she should have fainted, except for the excitement and fatigue of getting ready for her wedding.

In passing it is recalled, by those who sent Mrs. Mussey wedding presents more than a half a century ago, that she thanked them very prettily in little notes, written in the Spencerian hand she learned as first assistant to her father, the originator of the Spencerian form of hand writing.

Princess Lived Here.

Princess Chichibu, wife of the brother of the Emperor of Japan, heir apparent to the Japanese throne, knits her own sweaters much the same as she did when she was Setsu Matsudaira, daughter of the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Matsudaira. Mlle. Setsu attended Friends School in Washington, walking to and from her studies each day in the midst of a laughing, chatting group of American girls who never thought that their pretty, olive-skinned, almond-eyed schoolmate might some day be Empress of Japan.

Mlle. Setsu wore a native Japanese costume when she assisted her mother at the Friday afternoons at home at the Embassy. She wore American clothes for every day and preferred American sport clothes.

When she left this country to become a royal bride, she took with her many American sport clothes and yards of wool with which to knit sweaters for herself. She was sometimes spoken of as the Japanese Helen Wills, for she always won her tennis matches whether her opponent was an expert player or just one of her classmates.

Mlle. Setsu did not make a formal debut in Washington, but she did "go out to evening parties" just before her departure for her wedding in Japan. A notable farewell event was given in her honor by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, then wife of the Secretary of Commerce, who invited a group of young girls to meet the prospective Japanese bride at luncheon at the Hoover home on S street.

Cotton Being Raised In Cornhusker State

Falls City, Nebr. (AP).—Cotton culture in Nebraska, the cornhusker State, has been found feasible by Charles Bruhn, of this city.

From 250 plants the Bruhn family picked enough cotton this fall to fill two comforters. In several years, Bruhn declares, he never has met failure with the crop. It is ginned by hand after being warmed in an oven.

Molyneux Designs Green Hunting Garb

Costume Is of Ribbed Velvet With Pockets and Belt.

Paris (U.P.).—Lady Castlerosse has been shopping down at Molyneux's and one of the things she found particularly to her liking was a hunting costume of dark olive green ribbed velvet with a dark green sweater.

The jacket of the ensemble is hip-length, has two pockets, one at each side, and a 2-inch belt that fastens with a simple buckle in front. The collar turns over like that of a Norfolk jacket and the sleeves are straight and simple, ending with two cloth-covered buttons at the waist.

The green sweater underneath is designed along the same lines as the jacket, with buttons down the front from the throat to the waist. It has short sleeves just above the elbows.

Chicago Woman Wears Gray Jersey Costume

Paris (AP).—Mrs. Honore Palmer, of Chicago, who is spending some time abroad, attened a smart luncheon wearing a striking gray costume. The frock, designed by Schiaparelli, was of gray jersey topped by a sleeveless vest of crinkled ribbon in the same shade. With it she wore a three-quarter-length fur coat in a striped light and dark gray pelt.

Stocks Rally As Speculative Markets Rise

Alcohol Issues Join in Upturn as Sales Total 1,811,331 Shares.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Speculative markets pushed upward today as dollar depreciation was extended. Stocks confined their rally largely to the last hour, when prices rose 1 to around 5 points after wheat had had a good advance and after cotton had climbed substantially, notwithstanding the estimate of a larger crop than a year ago.

The dollar's slump began with the opening of exchange dealings here. It carried our currency to a new postwar low in relation to sterling and to a record low against the present French franc.

The inference was that the campaign for lower levels would not be immediately relaxed, and it was doubtless on this theory that commodity and share buyers became more active. To what extent professionals had taken on new long lines could not be determined, but the suddenness with which the rise in stocks started suggested considerable participation by these traders.

Election and Finances.

Election results with a financial slant included the rejection of municipal utility ownership propositions by a majority of the communities voting thereon. Assurance of prohibition repeal had but slight effect on the alcohol shares until the late advance, when that group also rallied.

Stocks profiting by particularly brisk demand included American Telephone, up more than 5 net; Case, up nearly 5; New York Central, up 3, Allied Chemical, up 4; and Montgomery Ward, up 2, on the strength of its October sales record.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, National Distillers, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Chrysler and Sears Roebuck improved 2 to 3. General Motors, after a slow start, crossed 30 for a net gain of 1¾. General Elecetric, Eastman, Auburn, Johns-Manville, International Silver, Industrial Rayon, U. S. Smelting, Canada Dry, and Union Pacific gained 1 to 3 net. Most rails advanced moderately. Transactions totaled 1,811,331 shares.

Watching for Reactions.

Some sections of Wall street were watching for possible reactions abroad, especially in Great Britain, to the continued slump of American currency. Conjecture was also heard as to how high the R. F. C. might lift the gold price, today's level, $33.05, being 21 cents above yesterday's, which in turn was unchanged from Monday. The degree of dollar depreciation, in terms of gold, has been considerable, which causes some observers to wonder when this country will work for stabilization.

Quickening of public projects as a means of relieving unemployment should have the effect of helping some industries at a time when stimulation would be welcome.

The falling off of steel mill operations has slackened, and with the help of orders for rails and other materials there is a belief that bottom has about been reached.

A Lesson From the War Debts

President's Explanation Also Applies to Domestic Business

By Ralph West Robey.

In the President's announcement concerning the British token payment on the interallied debts for December a point of view is expressed which deserves wide application. In this statement the President says, after commenting upon difficulties accompanying the recent negotiations, that, "it has, therefore, been concluded to adjourn the discussions until certain factors in the world situation—commercial and monetary—become more clarified."

The broader application which this expresion of opinion deserves arises from the fact that these "certain factors" are just as disturbing in the domestic field as they are in the problem of interallied debts. In other words, the difficulties enecountered by the United States Government, in its attempt to reach a settlement with England on the payment of interallied debts, are basically the same difficulties that American business men and American investors find confronting them when they try to plan for the future.

In the aggregate these difficulties make a rather impressive list and on the whole just at present—somewhat disheartening array. For the purpose of general analysis, however, they can be summarized under the two heads indicated by the President, namely, commercial and monetary. Between these it is difficult to make a choice on the basis of their relative importance. At the moment, however, I am inclined to think the financial problem with its various ramifications deserves first place.

Present Currency Policy Heads List of Monetary Uncertainties.

In this category one must put at the top our present monetary policy. Here we find the United States Government engaged in a process of deliberately introducing an element of uncertainty and making it utterly impossible for one to anticipate with any confidence what the value of our dollar will be, either domestically or internationally, a year, a month or even a week hence. Obviously such a situation places business men under a terrific handicap. They virtually are forced to work on a hand-to-mouth basis, for any contract extending over a long period involves the gravest kind of a risk. The result, accordingly, is that instead of making their normal business commitments they are sitting back and waiting for a clarification of our policy.

Also in the field of monetary uncertainty is the present condition of our Federal finances. Regardless of Washington statements about the Federal budget being balanced, that portion of the American public which controls the flow of investment into business channels knows that Government credit slowly but surely is being undermined. This is taking place through the incredible volume of expenditures being made by the Administration and its plans to pump out more and more billions for this or that so-called recovery drive. Such a situation contributes further to uneasiness about the future and makes private entrepreneurs all the more hesitant about assuming other than very short-term obligations.

On Commercial Side Fear Is Government Regulation.

On the commercial side the greatest disturbing factor is the fear that the Government will encroach deeper and deeper into the field of private property. Several factors contribute to this apprehension. Outstanding, of course, it the dictatorial attitude of NRA toward business and its apparent willingness to impose burdens which make ordinary enterprise especially hazardous. The entry of this organization into price fixing, too, has not spoken well for a continuation of private initiative.

Along with the NRA as a disturbing commercial factor also must be put the whole agricultural program, the apparent lack of interest in administrative quarters in an overhauling of the securities act, the imposition of a guaranty of bank deposits and those thousand and one indications that Washington views almost any idea prevalent before 1929 as unsound and necessarily in need of change.

When all of these elements are taken together, it is small wonder that American business men to a marked degree recently have, to paraphrase the President's statement, "concluded to adjourn the making of long-term contracts until certain factors in the world situation—commercial and monetary—become more clarified."

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 73.5 Level

Mixed Trends Recorded as Sales Mount to $14,723,000.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Mixed trends clouded bond market operations today and conflicting prices were generally attributed to the continued predominance of inflationary psychology.

A number of secondary issues that usually follow stocks improved and some European issues reached new highs for the year as the dollar again slumped in foreign exchange dealings. Most of the higher grade corporation maturities were inclined to ease and United States Government securities were active and irregular.

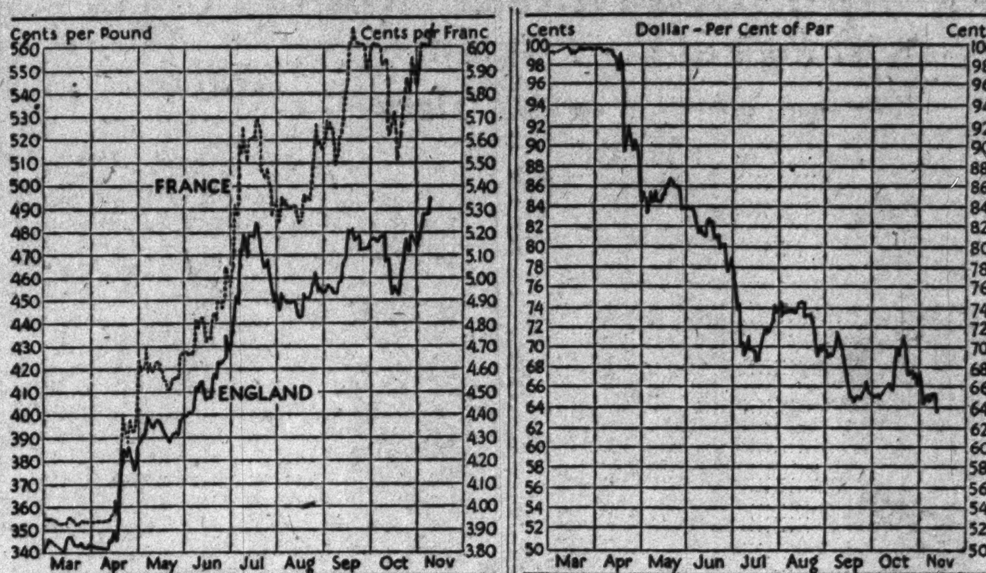

The trading volume expanded to $14,723,000, par value, against $10,241,000 on Monday, but the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was unchanged at 73.5.

In the foreign section United Kingdom 4s and 5½s and Swedish Kingdom 5½s were heavily traded for gains of 1 to around 2 points. Similar advances were recorded by issues of France, Dutch East Indies, Switzerland, Japan and Italy. The Argentines were losers of 1 to more than 4 and other South American loans were soft.

In the Federal list, Treasury 3s, 3⅛s, 3¼s, 4s and 4¼s recovered 2-32nds to 10-32nds of a point, but similar losses were suffered by other Government obligations.

Industrial gainers of fractions to around a point included loans of American Rolling Mills, Bethlehem Steel, National Steel, Pure Oil, Shell Union Oil, Texas Corporation, U. S. Rubber and Vanadium. Bonds of Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, Columbia Gas, Duquesne Light, Louisville Gas, New England Telephone, Pacific Gas and Philadelphia Electric were a trifle heavy.

Curb Mounts 1 to 2 Points On Heavy Sale

Brisk Buying Ends Spell of Dullness; Trading, 225,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The curb market broke out of the doldrums with a brisk buying movement in the last hour today. Numerous advances of 1 to 2 or more points were shown on final quotations. Earlier trading was marked by extremely narrow and dull dealings, but the last-hour flurry expanded the day's approximate sales to 225,000 shares, compared with 143,000 for last Monday.

Aluminum Co. soared 14 points on a sizable turnover. Metal shares moved firmly ahead, Newmont Mining gaining 2, while Bunker Hill & Sullivan rose 4½ on light transfers. Alcohols dipped earlier in the day, but came back to close fractionally higher. Utilities and oils were firm.

Maryland Area Plans To Spend $800,000

Elkton, Md., Nov. 8 (Spl.).—Prospects loom for the expenditure of approximately $800,000 for public works at this Cecil county seat. City council, it is announced, will apply for a Federal loan of $50,000 for extensive improvements to the water system, while an additional $750,000 for the completion of the Pennsylvania Railroad's relocation project has been assured by Federal grant.

The completion of the railroad work here would come as a part of the electrification of the system between Washington and New York. Approximately $84,000,000 has been granted for this purpose, about $750,000 of which will be used to straighten the line through this city.

18 Dividend Changes Reported.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Eighteen favorable dividend changes were reported during the last week against eight unfavorable changes.

Mail Order Company Sales Gain in October

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. today reported its gross sales for October had increased 16.21 per cent over the same month in 1932. The statement said sales during October, 1933, were $23,061,704, compared with $19,805,497 in October, 1932, an increase of $3,211,207. The same period showed sales for the nine months' period in 1933 were $137,056,245, as compared with $130,434,484 for the period in 1932, an increase of 5.08 per cent.

Auto Output Climbs Fast During 1933

Improved Incomes Result in Rapid Revival of Business.

New York, Nov. 8.—The automobile industry started the first quarter of this year on crutches, but finished it within 10 per cent of the output figures for the first three months of 1932, which represented the smallest opening quarter decline in four years.

This achievement was particularly signficant as the banking holiday started around the middle of February in Michigan, where it wrought more devastating disaster than in many other States. The comfortable lead with which the second quarter started accumuated momentum until high gear was reached at midsummer, with the months that followed topping the corresponding period of 1932 both in sales and production.

The improved earnings trend of the industry was indicated by the returns for the third quarter, which were the highest for comparable periods since the third quarter of 1929, and will permit some of the firms to close the year "in the black," in contrast to the loss of $50,000,000 in 1932, on a production which reached the lowest point in 11 years.

Deficit Not Excessive.

This deficit, however, was not excessive, when it is considered that the capital investment of the industry is around $1,400,000,000, as in 1921, when production reached the lowest point in its history and the industry was not so expanded as now, an aggregate loss of about $63,000,000, exclusive of that of one of the major producers.

In fact, the industry now is equipped to return profits from a volume of business which in the preslump period inevitably would have entailed substantial losses.

Operating costs in all directions have been cut to the minimum to hold expenses in line with the rapidly dwindling volume during the last three years.

Industry Weathers Drop.

Fortunately, the industry has weathered the three leanest years in its history without impairing its ability to supply adequate financing for a substantial upturn in operations, as aggregate holdings of cash and its equivalent reveal a more satisfactory ratio to existing current obligations than at the close of 1929.

Being the largest single industry of the country, it has become a trustworthy barometer of the Nation's economic health, as the breadth of its scope and its inseparable correlation with so many other industries makes its ebbs and flows felt in the farthest reaches of the business structure, according to a survey of the automobile industry, which has just been completed by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

Since April the monthly production of passenger cars and trucks has run in excess of the comparative totals of 1932, and in June rose to 253,322 units, the highest figure recorded since May, 1931.

July Output Cut.

The July output dropped to 233,088, but the persistent widening of demand carried the August total 3,399 units above that of July, which was contrary to all established seasonal trends, and 161.8 per cent above the August, 1932, figures.

While the September output receded to 196,082, it represented an increase of 133.0 per cent over last September's showing.

For the nine months ended September 30, production totaled 1,672,767, as compared with 1,155,066 for the comparative three quarters of 1932, a gain of 517,701 units, or 44.9 per cent, and was higher by 22.04 per cent than the output for the entire 12 monhs of 1932, which declined to 1,370,678.

Narrowing of Gap.

Because of the continued narrowing of the gap between retail deliveries and production during the summer months, most manufacturers were later than usual in getting started on their 1934 programs.

An additional delay was caused by the tool and die-makers' strike, so that most companies will do little more than complete sufficient cars for display purposes in the principal cities at the first of next year. Production in any sizable volume doubtless will not be attained until late in January or early in February.

As the benefit of new model output will be lacking during November and December, production during both of these months is expected to be small, which will mean that production for the year will not run much in excess of 2,000,000 units.

Maryland's Wheat Men Will Receive $811,000

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (Spl.).—On the basis of applications and acreages already reported, Maryland wheat growers will receive in the neighborhood of $811,000 in the form of adjustment payments between now and next spring.

The amounts going to others of the 20 leading wheat States will be approximately as follows: Kansas, $24,285,000; North Dakota, $14,683,000; Nebraska, $6,426,000; Oklahoma, $6,891,000; Montana, $6,463,000; Washington, $5,001,000; South Dakota, $5,229,000; Texas, $3,297,000; Illinois, $2,618,000; Ohio, $1,607,000; Idaho, $3,464,000; Indiana, $1,113,000; Oregon, $2,777,000; Minnesota, $1,709,000; Missouri, $1,543,000; Colorado, $2,318,000; Michigan, $743,000; California, $1,086,000; Virginia, $548,000.

Tobacco Sales In Danville Set New Records

Danville, Va., Nov. 8 (Spl.).—Two records were broken yesterday on the Danville tobacco market. More tobacco was sold in one day than ever before in the market's history, and the price average went to a new high mark for the season.

The sales for the day totaled 1,157,877 pounds and brought $212,842.14, the average price being $18.38 per 100 pounds, an increase of $5 per 100 pounds over prices on the opening day.

All grades showed a price advance and the companies buying for export purposes increased their orders and bought higher quality tobacco. The export houses have not been active competitors with the "big four" this year, because the leaf must stand the foreign entry duty levied on the foreign buyer.

One local bank paid out $92,000 in cash in farmers' checks, the largest sale since war days.

Motor dealers report that sales of new cars is brisker than it has been at any time since the war and other mercantile establishments are feeling the beneficial effect of liquified money.

Automobile Sales Increase.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—R. L. Polk & Co. today reported new passenger automobile sales in October for the United States as 129,000 units, compared with 63,795 in October, 1932, 102,659 in October, 1931, and 150,219 in October, 1930.

Cotton Crop In Bales Put At 13,100,000

(Associated Press.)

Cotton production this year was reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture as 13,100,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, as indicated by conditions November 1. A month ago 12,885,000 bales were indicated. Last year's crop was 13,001,508 bales.

The indicated yield of lint cotton per acre was announced as 208.7 pounds, compared with 205.3 pounds a month ago, and 173.3 pounds last year.

Total production was based on 30,036,000 acres, the area in cultivation July 1 less probable removal of acreage reported September 8 by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and with reduction for abandonment on the area not under contract.

The crop as indicated November 1 in the various States follows:

Virginia, 39,000 bales; North Carolina, 695,000; South Carolina, 725,000; Georgia, 1,105,000; Florida, 29,000; Missouri, 223,000; Tennessee, 460,000; Alabama, 985,000; Mississipi, 1,230,000; Louisiana, 500,000; Texas, 4,350,000; Oklahoma, 1,250,000; Arkansas, 1,135,000; New Mexico, 83,000; Arizona, 81,000; California, 200,000; all other States, 10,000.

Lower California, Old Mexico (not included in California nor in United States total), 22,000.

London—A generally cheerful tone was registered on the stock exchange today. The statement made yesterday by the chancellor of the exchequer regarding the country's financial condition improved sentiment. South African gold mining shares, gilt-edged securities and Argentine rails advanced. Home rails were mostly firmer. The market closed firm.

Paris—Despite the continued uncertainty concerning the government's budgetary plans, prices on the bourse showed better resistance. Numerous gains were recorded as a result of short covering. The closing was steady.

Berlin—A rather small business was transacted on the boerse. Industrial shares fluctuated irregularly while mining issues were fairly firm. The market closed weaker.

Cotton Jumps To High Level On Crop Data

December Sells at 9.68 as General Market Rises 32 to 36 Points.

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Government cotton report placing the indicated crop at 13,100,000 bales was followed by an increased buying movement in the market today.

Cotton for December delivery sold up to 9.72 and May to 10.09 in the late trading, making net advances of 33 and 39 points, or nearly $4 a bale. Closing quotations were within a few points of the best.

December closed at 9.68 and May at 10.05, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 32 to 36 points.

Early Trading Slow.

Early trading was slow, pending the official report. Active months sold 10 to 12 points net higher before business was suspended to receive the report.

The market's immediate response to the crop figures, which were about 150,000 bales below the average expectations of cotton exchange members, was a further advance of some 20 or 25 points.

This brought in some hedging and realizing, but it was absorbed on comparatively moderate reactions. Closing quotations showed setbacks of 4 or 5 points from the best on the more active position.

The Census Bureau report showed ginnings of 10,361,404 bales prior to November 1, compared with 9,247,045 to the same date last year.

Exports for Season.

Exports today 22,193, making 2,679,684 so far this season. Port receipts 52,089. U. S. port stocks 3,950,703.

The weekly weather report said picking the remnant of the cotton crop was favored in most places. Rain caused some interference in the Northwestern belt especially in Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Liverpool cables reported a quiet market there with scattering liquidation absorbed by trade buying to fix prices during the earlier trading. Liverpool and the continent were both credited with buying here after the publication of the Government crop report.

The indicated yield of cotton per acre placed by the Government report at 208.7 pounds compared with 173.3 pounds last year, when the final crop in bales of 500-pound gross was 13,002,000.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm today, closing 6 to 9 points net higher on covering and commission house buying, promoted by the strength of other commodities and a bullish view of the Government's cotton estimate of 13,100,000 bales. Sales were 35 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; December, 4.62; January, 4.74; March, 4.95; May, 5.11.

Distillers Set Gallon Yield at 169,500,000

New York, Nov. 8.—Distillers in the United States will have an annual production capacity of 169,500,000 gallons of whisky and alcohol by the end of 1934, it is estimated by Standard Statistics Co., in a current survey, which continues in part:

"Sale of liquor will be legal on December 6 in 22 States, having an aggregate population of roughly 74,000,000. Additional States, bringing the wet total to around 40, are expected to repeal prohibition clauses during the next year. The close of 1934, therefore, should find liquor sales legal in districts embracing approximately four-fifths of the entire domestic population.

"Domestic consumption of spirits, including alcohol, is estimated tentatively at 110,000,000 gallons next year. Total whisky consumption, including blends, is expected to be a somewhat smaller proportion than in preprohibition days, amounting to only about 85,000,000 gallons.

"To meet this indicated demand, there will be available at the outset about 3,000,0000 to 3,500,000 gallons of aged whisky and about 4,000,000 additional gallons 2 or 3 years old. Blending most of this supply at reasonable ratios would yield about 30,0000,0000 gallons of beverage.

"It is expected that green whisky sales will amount to around 10,000,000. The remainder could be supplied with the importation of about 15,000,000 gallons, assuming the bulk of imports would be blended after arrival.

"After sufficient aged stocks have accumulated in this country, domestic distilling capacity will be entirely ample to supply the demand. Preliminary estimates indicate that capacities for the production of whisky, gin, &c., will total about 169,500,000 gallons by the end of 1934. Grain alcohol capacities, similarly, will be ample. Increasing competition and narrowing of initial liberal margins is a likely eventual consequence.

"Meantime, attention is centered largely on formulation of plans for control of the liquor traffic. Only a few States have thus far set up the necessary machinery, but through each the broad theme of comparatively strict supervision is apparent. The balance of current opinion with regard to State and Federal taxes seems to favor moderate levies."

Wheat Climbs Again Under Buying Rush

Profit-Taking Trims Top Rises; Other Grains Join Advance.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Greatly enlarged speculative buying rushed grain values up late today, with wheat scoring an overnight jump of nearly 4 cents a bushel.

Administration methods for higher agricultural prices received much of the credit from leading trade authorities, the day's top figures for grains being reached following announcement that the United States Government would furnish 5,500,000 bushels of wheat to live stock in drought areas in the West and Southwest.

Earlier, the grain markets were strongly influenced upward by election results which made certain that prohibition would be ended next month and there was more and more notice taken of advancing prices for gold, sterling and francs.

Top Gains Cut.

Because of big profit-taking sales at the last, the cereal gains were not maintained in full, wheat closing unsettled, 1⅞ to 2¾ cents above yesterday's finish; corn, 1¼ to 1⅝ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

At first, rye lead the wheat advanse, but in the last half of the day wheat decidedly headed the upward movement of the entire list of grains.

At this stage, attention of traders focused increasingly on the effects of the continued rise of the Washington price of gold and on the advance of securities and cotton as well as of sterling and francs.

Higher Prices Advocated.

Meanwhile, friends of higher prices urged that success of the prohibtion repealists in less than 18 months would have a heartening influence as evidence that reasonably united popular action could be effective toward increased employment and additional outlet for commodity products.

Except for a brief time at the outset, the wheat market showed an unhesitating upward trend throughout almost the entire day. Price changes in all grains were rather rapid at times, but sentiment as a whole was unmistakeably friendly to the buying side.

Unfavorable reports on world wheat crop conditions were a contributing factor, especially many complaints that wheat in Australia was shriveling and showing other signs of deterioration.

Corn and oats were influenced mainly by wheat action. Weather over the corn belt was unfavorable for crop movement.

Provisions responded to upturns of grains and to improved demand for meats.

Insurance Men Point to Links With Banking

Life Underwriters Hold Meeting Here; Linton and Merriam Talk.

Kindred interests of banking and life insurance were presented ably last night at a dinner meeting of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association at the Willard Hotel. Many members of the association and the District of Columbia Bankers Association attended.

Principal speakers were M. A. Linton, insurance company executive, and C. B. Merriam, chairman of the newly formed Federal Deposit Liquidation Board to speed liquidation of restricted banks.

Mr. Linton, president of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Philadelphia, stated in detail the reasons for the excellent record of life insurance during the depression era at the meeting.

Security in Investments.

He explained that in making investments life insurance companies are primarily concerned with security rather than with high yield or speculative profit.

"The security of life insurance rests upon two basic factors," Mr. Linton said.

"One is conservative, diversified investments. The other is the income (equal annually in recent years to about 20 per cent of accumulated reserves), flowing into the company even in periods of deep depression. The record of the steady flow of premium income throughout the depression will be one of the striking phenomena when we come to chronicle the events of these stirring years.

"It is this steady flow of income that differentiates the life insurance companies from other financial institutions. Life insurance policyholders are under a constant urge to keep up their premium payments in order that their insurance protection may be maintained. The man with a family realizes the vital need of keeping his insurance in force so that it is one of the last things to be sacrificed.

Stability of Income.

"This makes for relative stability of premium income and contributes directly to the security of the institution.

"When other forms of investment were depreciating and becoming less and less dependable, life insurance continued on its charted course with amazingly few casualties, paying its obligations on the dot to the tune of $6,000,000 a day. During the four years following the market crash of 1929, the life insurance companies increased their invested assets belonging to policyholders by approximately $2,000,000,000."

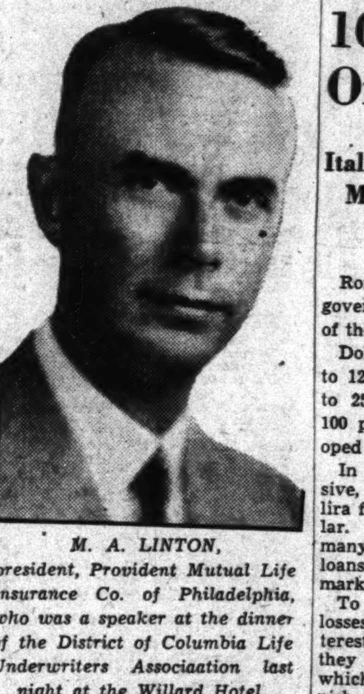

Merriam Cites Record.

Mr. Merriam said that at the end of four years of depression an outstanding thing was the fine record of the insurance companies. Their tremendous resources, he reminded, were of great help in the emergency.

Thomas P. Morgan, jr., president of the local association, presided. He said that life insurance companies represented at the meeting, in 1932 alone, paid to widows and orphans in Washington four-and-a-half times as much as the goal amount for the Community Chest in 1933.

The Chest goal was $1,945,235.93. The actual amount paid to widows and orphans alone by the life insurance companies last year in the District of Columbia was $8,616,416.

Building Body Votes to Boost Premiums

Acting on the secretary's report of a 32 per cent increase in assets of capital and surplus recorded for the months of September and October, the board of directors of the Interstate Building Association yesterday voted to raise the membership surplus premium from $2.50 to $3.00, effective January 2, 1934.

Organized by Weaver Bros., Inc., in August, 1932, with a view to supplementing the Metropolitan Life and other building loan facilities already available to the clientele of Weaver Bros., Inc., while at the same time, fostering a more widespread spirit of thrift among those of small savings, the association today has a subscribed capital of well over $1,000,000.

"This showing for the first year of operations surpasses the most sangine expectations of the organizers," says the report of Edward K. Jones, secretary, "and at the present rate of increase the $1,500,000 mark in subscribed capital should be well passed by January 1, allowing for a substantial addition to surplus after dividend requirements shall have been met. The showing in face of the fact that no special efforts were made by the association to extend its membership during a year of severe economic stress must be ragarded as conclusive proof that confidence in this form of investment remains unshaken."

Officers of this association, which has headquarters in the Washington Building, are John L. Weaver, president; Clarence Dodge, vice president; Earl M. Mackintosh, vice president; Martin R. West, treasurer and Edward K. Jones, secretary.

Italy Profits 100 Per Cent On Dollar Fall

Dollars which it buys at from 12 to 12.50 lire it is able to sell at 24 to 25 lire, or a profit of exactly 100 per cent. The situation developed in this way:

In the four years, 1924-27 inclusive, preceding stabilization, the lira fluctuated around 30 to the dollar. Those were the years when many Italian industrial firms floated loans in dollars on the American market.

To guarantee themselves against losses when it came time to pay interest in dollars on these loans, they made an arrangement by which the government would furnish them with the needed dollars at 24 to 25 lire each.

If the lira stayed around 30 the government stood to lose. If the lira strengthened to around 20, the manufacturer stood to lose, but he was able to calculate his interest payments on an unfluctuating basis. He knew that at all times he would have to pay only a fixed number of dollars times a fixed number of lire.

Dollar's Fall Surprises.

What neither the Treasury nor the manufacturer thought possible in those days was the fall of the American dollar. Now that the dollar has crashed, the manufacturers are looking wistfully at others who are able to buy their dollars in the open market.

But the Treasury is making them no concession, arguing that if the lira had remained around 30 or gone above 30, the Treasury stood to lose a corresponding amount. Each side was taking a chance, and the Government was the wiser or luckier.

Virtually every Italian company that floated dollar loans has this agreement with the government except the Milan Edison Co.

Paper Replaces Gold.

This eliminates the previous conclusion that the Italian companies have been profiting by the fall of the dollar. These companies are meeting their interest payments in paper dollars, despite the gold clauses in their bond contracts, but instead of paying 40 per cent less in lire for their dollars, they have to pay the same amount they have always paid.

The Government is making another profit in exchange by paying the Morgan $100,000,000 loan interest in paper dollars.

Texas Town Hails New Oil Boom in Palestine

Palestine, Tex., Nov. 8 (U.P.).—A new oil boom has hit Texas, and the State, veteran of hundreds, is just as excited as ever.

Within a week the population of this east-central Texas community jumped 4,000, and the council announced there was room and facilities for 25,000 more.

The boom was precipitated by discovery of oil in rank wildcat territory 10 miles west of here. It was the No. 1 Long Lake Plantation well of the Texas Seaboard Oil Co. and the Tidewater Oil Co.

Industry Cuts Operations to Lower Rate

Fairly Active Demand in Some Lines Supports Activity.

New York, Nov. 8.—Industrial operations have been reduced further, with steel mills at the lowest rate since April and curtailment of schedules is more or less general in miscellaneous lines, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Production of plate and window glass continues at about the same rate as last week, but demand is slower and shipments are somewhat under output.

There has been a fairly active demand for table glassware and liquor glassware, with manufacturers of these products anticipating an expansion of orders during November.

Most of the furniture manufacturers have sizable volume of business booked for delivery in the next 30 to 60 days, with orders running ahead of the cancellations, which have reached substantial amounts at some factories. The silk industry gradually is getting into production again, following a season of strikes and the delays incident to the adoption of the code.

Electric Equipment Loses.

The demand for electrical equipment has fallen off somewhat, although electric refrigerators continue to move fairly well and there also is an increasing volume of orders being received by manufacturers of radios and radio equipment.

A new record for annual sales volume is to be established this year in the electrical refrigeration industry. Sales of many manufacturers for the ten months of the current year total 20 per cent above the figures for the entire 12 months of 1929, with demand still running in excess of seasonal proportions, as consumers display increasing willingness to invest in major electrical appliances.

The repeal of prohibition also will open a large market for commercial refrigeration, as many hotels and restaurants already have contracted for refrigeration units to be installed in their bars.

Ingot Output Shrinks.

Recession in steel specifications and in volume of new orders has resulted in shrinking ingot output, the drop in the rate from last week being 17.9 per cent. The current figure now stands about where it was at the end of April.

The almost complete cessation of orders from automobile manufacturers and the abscence of demand from railroads account for most of the loss.

The release of substantial tonnages in standard rails and further developments in public and semipublic projects may later on replenish unfilled tonnages, but backlogs at this time furnish little encouragement. The effort to organize railroads into a huge project of road and rolling stock improvement may now proceed with more dispatch, following the settlement of the prolonged dispute over rail prices.

Goods Trade Improved.

Manufacturers of dry goods and underwear operated close to last year's record during October, with each week showing an improvement, and an unusually active business anticipated with the arrival of colder weather.

Business has been increasingly satisfactory with manufacturers of tapestries, upholstery goods and drapery fabrics during the past four months.

Sales have gained steadily, reaching a peak for the year in September, both in yardage and value. Manufacturers of silk yarn are working full time on the NRA basis, only because of orders placed some time ago, when manufacturers thought raw materials would advance to a higher level. New business has been scarce, but with the recent strengthening of prices, a reversal of the trend is expected. The settlement of the silk strike also will prove helpful.

Yarns at Standstill.

With manufacturers of French and English spun worsted and merino yarns, business almost is at a standstill, with few inquiries coming in. Business in wool, hair, tops and noils lines has slowed down somewhat since the summer months, but there still is considerable volume in circulation, with the majority of the prices holding firm.

The paper industry failed to gain by any wide percentage in October, although that month usually is one of the most active of the year; the best-selling items still are confined to the lower-priced grades, with the price structure fairly well stabilized. The wallpaper and paint lines continue the steady improvement in evidence since July.

Jewelry Less Active.

The jewelry trade is less active than it was during July, August, and September, and collections have become slower. Although orders are not so large as usual for this time of the year, more activity has developed with manufacturers of fine leather goods.

Demand for domestic leather has fallen off somewhat, but collections in the trade continue unusually prompt.

Further good-sized orders for building lumber have been placed by the Government for C. C. C. camps, and most lumber mills have been busier during the last two weeks. The yards, on the other hand, are finding demand rather slow, as residential building is down both seasonally and comparatively, and the rather heavy inventories accumulated in anticipation of advancing prices during June and July have yet to be moved.

As a whole, the lumber situation remains in an unsettled State, due to the lack of definite code regulations, both as to price and production. Some of the smaller operators have abandoned the field until restrictions will have been accepted or enforced.

The widest price advances thus far have been made in the cheaper grades of soft woods, as there has been less fluctuation in the hardwood department.

Canada to Tax Outside Firms On Incomes

Montreal, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Canada's federal income tax collection officials, searching old and nearly forgotten laws for hidden weapons with which they can keep the government treasury filled, have uncovered an important source of revenue—taxing non-Canadians on incomes from business done in Canada.

A provision in the income war tax act, more or less "dead" for years, has been resurrected by the department of national revenue and is being used as the weapon.

Under the act, the United States, British and other foreign interests doing business in Canada are subject to taxation on revenue derived from goods sold in Canada, on machinery or other equipment, or property leased in the Dominion, or on royalties. For example, a British company selling woolen goods through a Canadian agency or employe, or an American company leasing machinery used in a Canadian canning factory, must pay income tax from the transactions.

The minister of national revenue has full discretion as to the manner of determining the proportionate part of the income on which the Canadian taxation is payable, and it is understood that some of the interests affected by more rigid enforcement of the law are far from pleased with the change.

Plans May Aid Wider Buying From Russia

Recognition Urged to Put Trade on Cooperative Credit Basis.

By Frank I. Weller.
(Associated Press.)

Official recognition of the Soviet government, if it comes, is not expected in itself to increase commerce between the United States and Russia.

Foreign trade experts of the Department of Commerce say establishment of diplomatic relations could influence an additional exchange of goods only insofar as it might encourage wider domestic use of Russian products and American financing of Soviet accounts.

Buys Against Credits.

These two points are held likely to be among those discussed by President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, in an effort, as the President put it, "to end the present abnormal relations between the 125,000,000 people of the United States and the 160,000,000 people of Russia."

It is the economic policy at Moscow to buy against Soviet credits in markets which have absorbed Russian products and to devote the ruble to internal development.

Wherever an unfavorable trade balance exists the government negotiates for external guarantee of Soviet purchases and meets notes maturing against that obligation in gold bullion.

Thus, if recognition was to increase trade, the United States either would have to buy enough from Russia to pile up the dollars that country would need to buy American goods or some arrangement would have to be made to finance Russian purchases on the security of long-time Soviet notes.

Some Guarantee Purchase Price.

It is semi-official opinion that the latter most probably would be done through Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to an export financing bank.

Twelve of the principal governments of Europe guarantee their nationals up to 75 per cent of the purchase price of goods sold to Russia and in some instances advance funds to aid the production of Soviet goods subsequently to be sold in the financing country.

Russia, meantime, produces $50,000,000 of gold annually and uses all of it in the settlement of international balances. Equipment has been installed to step up production to $75,000,000.

Simultaneously she mines more platinum than all the other countries of the world. A ban on the import or export of rubles prevents foreign speculation in Soviet currency and maintains the domestic value at 51½ cents.

Former Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, trade adviser to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for eastern Europe, says the fur trade is exemplary of the opportunity now lost to Russia to accumulate dollar credits.

Furs Might Establish Credit.

He estimates this country bought $77,000,000 of Russian furs last year, chiefly from British and German commission firms. The records show only $2,000,000 on direct purchase.

American labor, he says, loses principally to Canada the manufacture of 48 per cent of the wood pulp used in this country, whereas Russia's unlimited supply of pulp wood could be imported for American mills.

The United States imports 96 per cent of the asbestos it uses, all of which Brookhart says could be supplied by Russia. The same is true of ferro-manganese used in steel production.

These products do not compete with American industry and Brookhart says the dollars paid for them would accumulate in New York to be used in Soviet purchases of cotton, live stock products and industrial equipment.

Might Cut Hog Surplus.

Russia produced only 16,000,000 hogs last year, whereas the United States produced 56,000,000. If Russia were to purchase only one-third of the 11,000,000 head raised in Iowa alone it would erase the big surplus now being attacked by the Government.

The 7,000,000 cotton spindles in Russia were operated only 60 per cent of capacity last year, whereas the increasing needs of a population growing at the rate of 3,000,000 a year require twice as many spindles in full operation. Brookhart says Russia easily could have used 2,000,000 bales of American staple last year.

He says Russia's almost perpendicular rise in industrial production during the depression has been accompanied by better living conditions and an increased consumptive demand.

Japan's Cigarette Plant Seeks U. S. Advertising

Tokyo, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—American automobiles and chewing gum soon may be advertised in every package of cigarettes sold to the 125,000,000 Japanese and subject peoples who buy from Emperor Hirohito's tobacco monopoly.

The monopoly, anxious to increase its income, is reported to have offered American and other concerns the right to insert advertisement cards in all Japanese-made cigarettes. Charge will be 10,000 yen per insertion and circulation is estimated at around 50,000,000.

Mexican Trade Is Improving Over Country

An optimistic tone prevails in Mexican business, according to reports to the Commerce Department from its office in Mexico City. In most lines, prices are firm with a tendency to strengthen. Agricultural products are bringing higher prices, and collections are improving.

Retail sales were down during the first two weeks of October, due to floods and cyclones in various parts of the country, but as business picked up during the latter half of the month, October sales are expected to equal the September record. In practically all lines, business is reported to be better than during the corresponding period of last year.

From a value standpoint, Mexico's foreign trade is increasing steadily, exports for August amounting to 38,021,666 pesos compared with 30,342,612 pesos during July and 24,480,243 pesos during August, 1932. Imports during July amounted to 20,370,000 pesos against 15,944,942 pesos during the corresponding month last year.

Recently published reports by the Mexican Bureau of Statistics show that during the first four months of 1933 the United States furnished 61 per cent of Mexico's total imports, Germany furnished 14 per cent and Great Britain 7 per cent. As compared with similar figures for the calendar year 1932, the percentages furnished by the United States and Great Britain have decreased slightly, while Germany has increased her share.

German competition has been most severe in hardware, electrical equipment, chemicals and textile machinery. Japanese competition is also becoming an important factor, although so far it is affecting German and British trade more than American, as it has been principally in connection with the cheaper grades of hardware, electrical equipment and cotton fabrics.

Although official Mexican figures are not yet available, it is known that petroleum production dropped off heavily during September as a result of the cyclone which did heavy damage to the Tampico area. September exports of petroleum amounted to only 946,752 barrels.

Mexican harvests generally have been excellent, except on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, where the corn crop was very small.

Output of Power Declines in Week

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Showing a continued decline in the ratio of gain over last year, electric power output last week amounted to 1,583,412,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,621,702,000 in the preceding week and 1,525,410,000 in the corresponding week last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The increase over last year was 3.8 per cent against a gain of 5.8 per cent in the week ended November 28. The decline as compared with the previous week was greater than in 1932 and 1931.

In the New England region the increase over last year was 5.2 per cent against 4.8 per cent the week before; Middle Atlantic up 1 per cent against 4.2 per cent; Central industrial, up 5.5 per cent against 8.2 per cent; Southern States, up 0.8 per cent against 2.5 per cent; Rocky Mountain, up 29.2 per cent against 22.8 per cent; Pacific Coast, off 0.8 per cent against an increase of 0.7 per cent.

U. S. Stands Sixth in Sales To Moscow

By Stanley P. Richardson.

Moscow, Nov. 8 (AP).—Trade between the United States and Russia declined to such an extent since 1930 that American sales to this country in the first six months of 1933 were less than 5 per cent of their volume of three years ago.

The United States fell from first to sixth place in the list of nations exporting to Russia, being superseded in point of value of goods sold here by Germany, England, Italy, Western China and Mongolia, in the order named.

Restrictions Resented.

In the peak year of 1930, when trade turnover between the two countries reached its all-time high, American sales to the Soviet Union totaled $115,000,000.

Soviet resentfulness when America placed "forced-labor" restrictions on some of its exports, plus a tightening of credit facilities there contributed to a reduction from this figure to less than $90,000,000 by the end of 1931.

The close of 1932 showed an almost vertical drop to about $12,000,000 and the decline continued in 1933 to around $2,000,000 for the first half year.

No Big Boom Expected.

In view of the generally depressed state of world trade now as compared with the peak years of 1929 and 1930, no sudden flood of business is expected to result from the new status of relations with the United States. But several factors probably will tend to improve the trade.

There is, for example, the strained situation with Hitlerite Germany. That country has been the largest seller of goods to the Soviets, but the anti-Communism stand of the Nazis is affecting that business.

Another and perhaps more potent factor is the known preference here for American machinery. Moscow authorities always have maintained that it is the best in the world.

Irish Whisky Mart Seeks U. S. Trade

Dublin, Nov. 8 (AP).—Speculative purchases in anticipation of the removal of prohibition in the United States are making heavy inroads into Free State whisky stocks.

In many bonds of matured Irish whiskies there has been an increase of 14 per cent in wholesale prices. Keen bidding has characterized public auctions, but most of the transactions have been private.

Most of the purchasers are Scotch and English speculators. They believe there will be a demand in the United States for imported whiskies because matured stocks in that country are low.

Dressler Poem Prize Winners Are Announced

Judges Make Selections Out of Total of a Thousand.

Buried for several days beneath the avalanche of poetic birthday tributes to Marie Dressler, put in motion by the contest which closed last Thursday midnight, the judges late yesterday emerged with the contribution of Miss Helen Angela Clark, 1601 Argonne place northwest, as the original eight-line verse most appropriately expressing a happy natal day greeting to this revered screen star whose sixty-second birthday is being nationally observed today.

Miss Clark's birthday rhyme was selected from among approximately 1,000 verses submitted. Rarely, indeed, has a contest elicited such response as that which greeted this test in competitive authorship sponsored by The Washington Post and the Loew theaters in the Capital.

Dedicated, of course, to Miss Dressler, Miss Clark's poem follows:

Because you've brought illusion into lives
Which else were dull, or base, or hard, or grim;
Because you've proved nobility survives
In this mad age, when ideals have grown dim,
We wish you happiness throughout the years,
Our glasses raised in universal toast,
And "Happy Birthday" echoes, as the cheers
For you, Marie, resound from coast to coast.

In addition to being awarded a local cash prize of $15, Miss Clark's winning poem is being forwarded to Hollywood as an entry in the national competition for the grand prize of $250, offered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Other Winners.

Second prize of $10 in cash was awarded Harlan Castle, 1621 T street northwest, for an eight-line verse that ran Miss Clark's a very close race for first honors.

Prize winners falling within the specification of the "ten next best," to be awarded one pair each of guest tickets to Loew's Palace to see Marie Dressler in her next release, "Christopher Bean," coming soon to the Capital, include the following:

Virginia M. Ambler, 3634 Windom place northwest; Anna M. Priestly, 1415 Chapin street northwest; Strickland Gillian, the Shoreham Hotel; Mrs. J. D. Hudgins, of West Annapolis, Md.; Virginia McPherson, 104 West Thornapple street, Chevy Chase, Md.; Marion M. Granger, 3000 Tilden street northwest; Mrs. Jane Montgomery, 2825 Belevue Terrace northwest; Mrs. Lenore Hovey Brown, 1361 Girard street northwest; Joan Berkeley Herrick, 1737 Hobart street northwest, and Mrs. Eulah D. Lasley, 1112 Orren street northeast.

The winning poems, as well as all other contributions entered in the contest, all of which were described by the judges as being unusually original, clever and poetically sound, are being placed in a special binder and forwarded to Miss Dressler in Hollywood.

Miss Dressler tonight is being banqueted at ceremonies on the West Coast that will be nationally broadcast from 11:30 to 12:30 o'clock.

The board of judges for the local contest was comprised of Dr. George Bowerman, District librarian; Mr. Stephen Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools and the dramatic editor of The Post.

Checks and guest tickets will be mailed the winners within the next few days.

Gas Methods Public Peril, Says Clayton

Rates for 10 Years May Be at Stake, Warns Citizens' Leader.

Others Defend Meeting of Appraisers as Quick Way to Facts.

Conferences ordered by the Public Utilities Commission between commission and gas company experts on valuation yesterday were challenged as an invasion of public rights by William Mc. K. Clayton, who sought to have stricken from the record of the gas valuation hearings testimony of both company and commission land appraisers.

The conferences which the chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations criticized were held prior to beginning of the public hearings, and were authorized by the commission February 27. They were designed, the commission said, to iron out differences over facts, in order to save time and money, which otherwise would be spent in reconciling these differences through examination of witnesses.

"The law gives to the public the right of a public hearing on valuation and other public utilities questions," Mr. Clayton said. "By following such a procedure you are taking that right away. If this method were followed to the end, valuation and other questions would be settled at a round table discussion between the commission and the utility, from which the public would be barred.

Rates 10 Years Held at Stake.

"This is a very dangerous experiment. It is an invasion of the rights of the public. The public will never be satisfied with any finding this commission makes so long as the letter authorizing these conferences stands as your guide post. I stand in the interest of the public and I want the public satisfied.

"It has been said that these conferences were in the interest of saving time. It has been said that brevity is the soul of wit. It would be possible to make this case so brief that we could laugh outselves to death. This valuation is not a question of an hour. Valuation of this company has not been settled in the 20 years this commission has been in existence. When it is fixed it will serve as a basis for determination of rates probably for the next 10 years, and the public will have to pay.

Meetings Changed Prices.

"I urge the commission that this method of procedure approaches a judgment beforehand, although I do not question the intention of the commission and its counsel."

Mr. Clayton's motion to strike the testimony of the appraisers came after they had testified their appraisals had been changed in certain instances as a result of the conferences. Harold E. Doyle and Charles A. Jones, company witnesses, said they had increased by $4 and $3 per square foot, respectively, their appraisal of the Tenth street office property of the Washington Gas Light Co. The increase in the Doyle estimate was $43,000. E. Catesby Rowzee, commission appraiser, testified that he had reduced his appraisals of four parcels and increased his appraisal of one, as a result of conferring with the company experts. The net result was a decrease of $105,000 in Mr. Rowzee's appraisal.

Ruling Is Postponed.

Stoddard M. Stevens, jr., of New York, and Wilton J. Lambert, of Washington, counsel for the company, and William A. Roberts, counsel for the commission, objected to striking of the testimony. Mr. Roberts said the conferences were merely for the purpose of ironing out questions of fact, such as the size of a particular piece of property, and did not involve questions of opinion.

Mr. Stevens said the conference method was followed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in valuations involving billions of dollars. Mr. Roberts said the procedure had been objected to at first, but in later years had come to be adopted by State commissions and widely accepted.

Riley E. Elgen, acting chairman of the commission, said the commission wuld rule later. Mr. Lambert said the company could not go forward with presentation of its case until the motion had been ruled on.

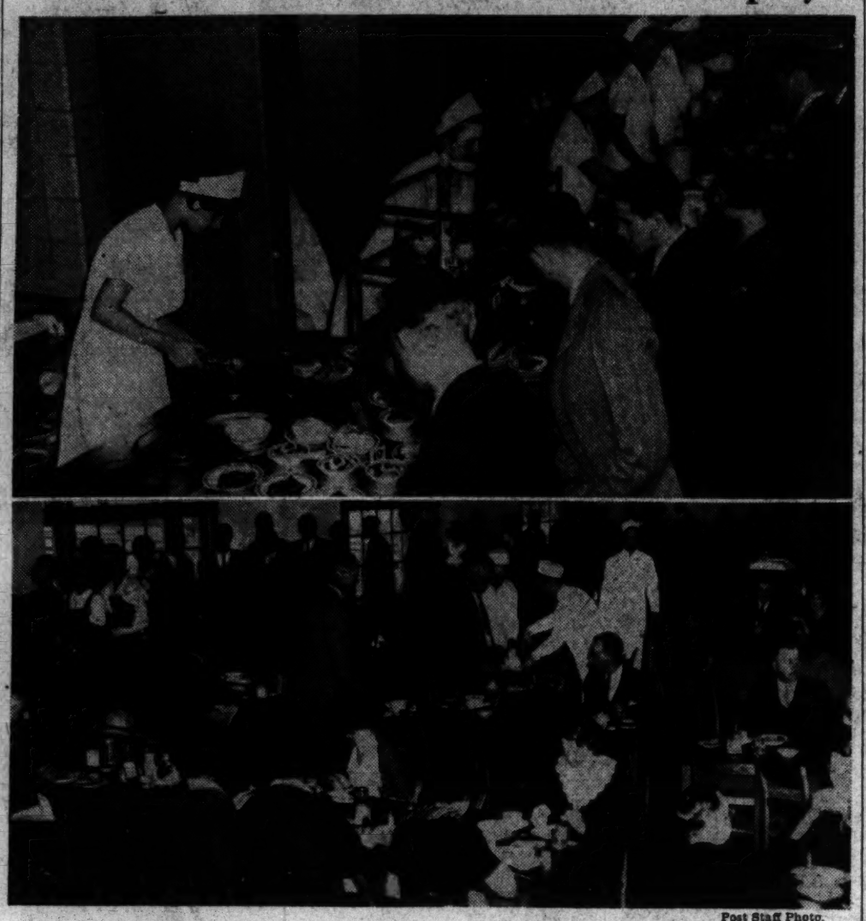

The commission is expected to overrule Mr. Clayton's motion unless it is withdrawn when the hearing is resumed at 10 a. m. today. At the same time the commission is expected to announce intention to employ a new land appraiser who shall make a completely independent valuation of company real estate. Mr. Clayton said he had one such expert in mind and could suggest others.

Congress Act To Rule Drunk Tests Planned

Law to Gauge Intoxication of Drivers by Blood Testing Sought.

An act of Congress may be sought to legalize blood tests for finding the degree of intoxication of an automobile driver under the influence of liquor, it became known yesterday, following a conference between Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, District officials and a group of psychologists and physicians.

It was decided that testing of blood was the only scientific method of determining the degree of drunkenness, but as legal authorities have declared the test is illegal, change of law may be sought.

A number of suggestions were discussed at the conference, and these will be considered by the specialists, pending another meeting probably next week. The blood tests may be combined with other less scientific methods, it was carried on until the next session of the group, when final recommendations may be offered.

Attending the conference yesterday were Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police; Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, Dr. Fred A. Moss, psychologist of the George Washington University; Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, pathologist; Dr. H. C. Dickinson, chief of the division of heat and power of the Bureau of Standards; Dr. Roy W. Crum, of the National Research Council; Charles P. Clark, general manager of the American Automobile Association, and Edward Thomas, assistant corporation counsel.

Baldwin Death Car Driver Is Exonerated

District Grand Jury yesterday refused to indict Edmund Henry Lloyd, driver of an automobile that fatally injured Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, famous explorer, last October.

Mr. Baldwin, the jury was told, was crossing Connecticut avenue near Calvert street northwest, when Lloyd's auto struck him.

Elastic Cloth

Men's Suits Comfortable at Last, Makers Claim.

The millennium for males has arrived with a new cloth wired for elasticity which allows suits of clothing to stretch freely.

"The greatest innovation since the introduction of balloon tires," say members of the garment industry.

Top coats, suits and tuxedos made of a soft worsted cloth known as Lastex are being offered to Washingtonians for the first time. The fabric gives gently when the wearer sits down and snaps back into place at the knees, shoulders and elbows when he stands.

Laboratory tests have shown that the cloth withstands water, dry cleaning and all kinds of weather. The clothing industry hails it as the greatest contribution to mankind since machine-made cloth replaced homespuns.

Ben Stein, manager of Grosner's Men's Stofe, where the new suits are being offered, said yesterday that $500,000 was spent in research before manufacturers were satisfied that the cloth was practical.

Passed by House Inquiry, Association to Expand; NRA Booms Trade.

30 Pct. of Workers Use Them and Checks Average 22 Cents.

Having weathered a House committee's investigation, Government cafeterias in the Capital's public buildings are planning big things along the lines of spinach, roast beef au jus and miscellaneous heritages of Brillat-Savarin.

With the cafeteria in the new Agriculture extensible building already broken in to serve 300 employes daily, efforts are being concentrated on the Postoffice and Labor-I. C. C. caravansaries, expected to be in operation early next year. The former will seat 300, and 428 will be accommodated in the other new Triangle building.

The new cafeterias are to do their utmost for jaded appetites, offering everything from soundproof dining alcoves to meticulously prepared hors d'oeuvres and slender checks.

As it is, checks are almost unbelievably slender, says Capt. F. W. Hoover, secretary of the Welfare and Reereational Association of Public Buildings and Grounds, which operates 10 cafeterias and lunch counters in Government buildings. The average is about 22 cents. Whether this is a commentary on low prices, tight family budgets or weak appetites is undecided.

Used by 30 Per Cent of Workers.

An estimated 30 per cent of all local Federal workers eat their lunch in a cafeteria where they are employed. In a number of buildings, notably Agriculture, Government Printing Office and Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the restaurants are controlled by an employes' welfare group.

Capt. Hoover's organization turns half its net profits over to the Treasury Department under the head of miscellaneous receipts. The balance goes into its reserve fund for new equipment, running expenses and other activities of the association. None of the cafeteries is subsidized, but most of them are operating at a profit.

The welfare recreational group's first venture in "serve yourself" was the Mall cafeteria, which is still in use in a wartime temporary building. Interior was next, then the War Department's Tempo No. 1. Internal Revenue and Commerce came along in the last few years.

NRA Works Here.

Largest in the chain, the Commerce Cafeteria seats 700.

At five other buildings the rapidly growing association has lunch counters. These are the Treasury, Old Pension Office, State Department, old Patent Office and Federal Storage Building in Seventh street southwest.

Credit for booming business is due largely to creation of the numerous emergency agencies, says Capt. Hoover. Forty per cent more are being served since the advent of NRA, PWA, and their contemporaries.

Indicative of its plans to expand the association yesterday elected to membership Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, leader of community center work. She is the first District employe to be enrolled, according to Capt. Hoover.

Miss Dennis Going to Boston.

Miss Faustine Dennis, national president of the Women's Overseas Service League, will take part in the Boston Armistice Day exercises and attend a conference of the First Corps Area of the League. Representatives from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont and Connecticut will attend.

New City Bank Chiefs Praise Treasury Help

'Public Should Know' How $3,300,000 Was Freed, Says Ezra Gould.

With local bankers jubilant over further clarification of the restricted banking situation here, officials of the prospective Mechanics-Franklin Savings Bank praised the efforts of Treasury Department officers in promoting this merger.

Ezra Gould, president, Washington Mechanics Savings Bank and president-elect of the proposed institution, commended the untiring efforts of Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor and his assistants in making possible release of $3,300,000 to depositors of two restricted banks in the consolidation.

"The cooperation they have given us is something the public should know." Mr. Gould added. It was anticipated yesterday that the Franklin National and Mount Vernon Savings Bank, components of the new bank, will be ready to function before the holidays.

Will Have $300,000 Capital.

The $200,000 issue of new stock to be sold to depositors of the Franklin National part of the combine will sell at $20 a share with a $10 par value. Sale of this stock, plus the additional $200,000 to be furnished by Mount Vernon and Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, will give the merged organization a capital stock of $300,000. Franklin Bank officials said yesterday the merger plan had been received most favorably by its depositors.

Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor said appointment of receivers for local banks did not mean their assets will be thrown on the market indiscriminately.

Five City Banks In Liquidation.

He explained it would be impossible and poor policy to do this. He said an orderly liquidation will be accomplished at a minimum expense. Replacement of conservators by receivers was necessary under the law, he stated.

Consummation of the Mechanics-Franklin merger disposes of all but three local banks restricted since the national banking holiday. Of the latter, United States Savings Bank is now seeking court permission to reopen. Industrial Savings Bank is planning with Treasury Department aid to reopen as a national bank. Park Savings Bank is involved in court litigation. Five other local banks closed before the bank holiday now are being liquidated by receivers.

Insurance Fraud Draws Jail Term

Odom Is Given 60 Days, Despite Restitution.

Brode E. Odom, 44, of the 200 block C street northwest, charged with selling invalid insurance policies, was sentenced to 60 days in jail yesterday by Police Court Judge Isaac R. Hitt.

Odom was charged with three cases of false pretense. He previously had pleaded guilty and testified that complete restitution had been made.

Sidney F. Tomes, 37, of the 500 block of Third street northwest, also charged with selling invalid insurance policies when arrested with Odom, was granted a continuance of his case because of illness.

Both men were accused of working for a company unlicensed in the District.

Warring Held After Nalley Killing Query

Two Male Companions Placed Under Bond as Witnesses.

Coroner Jury Informed Victim Was Aggressor in Club Shooting.

Charles R. Warring, 24, was held responsible for the murder of Joseph F. Nalley, alleged gambler, by a coroner's jury yesterday. Donald K. Wallace and Victor Juliano, who were with Warring in the Wunder Bar Club, Tenth and U streets northwest, early Tuesday when the shooting occurred, were held as witnesses.

Witnesses testified they saw Nalley and Warring engaged in a quarrel, but did not actually see the details of the shooting.

A waitress in the club, which caters both to colored and white patrons, said she had served Warring's party with 30 rounds of beer before the two men started arguing. Nalley was said to have precipitated hostilities when he came over to Warring, and, tapping him on the shoulder, beckoned him to one side.

Two Men Start Out.

After a long conversation Nally was heard to say, "we'll go out and settle this now," according to testimony. The two men started toward the door preceded by a special policeman who said he wanted to prevent trouble on the premises, and followed by Wallace and Juliano.

No reason for the shooting was brought out at the hearing, but police investigated a report that Nalley and Warring engaged in a fight in a downtown speakeasy recently.

The shooting took place near the table where Nalley and two men and two women companions had been seated. Three of the four bullets fired entered Nalley's body. He died several hours later at Freedman's Hospital.

Detective Sergeant Frank O. Brass testified he questioned the victim, but obtained only fragmentary statements. According to the testimony, Nalley uttered Warring's name before he lapsed into a coma.

Refuse Statements.

Warring, Juliano and Wallace gave themselves up to police of the Third Precinct several hours after the shooting, but refused to make any statements. They did not testify at the hearing on advice of their attorneys.

Two .32 caliber bullets found on the premises of the club by Detective Sergeant Truscott were introduced as evidence. Two bullets of the same caliber were recovered by physicians who treated Nalley.

Warring was committed to the District Jail on a charge of murder. Juliano and Wallace, who are booked as United States witnesses, were released on bonds of $3,000 each.

Funeral services for Nalley will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock at the late residence, 1808 M street northeast, followed by mass at 9 o'clock at Holy Name Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Nalley is survived by his mother, Mrs. Annie Kearns; a brother, John G. Nalley; a sister, Mrs. Rose McKeever, and a stepfather, William Kearns.

Return to Jobs Of Dismissed Clerks Urged

President of U. S. Employe Union Writes Heads of Departments.

Reemployment of 3,700 Government workers dismissed or furloughed in recent months was urged yesterday by E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, in letters to department and bureau chiefs.

He contended those stricken from the rolls have not received preference in the filling of new vacancies, "in express violation of the desire of the President."

"There are now 3,700 employes," he wrote, "who have been dropped from the rolls or furloughed because of reorganization activities or transfers of functions and who have been left out in the cold in contravention of the expressed desire of the President.

"I feel sure that you will desire to identify your establishment with an attitude of humane treatment of Government employes as a whole by definitely and positively formulating a policy for your establishment which will require the reemployment of these employes.

"It has been stated that these employes, as a group, will be less valuable because of age than other employes to be obtained from the outside. The Federal Government can not afford to operate its personnel policies on a pure machine basis. It must be a humane employer."

A warning of possible Presidential intervention was contained in the communication. Babcock wrote:

"It does not seem possible that it will be necessary for the President to issue an inflexible Executive order before his wishes are followed."

Negro Goes Along—Into 6 Feet of Water.

William Scott, colored, 45, followed the country's trend and went wet last night.

King to Push D. C. Liquor Control Bill

Board of Trade Busy on One; City Women Plan "Model."

Senate Committee May Meet in December for Drafting.

His home State of Utah having assured repeal of National prohibition December 5, Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, yesterday declared he will call a meeting of his committee to consider liquor control legislation here "as soon as a majority" is available.

For himself, he said he had an open mind on the subject of control, but continues "violently opposed to the return of the saloon." He said hearings will be held in which all will be given the right of expression.

The senator said he hopes the Senate committee can be convened early in December, and that a bill can be prepared for the opening of Congress.

What procedure will be adopted by the House District Committee, headed by Mrs. Mary Norton, of New Jersey, could not be determined, as she has not returned to the city.

That many plans will confront the committee appears certain.

Board of Trade Active.

A committee of the Board of Trade is assemblying information prepatory to submitting one proposal. The board will seek a cross-section of opinion before methods of control are assembled and a plan presented to Senator King, it was decided yesterday. The board's committeemen are Joseph Burkart, chairman; George W. Offutt, Paul E. Lesh, L. E. Williams and Edgar Morris.

Brooklyn Dodgers, Led by Cagle, Defeat Washington Pro Eleven, 20-0

Shares Glory With Kelly, Thomason

Invaders Score Twice in First Period to Clinch Game.

McCarver, Pearce and Baker Fail to Stop League Gridmen.

THE Brooklyn Dodgers, in front of the fine running of Chris Cagle, "Stumpy" Thomason and "Shipwreck" Kelly, defeated the Washington Passers, local professional football team, at Griffith Stadium last night. The score was 20-0.

A pair of touchdowns in rapid succession in the first period and another tally late in the second stanza was the margin of the victory.

The locals, reinforced by the acquisition of Nig McCarver, Johnny Baker and Hardy Pearce, late of the George Washington classrooms, failed to stem the tide of Flatbush scores. However, the Washington team showed a slight flurry of steam at the start of the third period, the ball being advanced by Bankhead and McCarver to the Dodger 35-yard line, but wild passes stopped further assault on the Brooklyn goal.

Passers Advance Ball.

In the fourth chapter, the Passers unleashed another march by way of broken field running, sandwiched between two nice passes, which brought the ball to the Brooklyn 23-yard line. But again the attack was stymied.

The feature of the fourth quarter was not in the running attack of either team but the flying mares that Herm Hickman, erstwhile wrestler, pulled on Blackstone, Passer center. It could only be seen and appreciated from the press box.

Cagle showed some fancy Army running when he combined his galloping with that of his back field mate "Shipwreck" Kelly, to advance the ball to the Passer 9-yard line at the start of the game. The former Army star then zipped a short pass to Paul Riblett, left end, who easily crossed the goal for the first score. Hickman kicked the extra point.

The Flatbush eleven added another score in the first period. Cagle took the ball on a punt from the Passer 41-yard line to the 19. Kelly smashed right tackle to the 14. Cagle ran to the 5 and, on the next play, Kelly rolled over the Washington goal after a wide end run for the tally.

Rivals Take to Air.

To start the second period both clubs took to the air with interceptions numerous. Finally Worden, Dodger left guard, intercepted a throw in mid-field. Two tosses to Nash brought the ball to the Washington 19. At this point, Hickman's try for a 35-yard field goal was far short of the mark, and the Passers took the ball on their 20. A forward pass by McCarver was intercepted by Thomason, former star Georgia Tech back, and he galloped 35 yards for the score, running the total to 20 points for the Dodgers.

Hudkins Is Seized On Robbery Count

Arrested After Quarrel; Was Knocked Out.

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 8 (AP).—Ace Hudkins, former "Nebraska Wildcat" of the pugilistic world, and a companion, Dave Chalmers, 25-year-old salesman, were arrested today on suspicion of robbery, but authorities said the charge probably would be changed to assault and battery.

The former prizefighter and Chalmers were arrested on complaint of George Kerckhoff, who told police Hudkins and Chalmers came to his home to see Mrs. Olive Chalmers, his stepdaughter, and Chalmers' divorced wife.

A quarrel followed, authorities said, and Hudkins drew a revolver. Kerckhoff took it away from him and knocked out both Hudkins and Chalmers. Police said the revolver was unloaded.

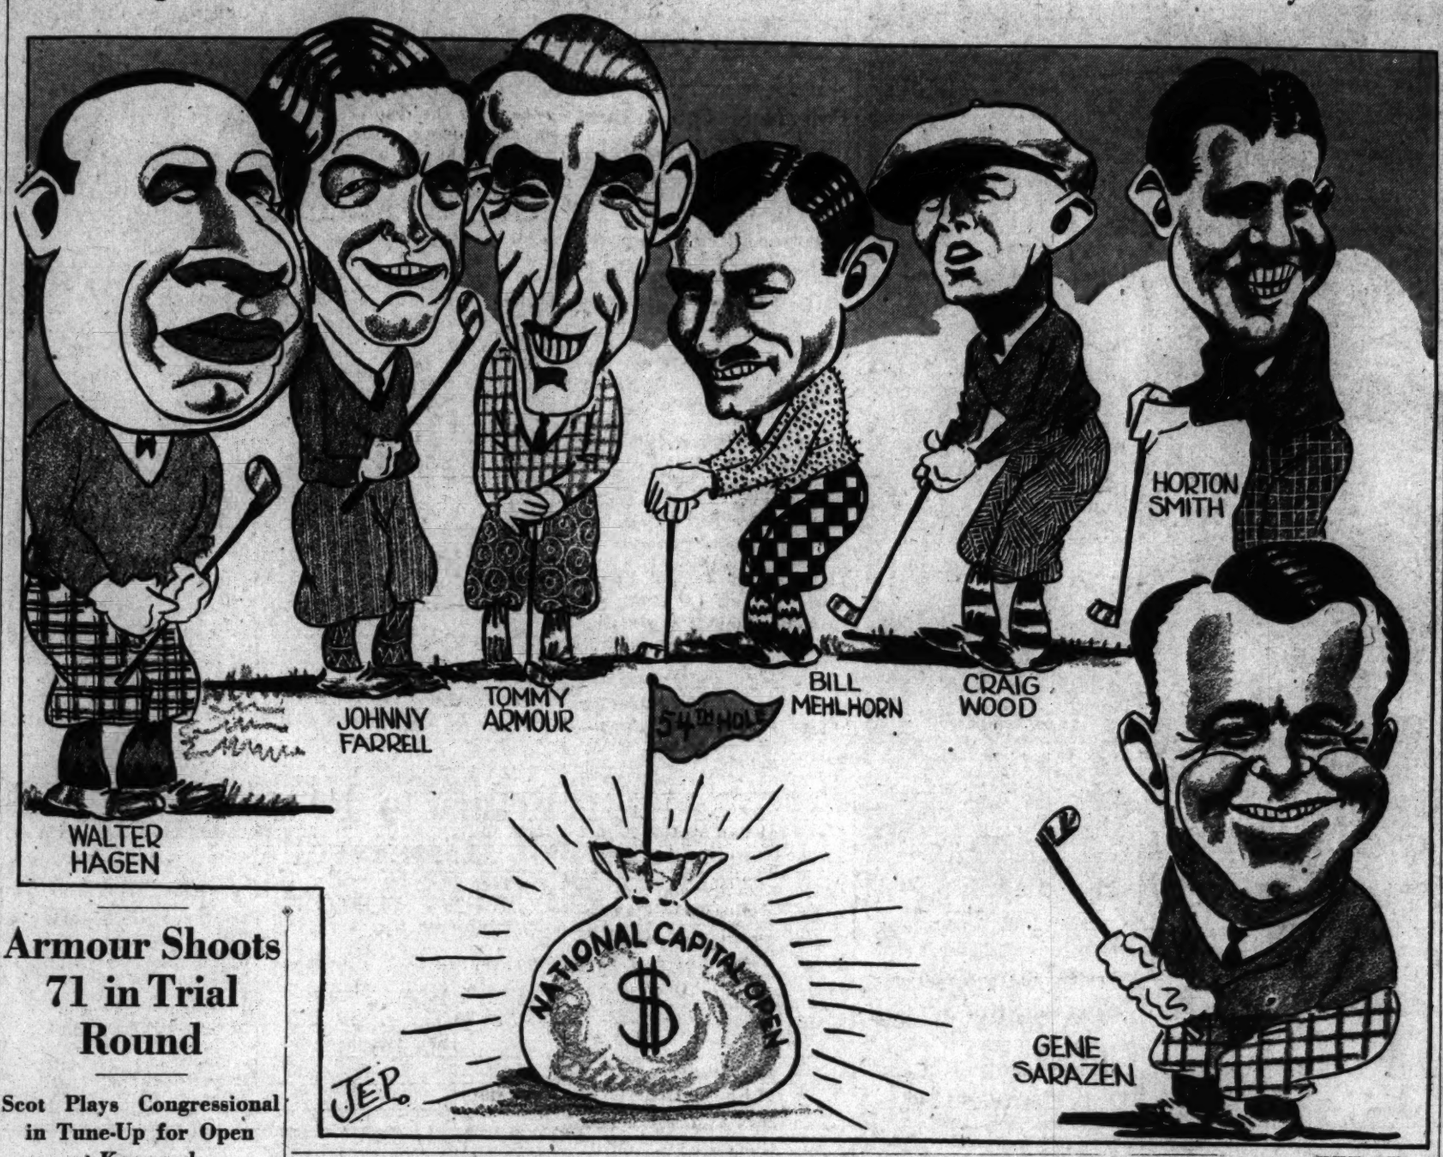

Authorities said they had received a report from a gasoline attendant that Hudkins appeared at the station, ordered gasoline and, in lieu of payment, showed the attendant the butt end of a revolver.

Armour Shoots 71 in Trial Round

TOMMY ARMOUR, the Black Scot, returned to familiar scenes yesterday, bristling with confidence as he opened his practice campaign for the National Capital open golf championship scheduled for Saturday and Sunday over the Kenwood course.

As is customary with the former American, British and Canadian open ruler, Armour played a round over his one-time home course, Congressional, in preference to Kenwood. The high wind and frigid weather didn't bother Armour. After 18 holes he was as fresh as when he started out, and had a subpar 71 to his credit. Last year on the first day of his perennial visit the Black Scot shot a spectacular 66.

Playing with him were his brother, Sandy, Luther Steward, jr., and Roof Gilsen, husband of Georgia Coleman, famous Olympic diving champion. Armour, who is pro at the Medina Club, Chicago, expects to tour the Kenwood layout twice today.

Old Jack Frost slowed up activity yesterday at the Kenwood battleground, which is fast being put into shape for the $2,000 54-hole event. Few ventured forth, and those that did scored poorly.

Revolta on Scene.

The nationally known stars who showed up were Johnny Revolta, Archie Hambrick, Elkins, W. Va., and Al Espinosa, member of a famous golfing family. A few minutes after their arrival Revolta and Hambrick tried out the course in company with Wild Bill Melhorn and two other visiting pros.

Some 21 additional entries were received yesterday, boosting the field to 138. Billy Burke, 1931 National Open champion, was included in the batch of new entrants, as was Clarence Clark, long-driving Bloomfield, N. J., pro.

Willie MacFarlane, 1931 National Open champion, wired Al Houghton late yesterday confirming his entry. MacFarlane said he would arrive either today or tomorrow.

Wilson, Card Catcher, To Pilot Reds, Report

St. Louis, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Post-Dispatch said today it had "dependable information" that Jimmy Wilson, Cardinal catcher, will go to the Cincinnati Reds as manager, after being traded by the Cardinals to the Phillies.

The newspaper said Wilson will be traded to the Phillies for Catcher Virgil Davis, the Phillies to receive some cash in the transaction. Then Wilson and First Baseman Don Hurst will be sent to Cincinnati in exchange for Jim Bottomley and Catcher Lombardi, and Wilson will be appointed manager.

U. S. Hockey Team Bows.

London, England, Nov. 8 (AP).—An English team of women field hockey players today defeated the touring American team, seven goals to one, leading 4-1 at half time. Virginia Vanderbeck, of Philadelphia, scored the lone American tally.

Terps Use Five D. C. Boys in Duke Game

Three Will Make Debut in Starting Roles Saturday.

THOSE five Washington boys who have been battling to uphold Maryland's wavering banner on the gridiron this season will have the opportunity of performing before a local audience Saturday when the Old Liners tangle with Duke's unconquered and untied eleven at College Park. Three of them are to make their debut in starting roles.

Dick Nelson is the only veteran in the group, the others serving their first year in varsity livery. Nelson is regular quarter back. However, one of the rookies, George Sachs, has started every game this season and is counted a veteran on the green Terp squad.

Simpson Is Out.

Maryland's forward wall will be weakened to some extent by the loss of Johnny Simpson, right guard, whom Garrott is replacing. Injuries suffered last week against Virginia will make it impossible for him to play. Tom Webb, center, and Bucky Buscher, half back, also are ailing, but both hope to get into action.

Duke's squad, numbering 40 players, is scheduled to leave Durham, N. C., tonight, arriving in Washington early tomorrow. They will be quartered at the Harrington Hotel. No word has been received from Coach Wallace Wade as to whether the team will practice tomorrow. In all probability a light limbering-up drill will be the most it will do.

"Horse" Hendrickson, regular Blue Devil quarter back, will be

Four G. U. Gridders Ousted

Costello, Alenty, Muti and Russo Are Dismissed by Coach Hagerty for Violation of Training Regulations and Lack of Cooperation.

A MIGHTY BLOW, struck in the name of discipline, stunned Georgetown University's football forces yesterday and further depleted the thinning ranks of the Blue and Gray. Coach Jack Hagerty summarily dismissed four members of the team, three of them regulars, for failure to comply with training regulations and a lack of cooperation while at Boston last week, where the Hilltoppers met Boston College.

The players affected by his decree were Hilary Costello, quarter back; Stanley Alenty and Americus Muti, ends, and Gildo Russo, guard. All figured prominently in plans being promulgated for the last games on the schedule.

Hagerty last night said that two of the players reported late for practice Friday afternoon in Boston and failed to be in bed at the prescribed hour of 10 o'clock. The others did not report at a squad meeting following the practice, at which plans for the Boston College game were discussed. The coach stated that under the circumstances the only course left open to him was to dismiss the players to maintain the discipline and morale of the squad.

It was reported last night that two of the players had left school and would be followed by the others the latter part of the week, but this could not be confirmed.

Matmen Fall Out —Beard and All

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (U.P.).—"Man Mountain" Dean, bearded 302-pound wrestler from Georgia, tonight made a clean sweep of the ring when he hurled the Hungarian Hurricane, Sandor Szabo, over the ropes.

As Szabo was taking off on his flight, he grabbed Dean by the beard and pulled him out of the ring with him. Referee Tom Parsonnett, who rushed forward to prevent their falling on the writers, was encircled by one of Dean's arms and went flying out of the ring with the two grapplers.

Both wrestlers landed on their heads on the floor, but the referee was more fortunate. He made a three-point landing on the grapplers, and was able to return to the ring. He counted out both men before they were able to follow him to the platform. Szabo weighed 214.

Al Smith Plans to See Manhattan, Holy Cross

New York, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will witness the Manhattan-Holy Cross football game from a field box at Ebbets Field on Saturday.

It will be the first game the "Happy Warrior" has attended this fall. He is an enthusiastic Manhattan rooter, two of his sons, Arthur and Walter, having attended Manhattan.

Arizmendi-Chocolate Bout, Promoter's Aim

Los Angeles, Nov. 8 (AP).—Tom Gallery, matchmaker of the Olympic Auditorium, said today he would make every effort immediately to match Baby Arizmendi, victor over Eddie Shea here last night, with Kid Chocolate, world's featherweight champion, for a bout here late in November or early in December.

The title probably would not be at stake.

Hockey Campaign Will Open Tonight

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Like a stimulating blast from winter, the National Hockey League season will blow into the leading cities of the United States and Canada tomorrow for a stay that will last until close to the end of March.

Another good season for the fans, if not the club owners, is in prospect as three games tomorrow night open the activities of the same nine clubs that competed last year. From every training camp come reports of new talent acquired to strengthen clubs for the 48-game grind that leads up to the playoffs for the Stanley cup, emblem of the World's Professional Hockey Championship.

The opening games at Toronto, Montreal and Chicago bring together the Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs, rivals in a gruelling series for the league championship last March; the Detroit Red Wings and the Montreal Canadians; and the New York Americans and Chicago Blackhawks. The rest of the teams will swing into action Saturday night, the Canadians playing at Ottowa, Boston against the Maroons at Montreal and the Champion New York Rangers at Toronto.

Reconciliation Of Chapmans Attempted

Move of Judge Fails and Separate Maintenance Trial Is Resumed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 8 (AP). The good offices of a divorce court judge today failed to effect a reconciliation between Mrs. Ben Chapman and her husband, an outfielder of the New York Yankees baseball club.

Neither of the principals would discuss the failure to reach a reconciliation in the two hours they were in the chambers of Judge William Walker, who had brought them together.

Taking testimony in Mrs. Chapman's suit for separate maintenance was resumed this afternoon, when the failure was announced by attorneys.

"I don't care to discuss it," said Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Chapman, a pretty 22-year-old brunette, as she sat beside her counsel while her husband's friends were testifying to his good habits.

Let Wife Do It.

After he had left the stand Chapman, a husky 24-year-old athlete, showing the same deference he has toward his wife in the courtroom, said, "I prefer to let her make any statement to be made."

The conference was brought about today by Judge Walker, a kindly gray-haired man, before whom hundreds of couples have aired their marital discords. Both had testified to mutual love yesterday.

Mrs. Chapman returned to the stand this afternoon, but her answers could barely be heard. Her attorney repeated each answer for the court stenographer.

The suit was filed last spring after Mrs. Chapman alleged her husband went away with the Yan-

G. W. Cheered As Leemans Improves

Grid Star May Be Able to Play Tomorrow Against W. & J.

Scouts State Presidents Use Warner System Very Effectively.

GEORGE WASHINGTON yesterday set about erecting barriers strong enough to stop the Warner system plays which Washington and Jefferson will use against the Colonials tomorrow night.

The Presidents use the Warner system pure and unadulterated, with its bewildering double and triple passes behind the line, single and double wing backs, around end plays and straight bucks. They send the men in all directions as decoys for the opposition, shoving the ball carrier through the unguarded spots in the defensive web.

Washington and Jefferson uses the hidden ball, as it was used by Georgetown under Lou Little and by Penn. G. W. coaches who scouted Presidents say they handle the system as well as any team in the East.

Record of Some Kind.

The Presidents hung up a record of some sort against Carnegie Tech when they carried the ball 29 times in the third period, or approximately twice as many times as a team usually does, G. W. expects them to play a strictly offensive game.

Colonial supporters were heartened by the news that "Tuffy" Leemans probably will be able to play. Injuries threatened to keep the superior speed merchant out of action. Phil Kline, a local boy, had been groomed to do the kicking and passing in the event Leemans did not play. Kline undoubtedly will do much of both even if the injured halfback does break into the line-up.

George Washington spent most of yesterday drilling on its passing plays, an indication that it expects the going to be too tough on the ground floor. Most of its running plays go to the right or through territory which will be protected by Ercius, end; Dalrymple, tackle, and Fife, guard. W. and J.'s line stood up well against Pitt and Carnegie Tech, and should be able to withstand the downtown school's thrusts.

Ercius will be one of the busiest men on the field tomorrow night. The lanky end does all of the kicking, pasing and a goodly share of the ball carrying for his team. He figured in 50 per cent of the plays against Carnegie.

Gonzaga Defeats St. John's, 12 to 0

Boyle and Luebkert Get Game's Touchdowns.

Gonzaga Prep defeated St. John's yesterday afternoon on Bennings Field, 12-0.

Both touchdowns were scored in the second period. Tommy Folliard, Purple right half, took a punt from midfield to the Johnnie 24-yard line. Luebkert smashed through the center of the line to the 6-yard line and from that point Jimmy Boyle crashed over for the first score.

A few moments before the quarter ended a sustained march by Gonzaga placed the ball on St. John's 15-yard line. A play later Luebkert on a wide right end run raced the remaining distance for the score.

The line-up:

St. John's.		Gonzaga.
McDonald	L. E.	Connors
McAlrich	L. T.	King
Kirby	L. G.	Thibedeau
Kenealy	Center	Dunnington

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

MESSRS. CHRIS CAGLE and Shipwreck Kelly, proprietors of the Brooklyn Dodgers' franchise in the National Professional Football League, weren't asking their employes to do anything they couldn't do themselves last night at Griffith Stadium, where the Dodgers tarried long enough to smear the Washington Passers for a 20-0 loss.

Cagle and Kelly were not deterred by the fact that theirs was a very meager portion of a very meager gate. They gave the shivering fans an all-American eyeful of a pair of all-American backs and for Nig McCarver and Johnny Baker, the back field men late of G. W. who were with the Passers, it was a pointed object lesson in how the pros play football.

Cagle is now in his eleventh year of football, having served four years with Louisiana State before beginning a four-year term at West Point, where he was one of the contributing factors in grinding Navy beneath the Army's heel until eligibility squawks interrupted the annual battles. He is still the same twinkle-toed performer in the back field, and he was pitching that football last night in a manner that was reminiscent of Ossie Bluege's heaves across the diamond.

Victory Record Treatened.

Catholic University's football season reaches its peak on Saturday when, among other things, the Cardinals will be defending a home record that has been unmarred by defeat in three seasons. But never was this record as seriously challenged as it will be two days hence, when C. U. hopes to play an unkindly host to the University of Detroit's Terrible Titans.

The Titans loom the more terrible since their feat of last Saturday, when they summarily removed Holy Cross from the ranks of the unbeaten by the conclusive score of 20 to 6, and thus Catholic's record of 13 straight victories at home is in extreme jeopardy, or words to that effect.

On comparative scores, Coach Bergman's lads appear outclassed by Detroit. Holy Cross earlier in the season dealt C. U. a 20-to-7 beating. But comparative football scores are no more reliable than the work of Machine Gun Kelly. And C. U. has come along since that Holy Cross game to beat Wake Forest, among others.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

It is no comfort to the Passers to realize that the Brooklyn Dodgers are a fourth-place club in the Eastern section of the National Professional League . . . George Marshall is demanding a $3,500 guarantee to bring his Boston Redskins to Washington for a game with the Passers . . . there's no harm in demanding . . . the Redskins won't be seen in Washington . . . at that price . . . talk of Michigan going to the Rose Bowl is premature . . . despite reports to the contrary, Big Ten rules still prohibit postseason games . . . Pop Warner, commenting in the Saturday Evening Post, pointed out that an Eastern team had spent $2,000 scouting his Stanford Indians . . . while all it cost him to scout the Easterners was 6 cents, the price of stamps on two letters from a Stanford alumnus in the East . . . but Warner neglected to mention that when Alabama was selected to meet Stanford in the Rose Bowl game, he made a special trip to Tuscaloosa to scout the Crimson Tide personally . . . daring not to trust his assistant coaches for the report on Alabama's strength . . . Champ Pickens, promoter of the all-East vs. all-West game on the Coast for the Shriners several years ago, spent $28 in a transcontinental telephone call to Benny Friedman in New York in an effort to get him to join the Eastern team.

Groth, Injured, Is Lost to V. P. I.

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—Charles A. "Heinie" Groth, one of the hardest-driving half backs Virginia Tech ever had, has played his last game for the Gobblers.

A knee injury that has kept him on the bench for several weeks and the inability to condition himself properly after the lay off, caused the hefty half back to turn in his uniform this afternoon. Disappointed at not being able to participate further in athletics, Groth, it was reported about the campus, planned to resign from college some time this week. His class record, though not outstanding, was reported as being satisfactory.

Groth is a stocky ball toter of the bucking and blocking type. He could hit a defense with terrific power and was one of Tech's best defensive backs, quick in diagnosing opponents' plays and a hard, sure tackler. As a blocker of extraordinary ability, he set off many of Tech's scoring drives.

Schmeling-Baer Bout Is Planned for Feb. 22

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Joe Jacobs, manager of the former world's heavyweight boxing champion, Max Schmeling, returned today from Germany with the announcement a return bout between Schmeling and Max Baer was planned for February 22 in San Francisco with Jack Dempsey as promoter.

G. W. Students Pledge Support Of Football Team at Big Rally

AT a gigantic rally, attended by more than 2,000 students, addressed by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, the George Washington student body yesterday pledged its loyalty to the football team for the remainder of the season, in victory and in defeat.

Speaking at the request of the student council, Dr. Marvin graphically described the events leading up to the suspension of three varsity men on the morning of the Tennessee game. He described the exchanged correspondence between himself and N. W. Daugherty, chairman of the Athletic Council of Tennessee, which apparently exonerated the players and then, according to Dr. Marvin, Tennessee later brought new charges which resulted in the ousting of the trio.

Dr. Marvin did not criticize Tennessee's action. His only comment was, "I have received only cooperation from our neighboring institutions when I have gone to them for cooperation and they may count upon cooperation from us. Any member of this university, if he believes in the George Washington University, should be the last person to make accusations against any other educational institution. I believe it to be true that the recognized educational institutions of this area will develop together and that no one of them will rise at the expense of another. It is certain that we can never build the George Washington University by being against anything or any person. We are going to build the George Washington University by believing in it, and because we believe in it by giving our best to establish a true and outstanding program for it."

His address drew a tremendous ovation from the students, intensified by the appearance of the football squad just returning from practice. The individual members of the team were introduced from the platform as the students cheered madly.

C. U. Eleven Hopeful of Upsetting Detroit in Home-Coming Game Saturday

Cards Boast New Plays For Foes

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S players are burning the midnight oil this week, not over their text books particularly, but on the plays that will be used against Detroit U. Saturday at Griffith Stadium. It is C. U.'s seventh annual home-coming game, and the records show that it has never lost such a contest, although held to a scoreless tie by Dusquesne last year.

Catholic also is intent upon preserving its home game winning streak, which started in 1931 and now has snowballed into 13 victories, temporarily halted, but not snapped, by that same tie with Dusquesne. The Cardinals have been unusually successful in their own bailiwick, a trait that will likely prove helpful against Detroit.

Detroit Weak on Road.

By a mere coincidence, Detroit is notoriously weak on the road. Three of its last four games on foreign soil resulted in defeats for the Titans. Marquette and Holy Cross turned the trick last season, Duquesne did it again this year, and C. U. hopes to be the fourth team to do it.

At this stage, the Brooklanders are rated as the underdogs, but if they play as they have played in the past with the odds against them, it will be a tough afternoon for the visiting delegates. In 1931, the Cards led Boston College, 7 to 6, up until the last eight minutes of the game when B. C.'s superior reserve strength exhausted them and gave the Beantown eleven a 26-to-7 victory. Last year C. U. held Holy Cross on even terms for 55 minutes, only to see the Crusaders put on the pressure in the few remaining minutes and cop the verdict. Coach Bergman expects his men to hold Detroit the entire 60 minutes Saturday, and score enough points while so doing to win.

The C. U. squad worked until well after dusk last night perfecting its offense. Bergman has devised a flock of new plays, incorporating a host of spinners evolving into laterals and down-field passes. The Cards' plan of battle calls for a wide-open game and no pulling of punches.

Detroit, in the meantime, is supremely confident of adding to its prestige and winning column percentage at the expense of the District eleven. In the words of Coach Gus Dorais, the C. U. scouts who looked over his team when it played Holy Cross, "ain't seen nothing yet."

According to Dorais, his men were able to keep the best part of their aerial repertoire in the bag because its simple forwards were baffling enough for Holy Cross. The Titans do not contemplate showing all their wares against C. U. They figure the Cards are certainly no better than the Purple.

To which C. U. and Bergman reply, "Hrrrmph! Wait and see!"

Battering Ram of C. U. Back Field

TOM OLIVER,

Cardinal full back, who will team with Capt. Jankowski in the Cardinals' back field on Saturday at Griffith Stadium in an attempt to smash the powerful line of Detroit University which played a major role in the latter's one-sided victory over Holy Cross.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

FRED BUCHHOLZ, Washington sportsman, has been asked by the National Duckpin Bowling Congress to present certificates to members of the Occidental and Convention Hall teams, selected as the leading duckpin bowlers of the United States for the 1932-33 season. The following certificates will be given: No. 4 ranking bowler, Joe Harrison (Occidental); No. 7, Alfred "Dutch" Newman (Occidental); No. 11, "Whip" Litchfield (Convention Hall), and No. 22, Charles Walson (Convention Hall). The certificates will be presented tonight before the teams start their matches in the District League. Eddie Espey, who was ranked No. 20, received his certificate at a recent opening in Richmond.

George Isemann, secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, points out that more than 78,000 league bowlers were taken into consideration in selecting the ranking list. The selections were made on a percentage basis, league averages counting 60 per cent, and special events counting 40 per cent.

Many of the best bowlers in the country will attend the grand opening of the Silver Spring Bowling Alleys tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Evelyn Ellis, who took second place in the United States mixed doubles, and her husband, Pres Ellis, who led the Bankers League last season, will meet Mr. and Mrs. Rothgeb in a three-game mixed doubles match. Al Fischer, 1928 singles champion, will appear in a three-game exhibition against Reds Morgan, 1929 United States doubles champion. Pauline Ford, 1931 United States all-events champion, and Elsie Fischer, 1931 doubles champion, will pair in a doubles match against Marie Brown and Ann Kowell, of Baltimore, and Ray Barnes, Dixie Sweepstakes champion, and Andy Zeiler, 20-game world record holder, will complete their match with Bob Temple and George Isemann. The local team has a 24-pin lead acquired in its opening match at Baltimore.

B. R. English, former president of the Lions Club and now deputy distric governor of Maryland, District of Columbia and Delaware, will act as manager, assisted by Lieut. Edwin C. Warfield, member of the Silver Spring National Guard.

Crane's (Carry's Ice Cream) 141 game and Milner (Shoe Mart), with a 387 set, league record for the season, annexed the individual honors in the Commercial League at Convention Hall alleys. Shoe Mart took team honors with a 574 game and 1,650 set.

Western Electric, No. 1, with a 569 game and 1,561 set, annexed the team honors in the Electrical League at Convention Hall. Kearney (E. B. Warren) and Ed Blakeney (Creel Brothers) captured individual honors with a 156 game and 366 set, respectively.

Two Marquette stars, Frank Mischou and Freddie Moore, were the individual aces in the Knights of Columbus League at Convention Hall, toppling the maples for a 143 game and 362 set, respectively. Balboa took high team game with 583 and Marquette annexed high team set with 1,703.

Jerman (Skippys) led the Bureau of Customs Ladies League at Arcadia, rolling a 105 game and 279 set. Striker's 393 game and 1,109 set carried away the team honors.

Mauling the maples for a high team set record of the season, 1,592 pins, the Bill Wood team bumped the Petworths for three games. Margaret Miltner's high set of the night of 340 was the leading factor in the victory. Rendezvous maintained its position at the top of the league by taking the odd game from Georgetown. Columbia won three from Convention Hall; Arcadia took two from Myer Davis and Lucky Strike dropped the odd game to Recreation.

The Steam Rollers carried away the honors in the Dynamite League at Arcadia, with a team game of 539 and 1,591 for high team set. Simpson (Steam Rollers) was the individual star, taking high game with 134 and a total of 356 for high set.

Sol Herzog's outfit went into a tie for first place in the Recreation League on the Recreation drives, last night, white-washing the Patent Attorney team all three games while Sims Studios, former leaders, took the odd game from Chris Delicatessen. Howard Parsons (Chris Delicatessen) with a 150 game and Marco Garilli (Sol Herzog) rolling a 393, were the individual stars. Herzog's 598 game and 1,754 set were the best team efforts.

Plant Office annexed all honors in the C. & P. Telephone League on the Lucky Strike alleys, aided by Oeser's 141 game and 394 set. A 597 team game and 1,729 set were high for team honors.

Schilling (Home Bakery No. 2) and Lou Cohen (National Shirt Shop) led the list of individual feats in the Merchants League on the Lucky Strike drives, rolling a 145 game and 373 set, respectively. Home Bakery No. 2 took high team game with 571 while Southern Dairy's 1,602 team game set was not exceeded.

Dutch Sherbahn (Fruit Growers Express) smashed two records in the Takoma Business Men's League at Takoma last night, spilling the maples for a 165 game and a 430 set, which was the leading factor in his team's winning all three games of its match with Dome Oil. Goode Tinning Co., in taking the odd game from Marinian Food Stores, rolled the second high team game of the season, toppling 614 pins. In the other matches Old Colony Laundry won two from Takoma Post Office, and Pioneer Press took the odd one from Youngblood Hardware.

British Sailors Beat United Booters

Danae Soccer Team Gets Game's Only Score Late in Second Half.

SAILORS from the English H. M. S. Danae, now docked at the navy yard, shook the barnacles from their legs yesterday and gave the local British United eleven a 1-to-0 trimming. The jolly tars did not score until late in the second half, when their play was noticeably better.

The victory goal came after the visitors had pressed the Uniteds relentlessly for 5 minutes. The latter conceded a corner, and Coughlin, taking the resulting kick, centered nicely and Evans headed the sphere by the pudgy "Spud" Coleman, United goalie.

Uniteds Show Improvement.

The local British put up an excellent game and showed a vast improvement over their last showing. The addition of Johnny Malloch and Jess Burton gave them just the required punch to hold the sailors to the one goal. However, the Danae squad had an impenetrable defense and all the cunning of Messrs. Turner, Blanche, Malloch and Smith did not succeed in tricking Parker, Danae goal keeper.

The visitors played a fast, short-passing game that kept the locals on the defense most of the time. Coughlin, just 18 years of age, played brilliantly for the victors. He was on the left wing, where he had many opportunities to display a nice cross and kept his inside men well fed. The teams will meet again Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the Monument Grounds.

Gettysburg Beats Navy Soccer Team

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 8 (Spl.).—Soccer players of Getysburg College proved too clever for the Annapolis Midshipmen and won a hard-fought game here today, 3 to 1. It was the second reverse of the season for the Tars, Penn State having turned the trick two weeks ago.

The game was played in biting cold weather. Forcing the fight from the outset, the visitors scored within 3 minutes after the opening whistle, Fink booting the ball into the net from an angle after a fine piece of dribbling. Fink scored again before the end of the first period. Doughery scored Navy's lone marker toward the close of the first half. Gettysburg led a fast attack to open the second half, Grant making a goal after 4 minutes. The teams then settled into a fierce contest, fine defensive work preventing further scoring.

Wood, Billiard Star, Wins Over Summerell

Minneapolis, Nov. 8 (AP).—Harry Wood, Duluth, fighting to get out of a near cellar berth, defeated Charles Summerell, Little Rock, Ark., today in a national pocket billiards Association championship match.

Wood, who has given tourney leaders much competition despite five losses, set Summerell down, 125 to 80, in 18 innings. It was Wood's third win. He had a high run of 21 compared to 18 for Summerell, who yesterday scored a an upset when he handed Charles Seaback, Astoria, N. Y., his first defeat of the tournament.

Mrs. J. L. Feiser Wins Penny-a-Putt Contest

Mrs. J. L. Feiser, of the host club, used up only 31 putts for 18 holes yesterday, and won first prize in the penny-a-putt contest at Washington Golf and Country Club. Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, sponsor of the tournament, won second with 32 putts, and Mrs. D. O. Hickey, of Army and Navy, third, with 33.

Mrs. R. N. Sutton won a prize for the least number of putts on the first nine, and Mrs. J. Dickinson Letts a prize for the least number on the second nine.

Miss Susan Hacker, of Chevy Chase, shot a 94 to lead a field of 40 participants in medal scoring.

Army in Hard Scrimmage; Off Today

(Associated Press.)

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Army held its last hard drill before the Harvard game today, with Leroy Mills, New Rochelle kicking expert, assisting Jack Buckler, Cy Simons and Bill Grohs at their specialty. Most of the workout was devoted to group work and line scrimmage, but the session wound up with a stiff scrimmage session in which the B squad gave the regulars their last look at Harvard plays before leaving for Cambridge tomorrow.

Princeton Looks Good.

Princeton, N. J.—Dan Hinman, veteran Princeton center who has been out since the start of the season with a broken bone in his foot, took part in the Tigers' dummy scrimmage and may be able to face Dartmouth. The regulars again looked good in a lengthy defensive session, holding the scrubs to a few short gains with Dartmouth plays.

Holds Hard Workout.

Ithaca, N. Y.—Despite snow flurries, Cornell had its first hard workout since the Columbia game, holding a long dummy scrimmage in preparation for meeting Dartmouth November 18.

Passes Bewilder N. Y. U.

New York.—New York University's regulars had all kinds of trouble stopping Fordham's passing plays as they prepared for the Battle of the Bronx Saturday. The scrubs completed several aerials for long gains.

Crush Navy Plays.

New York.—Three Columbia teams lined up against Navy's plays in a defense drill and the regulars, at least, encountered little trouble. They smothered the Midshipmen's style of running attack, and did even better at breaking up passes. Ferrara was kept out of the contact work, but is expected to play Saturday.

Attack Improves.

New York—The attack Manhattan expects to use against Holy Cross showed a distinct change for the better as Capt. Bill Pendergast and Larry Spellman got away for good runs. Blocking and timing were emphasized.

Yale Breaks Loose.

New Haven, Conn.—After being held scoreless by the freshmen for 25 minutes, the Yale varsity broke loose and scored three touchdowns in 35 minutes. Andy Callan, demoted last week, came back, scored two touchdowns and figured in the third.

Syracuse Backs Shifted.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Bad weather drove the Syracuse squad indoors to drill for the Brown game. Coach Vic Hanson had to revamp his back field because of an injury to Full Back Barney Nevins. Charlie Sudnick seemed to have the call.

Rutgers Tunes Up.

New Brunswick, N. J.—The Rutgers varsity tuned up for Lafayette by scoring freely against the second-string elevens. Two back fields both worked effectively.

Schedule Turkey Event.

The Indian Spring Country Club will sponsor a turkey tournament November 25-26. It will be an 18-hole medal play with handicap.

Pegler Says:

Pros Show Up Colleges in Playing Benefit for Cavanaugh.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 8 (Spl.).—The professional football people will be running a benefit performance at the Polo Grounds Sunday afternoon between the Giants and the Boston Red Skins for the benefit of the family of Maj. Frank Cavanaugh, a college coach, who died not long ago of war wounds or some trouble traceable to those injuries. He left a large family of small children and little else except a fine reputation.

Until this fall, his last coaching job had been the Fordham job, which is now held by Jimmy Crowley, late of Notre Dame. Before that he coached at Dartmouth, which was his alma mater, and at Boston College. It is a fine question whether the last school which employed him as coach should feel any greater obligation to run a foot ball game for the benefit of his family than either of the others. He wasn't in good health when he went to Fordham, and you could argue very well that the others used him up just as much.

Leave It Up to Pros.

However, apparently they all felt alike about it, and the upshot of the difficulty of prorating the wear and tear on the major has been that a strictly professional group, led by Tim Mara, a former bookmaker and currently a fight promoter as well as a football magnate, is running the show to gather in some money for the family of the college football man.

Some of the New York sport writers who rather lean toward the professional kinds of sport as being somehow more human and humane than the college crowd have given great assistance. They are a sentimental lot of weep-easies, who, given a column next to pure advertising matter, can cry $25,000 into the pocket of some worthy cause when they have not their own rent.

In this case, some of the journalists have been hoofing it in and out of the spending places at night selling tickets by hand for the Cavanaugh benefit. The major was a noble and tragic figure and our set loved him for his misfortunes and his bravery in them.

Mistake Quitting Law.

The major was educated for the law and it was a mistake on his part not to get on with his career for he ought to have made a good man in a courtroom. He thought with something of the rough-dry, underdog logic that has made Clarence Darrow famous, and like Darrow, he had an old-shoe sort of presence. In the law, he could have made some money although, being the sort of man he was, he probably would have put in too much of his time lawing for poor people who would have thanked him very, very much indeed and let it go at that. Anyway, I used to think he had been a poor quarter back in his own personal football games.

I think the professionals will come along in the football business until some distant day when they out-play and out-draw the college boys as widely as the major league baseball clubs do. The mugg element will always outnumber all other classes and a mugg can understand the simple logic of a promoter who raises a lot of money for a charity just because he wants to do it.

College Reasoning Faulty.

But the finely reasoned explanations that a college isn't obliged to do anything beyond the letter of the

Chicstraw, Johnson and Walden Stakes Winner, Repeats in Pimlico Handicap

Widener Colt Wins by 1½ Lengths

Time Supply Is Second With Signalman in Third Hole.

By a Staff Correspondent.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 8.—Chicstraw, winner of the Richard Johnson Stakes and the Walden Handicap, furthered his prestige here today by winning the Pimlico Handicap from a field of eight other juveniles over the 6-furlong sprint course. The son of Chicle—Last Straw justified a steady bombardment of the totalisor that made him and Brown Jack, his running mate, the favorite at a mutuel of $7.

Trailing the G. D. Widener representative a length and a half at the finish came Time Supply, the property of Mrs. F. A. Carreaud, with Signalman, of the Audley Farm holdings, third.

It was Chicstraw all the way after a brief interval when Starter Milton sent the field away. Signalman and Black Hand bounded out of the gates ahead of the ultimate winner, but Hank Mills soon had him on top and the pair was never headed. Time Supply proved a worthy rival, however, and ran neck and neck with Chicstraw during the swing for the stretch.

Cold Punishes Spectators.

Although the track had improved somewhat and was regarded as "slow" by the chartmakers, conditions otherwise were anything but auspicious for races. Overcoats trumped topcoats and furs were much in evidence. Among the 5,000 who saw the program, there were few who could truthfully say that they were "enjoying a day at the races."

The light blue and brown of the C. V. Whitney Stable came romping home in the first race with Black Bean doing the running and Jockey Albert Robertson the guiding. In fact, Robertson deserves a big chunk of the credit. His mount was next to last on the backstretch, but he went to the outside for racing room and had the lead well up the stretch to get home a length in front of Miss Glace, which had a length and a half on Bright Tess. A $14.80 mutuel was paid.

Even Stephen Cops Second.

Even Stephen, a son of Fair Play, gave the favorite players another jolt in the second race, scampering to the wire ahead of Lotta Airs and Muskoday. Six horses were bunched at the stretch turn but Even Stephen and Jocky Balaski packed the most punch. The pay-off was at the rate of $15.60 for each and every deuce.

Fleet Flag, a bad actor at the post, won the third race after a plunge-off tackle at the stretch turn that many believed would result in his disqualification. Porter, on the favorite, bumped Fluffy Lee, bumped Light Breeze and crowded Fervid. The last named was second and Light Breeze third. However, the official lights were turned on and the public choice was safe at a $4.20 mutuel.

Unencumbered, the glorified selling plater, took the measure of Euryalus, Dark Hope and others in the running of the Pimlico Graded Handicap, class B. The race was mostly between the first two to to finish and Unencumbered supplied an $8.20 mutuel.

War Glory took a nose decision from the lightly-weighed Chatmoss in the sixth race in which Late Date was third. Below Cost was first home in the final.

Racing in New Jersey Voted by 10 Counties

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP).—Ten of New Jersey's 21 counties have definitely decided they want horse racing within their borders, but that doesn't mean pari-mutuel machines or other betting methods will come into the State without a fight.

The referendum passed in at least ten of the counties provided only for "an act concerning corporations for raising and breeding and improving the breed of horse." The State constitution forbids betting, and two successive Legislatures must act to change this law before it is submitted to the people for final decision.

BIGGEST FIGHT OF THE YEAR! DON'T MISS IT!

LOEW'S PALACE—FRI.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Billie Hughes, the 3-in-one champion of Canada, won the Canadian bantamweight title early in 1911, holding it for 8 years. He then won the featherweight title in 1913, and held it until 1919. For the lightweight title he met Smeathers, the contender, winning in 1912, only to lose to him again two months later—but the following year he met Davis, the contender, to win.

Interspersed with his Canadian fights were bouts in the United States, by which he won various State and regional titles—eight in all—in America. Many times a champion in his own right, he later took up training as a career and broadening his field, has coached and trained 30 or more champions and championship teams in various kinds of sports. He has trained champions in hockey, football, basketball, boxing, skating; and was head coach of the Canadian track, field and boxing teams in the 1924 Olympics.

Resuming her education after a long interval, Mrs. Lillie C. Rood registered this year at the University of California for an extension course in elementary music. When she registered it was the first time she had seen the campus in 34 years.

Although it is a very common Latin phrase, appearing as it does on coins and on the Great Seal of the United States, as a motto of the Nation, very few people can tell you the meaning of "E Pluribus Unum." It really means "one from many." It is from the poem "Moretum," often credited to Vergil.

Eastern Eleven Given Edge Over Tech

Series Game Tomorrow to Have Direct Bearing on Championship.

WHAT promises to be another hard-fought interhigh football game is slated for Central Stadium tomorrow, when Eastern and McKinley Tech stage their annual pigskin rumpus.

The game, like that of last Friday, will have bearing on the championship race.

If Tech wins tomorrow, she'll eliminate Eastern from the position of cotitle-holder, along with Central, and will be holder of third place in the standings. If Eastern wins she'll divide the championship bunting with Central, whom she held to a scoreless tie in the series inaugural six weeks ago, and Tech will have undisputed claim on second place.

Comparative series scores give Eastern a one touchdown edge. The Lincoln Parkers have been reinforced by two transfers in the personages of Jack McCarthy, former St. John's luminary, and Catelle, Filipino half back, who played with Tech last season.

McKinley also will have its full playing strength on the field for the first time since the series opener with Central. Tommy Nolan and Bud Weirshem, half back and guard, respectively, will be in tip-top shape for the fray.

At the Post . . .

Dear Karl: Pimlico Race Track, Nov. 8.

Today's crowd forgot the cold to have the best laugh of the meeting. It happened between the fourth and fifth races. Two boys, playing "horses," came running down the steeplechase course. They ran up on the hedge fence at the grandstand jump and leaped over. Imagine their surprise when they landed in the water hazard on the other side. Both scrambled to their feet and dashed off, obviously homeward bound to change those dripping clothes. The double-play combination bet that I told you about worked in the last race yesterday. Of course, it's only another coincidence, but Lowry brought Below Cost home with Tipton and Pompoleon beaten. I have some warm-blooded horses for your cold cash today. BILL.

First race—Guiding Light shapes up as a juvenile with an excellent chance of graduating. Hustling Humphries will be in the saddle. Sturdy Ark appears second best. An off track would give the cheap Huppy a chance to get in the pay-off.

Second race—Porter's Dream certainly has the edge over the cattle entered here. Pretty fair sort on occasions, and the ordinary opposition should allow this one to get home. Flageolet for the place. Rod Rack, the half-miler, is good now and may surprise.

Third race — Annapolis is my choice to down the heavily weighted Drapeau over the jumping course. Both are reported in good condition and ready for a hard race. Point Breeze to show.

Fourth race—Fancy Flight, with a world of early foot and No. 1 post position, gets the Bennings call in this. Cruising will like this field a lot more than that last. Kate is much improved and may show.

Fifth race — Black Queen has shown her speed and will have to be beaten before another takes this purse. Aborigine and Pompestian to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Live One shot and missed the last time, but has worked well since and should go out and grab this purse tomorrow. Don Pedro has threatened and is ready to win if the top one makes mistakes. Even Up for the show end.

Seventh race — Banderlog may awake to shock the boys here. Has been tending to his knitting of late. Dabson will ride the former Whitneyite and I understand the sheckels will be down. Renewed and Primute for the other awards.

Eighth race—Sister Madge gets a chance despite the fact that she has some tough ones to take into camp. The gal is as sharp as a tack, I'm told. Playfole and Portden to complete the money picture.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACK BEAN, $14.80, $6.40, $4.00; MISS GLACE, $8.00, $6.60; BRIGHT TESS, $4.80.

BLACK BEAN, as usual, slow to settle in his stride, entered contention swiftly midway of the turn, swung to the outside to take command and under stiff pressure outstayed MISS GLACE. Latter worked her way into contention with good speed and then closed gamely. BRIGHT TESS weakened after making a determined effort at the stretch turn. UNCHANGING finished with good courage.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good (from gate). Won, driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:59. Off at 2:01. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EVEN STEPHEN, $15.60, $9.20, $6.60; LOTTA AIRS, $4.60, $3.60; MUSKODAY, $27.80.

EVEN STEPHEN, moved up stoutly after the opening five furlongs, responded strongly under severe urging and was up approaching the finish. LOTTA AIRS away slowly, circled the field assumed a brief lead in the closing furlong, but faltered from her early efforts. MUSKODAY entered contention at the final turn, came to the outside and finished willingly. BURNSIDE raced in spots. THE DOCTOR made a bold effort entering the home stretch, but weakened in the final issue. GRAND ACRE gained a slight lead nearing the home stretch, but tired fast thereafter. LAMPOON went lame and was pulled up.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start, good from gate. Won, driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:28. Off at 2:32½. Winner, B. B. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLEET FLAG, $4.20, $2.80, $2.80; FERVID, $4.20, $3.80; LIGHT BLUE, $6.85.

FLEET FLAG, working his way up on the outside, when straightened into the back stretch, crowded FLUFFY LEE rounding the turn, and then swerved into LIGHT BREEZE and FERVID, entering the home stretch, continued stoutly and outstayed FERVID. Latter continued on the inside after being bothered and fought it out stoutly. LIGHT BREEZE showed a good effort all the way, but weakened after being bumped. FLUFFY LEE had a rough trip at the first turn and she weakened. BRIGHT DAY passed tiring horses. MODERN TIMES was rushed off her feet and poorly handled.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles; Pimlico Graded Handicap (class B). Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won, easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:59. Off at 3:00. Winner, Bomar Stable, b. g. (4), Swing On—Blue Jeans. Trained by R. E. Potts. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuel paid—UNENCUMBERED, $8.20, $3.60, $2.60; EURYALIS, $7.00, $3.80; DARK HOPE, $2.60.

UNENCUMBERED, restrained off the early pace and kept out in safe footing, disposed of the leaders with a rush when straightened into the main stretch and drew out without effort. EURYALIS hustled into the lead, was momentarily displaced by FEUDAL LORD after six furlongs, came back again to regain command, but flattened out badly in the final drive. DARK HOPE labored in the going and could not seriously menace the leaders. FEUDAL LORD was rushed up on the inside between calls to gain command after six furlongs but tired. The others were outrun.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. The Pimlico Handicap Purse, $2,500 added. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won, driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:32. Winner, G. D. Widener's dk. b. or br. c. (2), by Chick—Last Straw. Trained by W. F. Milholland. Value to winner, $2,920; second, $400; third, $200; fourth, $100. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHICSTRAW, $7.00, $3.40, $2.80; TIME SUPPLY, $5.20, $4.20; SIGNALMAN, $6.00.

CHICSTRAW, away clearly, was sent into early command, withstood strong contention from SIGNALMAN in the first five furlongs, resisted TIME SUPPLY and came out smartly when shaken up. TIME SUPPLY entered a forward position midway of the turn, drew on practically even terms with the winner, but was not good enough. SIGNALMAN showed a strong effort all the way. BROWN JACK, came to the outside and finshed fast. BLACK HAND was messed about the entire trip.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Pimlico Graded Handicap (class A). Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won, driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:59. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR GLORY, $6.60, $4.60, $3.00; CHATMOSS, $7.80, $5.40; LATE DATE, $3.00.

WAR GLORY, going smartly, improved, crowded over on LATE DATE and MONEL when rushed to the front going to the first turn, shook off repeated efforts from LATE DATE, but was ridden out severely to stall off CHATMOSS. Latter responded strongly, came to the outside in the final half mile and would have been winner in a few more strides. LATE DATE forced a steady pace after meeting with early interference and held on well. DOMINUS broke slowly and was never a factor.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800. The Suburban. Claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won, driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:27½. Off at 4:28. BELOW COST inconsistent, raced within striking distance of the leaders, swung to the outside when ready and closing fast had something in reserve when displacing the leaders. VESTED POWER taken out in the better footing, came courageously in the final drive. COMMUTER, taken under early restraint, wore PARITY down, and faltered when kept in the softer footing. POMPOLEON broke slowly and was steered wide all the way. PARITY was whipped and rushed off his feet.

Stecher Meets Zaharias Tonight

UNDER the surface, tonight's feature match on the Auditorium rassle-fest program, has considerable to do with the immediate future of the combatants, Ole Joe Stecher and George Zaharias. The latter has been on the build-up here for some time with one of those house-filling Jim Londos matches held out as a bait. His climb up the ladder was temporarily halted when Referee Bennie Bortnick made Zaharias the victim of the world record short count in a bout with Gino Garibaldi.

The big Greek, however, started climbing again by later throwing Garibaldi for a loss and then getting the better of Ray Steele. Now everything is set for him and another Londos go, provided he downs Stecher tonight.

But downing Stecher is easier said than done. Joe, twice world champion, may not be as speedy as he used to be, but he is still strong and powerful and that famous leg scissors of his seems to be just as effective as it was in Stecher's palmy days. When Ole Joe drapes his legs about a foe, it is not for mere ornamentary purposes, but means that real punishment is being doled out.

If there is any doubt as to this, check up on what happened once to Steele, and more recently to Cowboy Jack Russell, in one of the bouts at Griffith Stadium. Both suffered fractured ribs when the referee finally pried loose Stecher's legs.

And so tonight, Zaharias risks his ribs and a title shot against the oldtimer and quite a bout should result. Stecher still prefers wrestling to the more showy game of rassling, but he has picked up many of the tricks of the new game, absorbs punishment like a sponge, and may be depended upon to make his younger and more hefty rival uncork all he has, even including his well-known knee "hold," if he hopes to win.

Boesch Meets Raines.

In the semifinal, popular Paul Boesch takes on one of the rough boys of the game in weeping Tex Raines. The latter showed unexpected ability in his bout against Zaharias last week and Boesch, only 21 and not as big as he should be in this game, will have to put his best foot forward, and then some, to cop the verdict.

Two new faces and several slightly used ones here will be seen in the preliminaries. The first-time visitors are Pete Ramos and John Kazonas, who will be pitted against each other. In the other melees, Cliff Olsen, the popular Minneapolis Swede, takes on Joe Montana, while Milo Steinborn, the strong man, swaps leers and holds with Vanka Zelezniak. The latter probably has the edge when it comes to grimacing, but he likely will lose out as regards the rassle part of the bout.

Purvis, Purdue, Undergoes Operation

News of the operation, coming three days before the Boilermakers engaged Notre Dame at South Bend, shocked the Purdue football fans. With Fred Hecker still on the injured list, Kizer said he likely would use Dailey, a sophomore, at half back, and alternate Moore and Keegan at full.

Coach Shifts Indianans.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 8 (AP).—Seeking to plug up a hole at tackle, Coach E. C. Hayes today shifted Bruno Vercuski, end, to team with Zoll on the Indiana first-string football eleven. The varsity was sent through a long offensive drill preparing for its game with Chicago. Burton and Keck, reserve full backs, showed well.

Chicago Drills in Snow.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Chicago's first and second team scrimmaged for an hour and a quarter in the snow today as Coach Clark Shaughnessy attempted to develop a scoring punch for Indiana. Cullen, who was at quarter back against Wisconsin, was shifted to center in place of Patterson, who was hurt in the Badger game.

New Minnesota Quarter.

Minneapolis, Nov. 8 (AP).—Promoted as an outcome of the Northwestern game, Babe Levoir ran Minnesota's regulars from quarter back today as the Gophers worked hard on the offensive to throw against Michigan a week from Saturday. Coach Bierman's choice for left half back, however, remained Pug Lund. Cold weather limited today's drill which was largely indoors.

Irish Drill Indoors.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 8 (AP).—Coach Hunk Anderson took his Notre Dame squad indoors for a lengthy drill today when a snow storm made outside practice impracticable, but what happened inside was unknown to those on the outside.

Rentner Drills With Purple.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 8 (AP).—Pug Rentner, former star aerial artist of Northwestern's Wildcats, joined the freshmen team today and tossed passes all over the lot to drill the Wildcat regulars for the Illinois game Saturday. Pug demonstrated he still possessed his old time skill and gave the varsity a busy afternoon during hte scrimmage. Roy Augustson, quarter back, was unable to participate in the drill because of a broken toe suffered in the Minnesota game. He'll be back by Saturday, however.

Scrimmage at Illinois.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 8 (AP).—Coach Bob Zuppke used the same line-up which started the Michigan game as Illinois regulars went through their first and probably only scrimmage of the week against the freshmen today.

The team will leave Friday for Chicago and the Northwestern game.

Maj. Cavanaugh's family will not get much from the U. S. Government either. But there again he made a mistake, I heard he had to pay for his own operations in recent years. But an idle and utterly useless coat-holder of my acquaintance is receiving $5,000 a year from the U. S. Government now because he put in six months of 1932 before the election doing what? Doing nothing. Just hanging around wherever Shamus Farley happened to be telling people that Frank Roosevelt was going to win sure as hell.

out of the fray in deference to injuries, but Capt. Carl Schock, guard, and "Corky" Cornelius, the side-wheeling half back, will be back in the line-up after a week's absence to keep Duke's attack rolling at top speed.

Duke is invading College Park, not only with the solitary idea of shaking its own ball carriers loose, but also intent upon stopping Nelson and Earl Widmyer, whom it regards as dangerous threats. The team has been particularly drilled to stop Widmyer. Nelson is feared more because of his kicking and passing.

Aquarium Secrets Bared by Ossinger

Several 'Fish Stories' Told Izaak Walton League.

What goes on behind the scenes at the aquarium was the subject of an informal talk delivered last night by Fred Ossinger, of the Bureau of Fisheries, at the monthly meeting of the Izaak Walton League at the Raleigh Hotel.

How the catfish gets friendly with the gar, how fish show human traits and how the aquarium is run, were among the topics discussed. But, being a true Waltonian, he really spent most of his talk in telling tall fish stories—such as the one about the 22-pound frog.

After regular business was over and members had discussed pollution of nearby streams and the various ways to lure black bass, a resolution was adopted stating the chapter was in favor of resuming fishing privileges in Roaches Run along Mount Vernon boulevard, which has been barred due to protests.

Visitor Found Dead In Room at Hotel

An autopsy will be performed today on the body of Ernest E. McLemore, 37, retired grain merchant, of Columbia, Tenn., who was found dead in a downtown hotel room last night.

McLemore, who had been visiting in Washington since Sunday, was injured in an automobile accident near Leesburg, Va., Saturday. He was treated at a hospital there and came here the next day, friends said.

Earth Just Speck in Universe Of Newly Found Star Systems

Dr. Edwin Hubble, Noted Scientist, Unraveling Old Mysteries.

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 8 (AP).—Dr. Edwin Hubble, noted authority of nebulae, gave a hint today of the enormity of the universe and what a tiny speck in space this earth is.

He is searching for facts which may decide conflicting contentions of theorists that the universe is stable, is expanding and contracting much like a toy balloon, or is racing to destruction.

In this search, Dr. Hubble said he is studying a huge cluster of 800 nebulae, or star systems, recently discovered with the 100-inch telescope at the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson Observatory.

Each nebula in the cluster might be compared in size to the milky way star system, which contains the sun and its planets. The cluster is so distant, he estimated, that light from it would require 130,000,000 years to reach the earth.

Observations by Milton Humason and Dr. Hubble indicate the cluster is traveling away from the earth at a rate of 13,000 miles a second, one twenty-third the speed of light.

About 20 great clusters are known, but this one, Corona Borealis, he described as the finest example of a great cluster at a great distance and said much study would be given to comparisons between it and the nearest clusters.

The prohibition force will continue to be active, said Walter P. King, prohibition administrator, but will confine its operations to Internal Revenue law violators.

"Cap" Stubbs — Final Rehearsals — By Edwina

Walt Mason, Himself

Reign of Law.

It seems a thousand pities, as gangsters look at things, that cops, in many cities, are canning vice's kings. We used to wonder whether the law would ever win, but now men get together to squelch the hosts of sin. The stern and able jurists are handing out the fines to law disdaining tourists until it jars their spines. When gangsters are arrested their bail is placed so high that all they have invested can scarcely get them by. They used to jest and giggle when Justice came to bat, for they could promptly wriggle from any jam like that The busy bail bond maker would quickly set them free, and peelers looked like fakers, they stood by helplessly. But now the sinful vagrant is jailed in proper style, his cell so rich and fragrant you smell it for a mile; and there he has to linger in solitude and grief; he cannot crook his finger and summon up relief. The bad men of the Nation are being gathered in, from ways of desperation, from paths of crime and sin. The cheerful Mr. Bailey, he circulates no more; no longer does he gayly indulge in theft and gore/ And there's Machine Gun Riley, of nerve without a flaw, they spoke of him quite highly as one above the law. He's taking a vacation, as many others are; he eats his prison ration behind the bolt and bar. And so the law keeps inching along its certain path, and cops are busy pinching the men of lust and wrath.

Farm Income Leads Upturn, Says Wallace

Inferring that complaints coming from the dissatisfied corn belt are not fully justified, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace yesterday marshalled statistics of farm income in an effort to show that the purchasing power of those engaged in agriculture has increased since last March faster than that of city dwellers.

Meanwhile the Associated Press reported from Des Moines that despite the cold weather which had driven thousands of the farm strikers from patrolling highways, leaders of the farm holiday movement claimed their progress was "far beyond expectations."

Four-and-a-half street southwest.

The same report stated that the strikers gained a victory when milk distributors of Superior, Wis., and Duluth, Minn., agreed to raise the price from $1.15 to $2.08 a hundredweight.

Revolt Criticized.

Earlier in the day Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, after a call on President Roosevelt, revealed he lacked sympathy with the Middle Western revolt against the Administration program and the farm strikes being led by the National Farmers Holiday Association.

Mr. O'Neal said he was urging the members of his organization to support President Roosevelt and give a fair trial to his program, which he described as "undoubtedly the broadest and most comprehensive which has been undertaken by any government in recent times."

"To try at this time," he continued, "conflicting and confusing methods, such as farm strikes, disarranges the present program and interferes with the policy of President Roosevelt relative to the rebuilding of agriculture."

Cotton and Wheat Rise.

Meanwhile a report of the cotton crop board increasing this year's cotton crop as of November 1 by 215,000 bales over the estimate for October 1 was followed by a sudden rise of $1.50 a bale in cotton quotations. Wheat in the Chicago pits advanced more than 2 cents a bushel. These commodity advances were reflected by spirited buying of stocks in the last hour of trading in New York, sending some issues up from $1 to $5 a share.

The Government report placing this year's cotton crop at 13,100,000 bales was under average expectations, it was reported from New York, resulting in the active buying of futures. The certainty that prohibition would end on December 5 and further depreciation of the dollar contributed to the rise in grain and security prices.

Another factor regarded as strengthening the wheat market was the announcement of Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, that he had allotted 5,500,000 bushels of wheat to the drought area for the feeding of live stock this winter. The sending of part of this grain into North and South Dakota and Wisconsin will be another step to allay complaints in the disaffected section.

Loans to Be Liberalized.

Secretary Wallace at his press conference said he proposed to liberalize the plan to lend 50 cents a bushel on No. 2 corn at Chicago in order that a uniform loan rate would apply in all parts of the corn belt. The details, however, have not been worked out, he said. It is not certain that in the revised plan the loan rate will be as high as 50 cents a bushel, although it will be above the market level.

The statistical report on farm income made public by Mr. Wallace was prepared by Louis H. Bean, his economic adviser. The latter's thesis was that "while general prices of agricultural products have made slight gains since last March over prices of things which farmers buy, the income of farmers is being sharply increased as a result of benfit payments which the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is making and will make to those farmers who take part in the production adjustment programs."

"Since March the money income of city consumers in general has risen less than 20 per cent," the Bean report contended. "Payments to factory wage earners have expanded more, while the incomes of salaried people have gone up only a little, if at all. Factory pay rolls which had fallen to 35 per cent of the predepression level last March rose to 56 per cent of that level in September, making an improvement of about 60 per cent.

Farm Prices Up 22 Per Cent.

"Factory wage rates and other industrial costs have advanced, and have raised the level of prices of things farmers buy, so that the gains made in farm prices have been partly offset. This offset, however, has been largely overcome by the benefit payments which have been made to farmers participating in the production adjustment programs. Prices farmers had to pay for goods they bought were 16 to 17 per cent higher in October than in March. During the same time the general level of prices received by farmers for commodities they sold increased and resulted in a farm purchasing power about 22 per cent greater than in March, when it was only half as much as in prewar years."

Mr. Bean pointed out that farm products brought returns last March of only about one-third of their return in corresponding months before the depression, or about $235,000,000. This sum advanced to about $400,000,000 in July, he explained. Although price conditions reversed in July, farmers in September received about $400,000,000 for their products.

In addition, the economist continued, they received $51,000,000 of cotton benefit payments and about $30,000,000 in premiums on hogs. Thus the net increase between March and September "in farmers' cash income, exclusive of benefit payments, was about 16 per cent more than usual, and including these benefit payments, the net increase amounted to more than 50 per cent," Mr. Bean asserted. Increased industrial prices offset the 16 per cent, leaving the benefit payments as the farmers' net gain, the report stated.

In October almost $60,000,000 more was paid to farmers in cotton benefit payments and slightly more than $70,000,000 will be paid by the Government to wheat growers during November and December, with another $32,000,000 later, Mr. Bean explained, adding that these factors should make "the returns from farming greater during the coming year than in recent months."

Gen. Johnson Downs Heckler In Iowa Talk

4,000 Cheer at Close of Plea for Farmers' NRA Support.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 8 (AP). Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Recovery Administrator, invaded the home of the Midwest farm strike today to appeal again for support of the NRA and AAA as "the one possible way out of this depresion" and affirm that recovery program benefits were already on the way to the farmer.

As the fiery general closed his address before 4,000 persons in Shrine Auditorium, there were bursts of applause. For the most part, however, the audience listened without demonstration. He had come here from St. Paul and delivered similar appeals.

One heckler was silenced when the general asked sharply:

"What better plan than Franklin Roosevelt's plan can you think of?"

Asserting he came here to answer criticisms of farmers that the NRA was moving ahead faster than the agricultural adjustment program, Johnson admitted the present situation in the Midwest "is about the worst in the United States."

But, he countered, "NRA had to move fast or not move at all. The program of AAA was altogether different. NRA could move on any day. AAA had to deal with annual crops. It could not have moved faster."

Sees Nation Recovering.

"The Farm Loan Administration is on the job," Johnson said. "You have got to get the feel of a refinancing job. You have to create and train a trustworthy personnel."

"Remember," he said, "that the machine was only authorized by Congress less than six months ago. In that time it has lifted this country about a quarter of the way out of the depth of the March depression.

"Instead of complaining of slowness, we should recognize this as the swiftest, broadest and most effective action ever taken by a government in the whole history of the world."

Another round of applause broke out when the NRA chief reiterated the pledge of President Roosevelt that the refinancing of mortgages by the Federal Government will "save your farms from foreclosure."

Says Farm Prices Rising.

Although Midwest agricultural prices are not keeping up with increasing industrial commodity prices, Johnson said the national average for farm prices shows 37 per cent rise, compared to a 17 per cent jump in industrial commodities.

Bidding for farm support of NRA, he said:

"Your market is in the wages of workers and goes up and down with them. NRA is raising pay rolls and AAA is raising your prices. Both will continue to do so. If either fails, the other will fail.

"For your own sake and the success of agriculture, for the sake of the country on the verge of another hellish winter and for the sake of suffering humanity, get behind the Blue Eagle."

Gen. Johnson left here by plane for Omaha, Nebr.

Lack of New Church Buildings Perils Pipe Organ Industry

Trouble Caused by Eugenie Hats Also Bared at Code Hearing.

Because "there are no new churches being planned," outlook for the pipe organ manufacturing industry is dark, Deputy Administrator R. B. Paddock was told yesterday at the industry's code hearing.

Harry Meixell, secretary of the National Association of Organ Builders, added that sales of $17,000,000 in the peak year 1927 had fallen to an estimated $1,800,000, a drop of more than 90 per cent in six years. The hearing was adjourned indefinitely.

While the state of church finances might be blamed for decline of pipe organ demand, the vagaries of fashion and the Empress Eugenie hat are responsible for troubles of the velvet industry, another deputy administrator, A. D. Whiteside, was told.

The Empress Eugenie vogue in 1931 caused every manufacturer of women's hats to switch from velvet to the new felt whim, resulting in a glut of 50 per cent of their product, nearly ruining the industry, it was reported by Frank R. Wheeler, code committee chairman. This hearing also was recessed.

Action on Sale Of Unlicensed Milk Possible

Dr. Fowler Orders Probe of Evidence Given to Senate Group.

Certain independent milk distributors, accused of importing unlicensed milk and cream into the District, may be prosecuted for violation of District health regulations, it was indicated yesterday by Corporation Counsel Bride.

At the request of Health Officer William C. Fowler, a study of the testimony before the Senate Milk Investigating Committee is being made by Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal to determine whether there is sufficient evidence for court action.

A committee of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association called on Dr. Fowler yesterday and asked him to take action on the testimony which showed that the equivalent of 1,500,000 gallons of milk had been brought into this market from unlicensed sources.

If any prosecution is made, Mr. Bride said, it will be for violation of health regulations, which forbid importation of milk or cream from any sources until a license is obtained from the Health Department.

Mr. Seal disclosed yesterday that an agent of an independent distributor had admitted to him the purchase of unlicensed milk with money being set up on the dairy books as "professional services."

The agent will be called before the Senate committee on Monday to explain the transaction, Mr. Seal said. Another witness will be Assistant Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Haycock, who will be questioned regarding milk consumption propaganda in the District schools.

King to Push D. C. Rum Control Bill

Repeal will work as a unit for "sane and liberal" control, its chairman, Mrs. William Beverley Mason, announced. Despite dissolution of the National organization, announced in New York yesterday by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, National chairman, Mrs. Mason said the District division will continue to function until Congress meets and adopts regulations. Its members propose to recommend a "model control bill" to the congressional committees.

Enforcement to Continue.

But the ghost of prohibition slipping into oblivion will in no way alter the activities of the District police vice squad, Lieut. George M. Little announced. Cases also will be prosecuted, regardless of repeal, Assistant United States Attorney Dave Hart added, until he has "orders to stop." Lieut. Little commented:

"We will carry on our business as usual. When there is no National dry law to enforce, there will be District laws—and our work is not confined to liquor. Whenever we are able to enter speakeasies and get the goods on their proprietors, we'll make arrests. I don't mean that we're going to put on any extra spurts of speed. Not at all. We're simply going to function as we've been doing for years."

Mr. Hart said he will schedule several test cases before juries in Police Court to determine their attitude. He plans to prosecute some of Washington's largest bootleggers recently arrested, he said, adding his opinion that repeal will increase liquor violations.

Further Trade Control Asked For Roosevelt

Code Clause on WorkWeek and Minimum Pay Urged by NRA.

Reaching out for more unquestioned control over industry, the NRA yesterday proposed that all industries insert in future codes a clause giving the President unchallengeable authority to raise or lower minimum pay scales, change working hours and decree conditions of labor affecting their employes.

The clause, which would give the Chief Executive absolute authority to fix the minimum salary the employer would pay, reads:

"That employers shall comply with the maximum hours of labor, minimum rates of pay, and other conditions of employment approved or prescribed by the President."

While it was said at the NRA that the President all along has exercised his authority to revise codes by executive orders, and that it "has been understood in all codes" that he had authority to prescribe wages and hours, it was emphasized that the clause is contained only in one or two approved agreements.

Model Code Drawn.

The matter was brought to public attention when the NRA announced it had drawn up a model code for guidance of industries seeking to have their agreements rushed through the NRA mill without the delay caused in the past by lack of standardization.

The code's proposed trade practices, similar to those adopted in the master retail code, would make it a violation for any industry to sell below cost, to misrepresent its products, indulge in inaccurate or "bait" advertising, false billing, inaccurate labeling, secret rebating, bribing, interference with another's contracts or repudiate one's own contract, and to sell on consignment or circulate threats of lawsuits calculated to impede competitors.

The model code—approximately 3,000 words in length—is one "embracing the whole spirit and purpose of the recovery act, and is applicable, with minor variations, to any industry," according to an NRA announcement.

More than 7,500 copies are to be distributed to trade associations, organizations and units of industries now engaged in preparing codes for submission.

Close Study Made.

Representatives of the country's leading manufacturing, retail and wholesale trade associations, the Federal Trade Commission, the Commerce Department and the Better Business Bureau collaborated with the NRA legal division, its research and planning divisions and industrial, labor boards in writing the code. These groups studied all approved codes, taking what they believed to be the ideal from each for inclusion in the model.
